LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, APRIL 24, 1977

WATER: nice while it lasted By Walt Murray

Your lawn is brown, your trees are dying.
You shower only twice a week, standing in a bucket to collect the runoff that you pour on a few house plants.

Your neighbor's swimming pool is: empty and your car looks like it belongs to a refugee from the Dust Bowl:

Your water-hog dishwasher sits in the corner unused. You do your dishes in the sink like you did 20 years ago. You use the dish water for flushing your toilet once a day.

Lettuce costs $1 a head.
An orange costs more.
Could it happen here?

Not next month. Not this summer. And not that bad next year.

But it could happen here sooner than you or the state's water planners ever imagined. (This is the first of three parts on the California water crisis.)

Life is already approaching that kind of austerity in wealthy but bone-dry Marin County north of San Francisco, where water consump-tion has been slashed by more than one-half.

Frightened by the spectre of parched Marin, San Francisco and Sacramento are striving for 25 per cent water cuts, and people are turning in their neighbors for hosing off sidewalks.

But Californians living south of the Tehachapi Mountains are just beginning to wake up to the fact that their part of the state—always arid until massive aqueducts were built in the last few decades—could revert to semi-desert again.

It's hard to imagine a lack of water in Long Beach, where lawns are deep green and children splash in shimmering swimming pools, where people still spend Saturday mornings hosing off their ears.

But the Southland's worried water authorities say people better start imagining it. For drought Marin-style could happen here.

These are the facts they lay out:

—Demand on the Southland's dwindling water resources could exceed supply by up to 30 per cent by the end of the summer.

—Voluntary conservation this spring has only slowed increase in water demand. Unless Southlanders start conserving more water fast, mandatory controls are almost certain before the summer's end.

Rationing by the end of the summer is a possibility. Local water agencies are already studying rationing plans from parched Marin and Monterey Counties.

Water agencies are starting to base their future planning on the assumption that the drought will continue in 1978.

There is no reason the drought couldn't -Massive water projects that would tap new sources for the Southland are far off, very expensive and could be stopped by court-fought water wars and environmental concerns. "To put it frankly, the walls are closing in from all sides," said Paul Singer, assistant operations chief for the giant Metropolitan Water District, which provides Long Beach with half its water.

He said supply could fall as short as 30 per cent of demand this summer. Demand on MWD water was up—not down—35 per cent over last year in March.

The rig's 112 crewmen were evacuated safely after the pipe broke late Friday night.

Timber blaze out of control

YREKA (AP) — California's biggest forest fire of the year burned out of control Saturday night about 25 miles northwest of here, blackening 800 acres of timber and brush in Klamath National Forces' Forest.

Ed Allen of the U.S. Forestry division office here said the blaze, of unknown cause, was moving in a northeasterly direction and had jumped the dry bed of Buckhorn Creek.

The fire broke out Saturday afternoon north of California 96 near the Oregon border and swept over 300 acres in five hours.

Allen said seven tractors and two airtankers were being used by a crew of 130 firefighters. Another 300 men were called in and total manpower on the line was to reach 450 by 5 a.m. today.

Q. Several years ago you called the Queen Mary a "sparkling new jewel on the Long Beach coastline." Has your opinion on the ship and its value to the city changed?

A. Well, I feel the ship still has tremendous potential. I think the ship can be one of the greatest assets to Long Beach. The city is on the right track right now, trying # likes L.B. potential Feinberg to consolidate all the leases on the ship, but it's going to take a lot of time and a lot of effort to fulfill the full potential of the Queen. Deep in my heart I feel that only private enterprise will ever be able to turn the ship around.

Q: The Queen Hary has not been the success the city obviously hoped. What about the Queensway Hilton, the hotel you built next to

A. Our business is not dependent on the Queen Mary anymore. When we saw where the QM was moving, we went out on our own and developed other markets and we've been very successful in bringing people to the water. In orning people to the water to stay on the ocean. Long Beach's greatest potential is to be able to intelligently use its oceanfront.

Q. What's your occupancy rate? A. We're in the 70 per cent area this year, and it continues to climb as we sell harder and our place becomes better known. Q. How will the new convention center effect you?

A. It's going to help. Every-thing you do helps. The challenge of a convention center is to build enough rooms to handle it. Anaheim has 14,000 hotel rooms, so whatever we're talking about is a drop in the bucket.

Q. Who is coming to Long Beach to stay in the hotel?

A. About 55 per cent of our occupancy is businessmen in the area and the ports doing business here and in Los Angeles. About 30 per cent is conventions that we contain the conventions of the convention of the c solicit to come and enjoy Queensway Bay and about 15 per cent is tourists and visitors. Q. Can you use the city itself as a selling point?

A. The lack of quality shopping hurts us. People want to know where they can shop, and we try to direct them to downtown or to Seaport Village, but it really is a prob-lem for us. It's not up to standards.

Q. What about the Queen Mary — is she a selling point?

A. Not really.

Q. If you owned the Queen Mary, what changes would you make toward creating a more profitable landmark?

A. That would take me about two weeks to explain. We've got other projects we're working on so have lived here for a number of years, and have had a pet for six of those years. Now the Los Angeles County Housing Authority has issued a new lease which says we can't have any pets. Is there anything that can be done to step this? Where can we write to complain? C.S.,

Some census records, for example, list the names of slaves, but many record only the number of slaves in a particular area.

You can write to the Los Angeles County Housing Authority, 4800 E. Brooklyn Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90022, but it is unlikely your letters will effect any change in the new no-pet regulations. Evelyn Lewis, communications coordinator for the Housing Authority. told Action Line residents were notified of the new restrictions more than two months ago and no com-plaints have been received yet. She said dogs were becoming "uncontrollable" at all four Housing Authority developments with "sanitation on the grounds and the safety of residents and visitors alike" becoming an increasing problem. "We just can't afford the mainte-nance and liability problems." Mrs. Lewis said. Resi-dents are being given additional time to get rid of their pets, even though the effective date of the new lease was to have been April 1.

Rancho Los Amigos

Can Action Line give a history of Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey? Is it run by the county or the state? I'd also like to know who is eligible to become a patient there. J.H., Long Beach.

Rancho Los Amigos, which is now a county rehabili-tation hospital, started out literally as a poor farm. In 1888, Los Angeles County opened the rancho as a home for individuals who "couldn't cope in the community for social or economic reasons, and they operated a farm raising food for patients in county hospitals and for jail inmates," said a spokesman for the hospital. In the 1920s, Rancho Los Amigos became a convalescent hospi-1920s, Rancho Los Amigos became a convaiescent nospi-tal for persons with mild mental disorders, such as senility. During the polio epidemic in the 1940s, several victims of the disease were transferred from the coun-ty's overcrowded General Hospital to Rancho where an intensive rehabilitation program was established and that has continued to be the hospital's specialty. Rancho Los Amigos has become a nationally recognized treat-rest tenter for recogn sufficient from spiral inviries ment center for persons suffering from spinal injuries, stroke-related paralysis, rheumatoid arthrilis, orthopedie diseases and other severe, chronic ailments. The hospital also operates a drug rehabilitation program. The fees are based on the patient's ability to pay. "Anyone who has a severe disorder for which we have treatment that he can't get elsewhere is eligible to become a patient," the spokesman said. Most patients are referred by a private physician or another hospital, but an individual can make an appointment to be examined at one of the clinics on his own.

Benefit

1 am still employed, but my wife is retired. If she chooses to collect her Social Security retirement benefits at age 62, will those benefits be reduced on the basis of my income? R.S., Long Beach.

No. An individual's own retirement benefits are not affected by the income of any other household members, said a spokesman for the Long Beach Social Security office. Payments from individual retirement accounts such as pensions, annuities, interest payments, gifts, income tax refunds and other similar sources of income also have no bearing on Social Security benefits. In addition, recipients of retirement payments currently are allowed to earn up to $3,000 in wages without having their benefits reduced. If a person earns more than that, the Social Security Administration will deduct $1 of benefits for every $2 of earnings over the $3,000 limit. # Freeway pelter is back RIVERSIDE (AP) The phantom of the free-way is again pelting motorists with rocks from his outpost on the median strip of the Riverside Freeway — and police still don't know why.

But California Highway Patrol officer Marshall Little said Sunday that evidence indicates the phantom may be a veteran of the Special Forces in Vietnam.

Little said the phantom, who has frequently been seen but never been caught, had been absent for nearly a month after being sideswiped and apparently injured by a passing motorist as he sprinted onto the freeway. The motorist that hit him was not one of his targets. police said.

HOWEVER, the phantom limped away from that accident and was not found.

Little said bits of evidence that have been pieced together since the phantom started accosting ears in January indicate the man was in the mili-

A person involved at the flict with the inner estab-lishment of Hughes employes came last summer when Lummis decided the company should be run from a headquarters in Las Vegas, rather than from Encino in the San Fernando Valley.

'told of secret satellite'

One of two young men accused of spying for the Soviet Union has signed a statement, according to government sources, admitting that at a 1975 meeting in Vienna he gave detailed documents to Soviet officials about a secret American satellite that, he told the Russians, "flies over your country, photographing it, two or three times a day,"

Although government and defense lawyers have declined to comment on the reported statement, it was learned that Andrew Daulton Lee, 25, scheduled to go on trial in Los Angeles Tuesday on esplonage charges, made it to agents of the FBI after his arrest in Mexico City on Jan. 6.

His attorney, Kenneth Kahn, has maintained that Lee believed that he was acting as an agent for the CIA, which had planned the effort to spread "disin-formation" to the Soviet Union. A CIA official has

Until last December, Boyce operated a cryptographic communication center that handled traffic between TRW Systems Inc. in Redondo Beach and the CIA headquarters in Langley, Va. The government alleges that he and Lee photographed thousands of documents that passed through the center in 1975 and 1976 and were paid $70.000 by Russian agents in and 1976 and were paid $70,000 by Russian agents in Washington, Lee said that he met with Soviet agents at the Intercontinental Hotel in Vienna in November 1975, and gave the documents on the TRW photo reconnaissance satellites to Soviet representatives. The reference to the satellites is the first indication that the Soviet Union may have received details of such intelligence-gathering systems.

In Boyce's trial, the government has sought to impose a narrow limit on the subject matter introduced into evidence, apparently in part because of concern that details of important intelligence technology might be disclosed in court. Defense lawyers have complained that such limits on the use of CIA data have impeded them in giving Boyce a complete defense.

IT APPEARS that annual pre-tax earnings may amount to a maxi-mum of about $20 million. A lot of this comes from the "recreation group," which is the internal name for Summa's chain o hotels and casinos in Nevada.

Harold's Club in Reno carns about $5 million. In Las Vegas, the Sands Hotel earns about $4 million, the Desert Inn's losses of $6 million a year are now much lower, while the Frontier Hotel is a small loser and the Landmark loses about $1 million. The Silver Slipper and Castaways about break even.

Hughes Air West earned about $2 million last year, and Hughes Helicopter earned about $1 million. When Hughes died, he had about $200 million or more in government securities that was earning about $10 million a year.

Certain properties have been sold, such as the sale this week, for an undis-closed price, of 1,500 largely worthless mining claims that were unloaded on Hughes while he lived in Las Vegas. They cost him $20 million, according to confidential reports.

WASHINGTON — In a deepening constitutional controversy, federal and state courts have taken over the day-to-day operations of jails, prisons, state hospitals and at least one school district, in what is generally considered to be the greatest extension of Judicial authority in 174 years.

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., for example, patients in a state mental hospital, some of whom had previously received up to 800 electric shock treatments, can no longer be given such treatments without their express consent or that of their guardians, nor can they be placed in isolation for more than 24 hours, compared with a previous maximum of eight years.

IN JACKSONVILLE, Fla., the number of prisoners in the Duval county jail was reduced from 600 to 410, the jail budget doubled to $4 million and numer-ous new facilities installed, including a roftop recreation area, from which two prisoners have Courts have taken over the operation of jails in St. Louis, Baltimore, New Orleans, Toledo., New York City, Boston, Jacksonville, Knoxville and Lubbock and Harris counties, Texas. They run state prisons in Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas, state hospitals in Alabama. Louisiana and Mississippi and a school district in Boston.

To operate these facilities, courts have issued 100-point orders of great specificity, mandating everything from reductions in population and increases in staffing to the frequency with which corridors must be mopped.

Similarly, the courts have moved into legislative areas, and virtually directed the New Jersey legisla-ture to enact an income tax, among the numerous directives that mandated legislatures and city councils to increase taxes, change their budgets and reorder priorities.

THE COURTS HAVE overcome opposition by using their contempt powers to gin compliance from governors, mayors, legislators, councilmen, wardens and other officials, some of whom privately wel-comed the judicial intrusion, even while condemning

This intervention of the judiciary in the functions of the executive and legislative branches, based on findings of denials of constitutional rights, is gener-

Chief Justice John Marshall enunciated the principle of judicial review.

"By usurption the courts have taken over executive and legislative functions," said Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. "It's government by the judicial branch. The judges, in their robes, lean back and say, you spend this money. They don't say how to raise it. They have a utopian system in mind. but we can't have everything utopian."

In a federal courthouse a few bloscks away sits U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson, a softspoken, stay haired man whom some call the real governor haired man whom some call the real governor of Alabama because he is virtually running the state's prisons and mental hospitals. Johnson ordered the new procedures in Tuscaloosa.

"I DIDN'T ASK for any of these cases." said. "In an ideal society, all of these judgements and decisions should be made by those to whom we have entrusted these responsibilities. But when governmental institutions fail to make these judgements and decisions in a manner which comports with the constitution, the federal courts have a duty to remedy the violation.

'Otherwise," he added, "a judge would be a eunuch. The extension of judicial authority into executive and legislative areas has evolved in the last 15 years largely as a result of class action suits that flowed from the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the decisions of the Warren Court, notably Brown v. Board of Education in 1954.

But even the strongest supporters of judicial activism say they do not lightly intervene in the operations of other branches of government.

David L. Bazelon, chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, whose landmark decision in Rouse v. Cameron established the characters of these institutionalized after right to treatment for those institutionalized after being acquitted of a crime by reason of insanity, said that his criteria for intervention went beyond the minimal standards of justice or fairness.

HIS TEST, HE SAID, was a gut reaction to the situation: "Does it make you sick?"

Judge Johnson speaks of intervening in situations that are "barbaric and shocking."

What opponents of judicial intervention fear most of all is the rise of an imperial judicial oligarchy, a ruling class accountable to no one. They cite the doctrine of separation of powers, which calls for the executive, legislative and judicial departments to be independent but coordinate branches of government. They also contend that judicial intervention is a violation of federalism as set forth by the 10th Amendment, which restricts the power of the federal courts to intervene in the functioning of the states.

Supporters of judicial intervention maintain that the doctrine of separation of powers is blurry, that the three branches of government are constantly evolving new interrelationships and that the new cases are direct descendants of Marbury v. Madison, which established the concept of judicial review. Most laws, they point out, are initiated by the President and not Congress, while Congress' power of the purse also gives it input into executive decision-making.

SUPPORTERS ALSO cite Article VI, Section 2 of the Constitution, which establishes the constitution as the supreme law of the land, and Article III, Section 2, which extends to the federal courts jurisdiction over all cases arising under the Constitution.

And such intervention is sometimes privately welcomed by the public officials who denounce it the loudest, they say, citing a relatively low rate of appeals taken by public officials in these cases.

"It really helped us out," said Bob L. Ervin, chief jailer of the Duval County Jail, in Jacksonville, speaking of the court order upgrades the facility." he continued. "Everyone had asked the council for money. It took the court to get it."

Some legislators disagreed. "He's mandating money for prison space and health care, and only the legislature can do that," said State Senator Lew Brantley. State Representative Barry Kutun concurred: "He's usurping our laws by legislating in the field of criminal law."

Federal District Judge Charles B. Scott coun-

rederal District Juage Charles R. Scott countered: "If the city chooses to operate a jail, it must do so without depriving inmates of their rights guaranteed by the Federal Constitution."

Jack G. Day, chief justice of the Ohlo Court of Appeals, cited the case of the Toledo Jail, in which a federal judge mandated a range of improvements. "If he had done nothing, he would have left in existence a condition that was an affront to the human condition," Day said.

"THE SHERIFF SAID that they lacked money."
he continued. "The judge said, "That's not my sphere. Do it or go to jail.' It was a way of finding political money when the crunch was really on."
In Jacksonville, Judge Scott found a set of conditions that could easily pass Judge Bazelon's gut test.
Persons accused of crimes were placed in holding cells for up to two weeks, where they slept on tile floors or benches without bedding of any kind. The cells were strewn with filth, including human feces, urine and vomit. There were no bathroom facilities in two of the cells and those in the other three often two of the cells and those in the other three often malfunctioned. Often there was no toilet paper. In-mates never had a chance to shower, shave or brush mates never had a chance to shower, shave or brush their teeth in these cells and sleep was nearly impossible. They also found rats, mice and roaches. The jail had no windows and lighting was so poor that they couldn't read. Food was poor, and mostly cold. Medical facilities were inadequate. Muggings, robberies and homosexual rapes were common. There were no recreational or educational facilities, no visitors, mail was censored and few reading materials and little exportantly to consult with their altorals and little opportunity to consult with their attor-

SCOTT CONCLUDED that, although the vast majority of the prisoners were awaiting trial, the conditions were worse than those that confronted most convicts. He found that the prisoners had thus most convicts. He found that the prisoners had thus been dealed equal protection under the law, due process and the presumption of innocence. He further found that the conditions constituted cruel and inhuman punishment, and that the prisoners were subjected to "arbitrary, capricious and unlawful summary discipline" by prison officials.

In a lengthy order, he directed sweeping improvements, from reduction of the prison population to hiring of additional correction officers and nurses, purchase of hot trays for food and construction of recreation facilities. He threatened city and county officials with contempt if they failed to follow the order, and appointed a U.S. marshal to oversee the institution.

Scott borrowed heavily from an order issued by Alabama's Judge Johnson in a landmark case. Pugh v. Locke, in which Judge Johnson virtually took control of the state's prisons.

wallace has accused Johnson of creating a "hotel atmosphere" in the Alabama prison system, and asked, "When they come up, the ones who committed those crimes, why should a judge worry about whether they have enough room to sleep in? They can sleep on their heads, as far as I'm concerned."

Johnson responded: "The elimination of conditions that will permit maggots in a patient's wound for over a month before his death does not constitute creation of a hotel atmosphere. The elimination of other physical and mental indignities, such as the rape of a retarded minor four times in one night, with the prison officials stating to the victim that there was nothing they could do, will not be creating a hotel atmosphere."

If local officials say, in effect, that prisoners deserve the sub-human conditions in which they find themselves, how can they defend sub-human conditions inflicted upon innocent victims in state hospitals? Basically, they say, the local authorities are entrusted with setting priorities, and that the priorities reflect the public's values.

"YOU HAVE TO remember," Wallace said, "that the principle of separation of powers is more important than a fleeting problem that will be solved."

For better or worse, many supporters and opponents of judicial intervention doubt that there will be a return to the pre-intervention days.

"We are never going back to the pre-Warren days," said Day. And Johnson, who tarted it all, said "People are becoming more sensitive to rights of the oppressed, and people who can't help themselves."

N.Y. expecting federal windfall

NEW YORK — Mayor Abraham Beame and Gov. Hugh Carey have been informed by the Carter administration that it is prepared to settle a range of long-disputed reimbursement claims dating back to long-disputed reimbursement claims dating back to 1972—a step that could lead to a windfall, in the next year or more, of as much as $100 million for New York City and a like amount for New York State.

The claims are part of more than $2 billion, that New York State and several other states have been seeking from Washington ever since the Nixon administration imposed a ceiling, in 1972, on the amount of money the federal government could pay to the states under provisions of the Social Security Act.

The affected states filed suit, arguing that the law entitled them to reimbursement for money on a variety of social service programs. In many cases, it was money they had already spent. For New York State, the claim involved $1.2 billion in expenditures by the state government, as well as New York City and other cities and counties.

In 1974, Gov. Malcolm Wilson received rearly $400 million in reimbursement on the claim: — a windfall that Wilson was able to use for his election year budget — and Carey, who defeated Wilson is November of that year, has kept up the effort to obtain the balance. The affected states filed suit, arguing that the

'Raiders' now

By Lee Mitgang

WASHINGTON - In the 1960s, when washington — in the 1960s, when they worked for Ralph Nader in makeshift offices in a crumbling Victorian mansion. Harrison Wellford, Theodore Jacobs and Lowell Dodge hardly imagined they'd some day get a crack at reorganizing the government.

But they and scores of other former Nador methors have found places in the

tion and on Capitol Hill.

For years, Nader and his legion of lawyers and student workers, spear-headed by "Nader's Raiders," fought their consumer battles strictly as outsiders. Now many of the people who made their names fighting the system help run

They insist that holding office won't dilute their consumerist ideals, but there a difference. Wellford, associate director of the Office of Management and Budgel summed it up:

When you're on the outside, you don't have to face up to the consequences of your ideas, the tradeoffs, the scope of responsibilities." he says. "You didn't have to worry that some cabinet member or the President was going to implement your proposals."

None of the Nader folk now on Capitol Hill moved directly from one camp to the other except for Joan Claybrook, nominated to head the National Highway Traflie Safety Administration. Most made the transition slowly, first working for the Carter campaign, then in the changeover period.

Welford, for example, worked at Nader's Center for Study of Responsive Law from 1969 to 1972, was the late Sen. Philip Hart's chief of stalf through 1976. joined Carter's campaign and worked on his transition team.

All believe their ties with Nader helped get them into government. One reason is because of Carter's apparent sympathy with the consumer. Another is because Carter is cost-conscious and Nader people are known as hard workers who can live within stole budgets.

Being associated with Nader, however, isn't without its drawbacks. Some say they have been accused of having an anti-business bias, of being Nader's in-side agents, although Wellford and James Fallows, at least, say Nader is just one of the many voices they listen to.

Fallows, who once dug out corporate corruption in the South and now is Carter's head speech writer, says he is on the phone with Nader from time to time, sometimes seeking advice, sometimes taking his criticism. "A lot of people who bear his stamp are in the Carter administration. But it isn't that he's been laying plans to place his people into federal government."

could be done from within."
Feeling "burnt out" and needing a change. Jacobs left the Nader organization in 1975. His first government job as staffer for the House Investigations Committee was an easy transition since it was chaired by former New York Congresswoman Bella Abzug, a vocal activist

Now he is a member of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, where he will cooperate with Wellford in the reorganization effort.

While Jacobs was in Nader's inner circle, Dodge had a more distant, and at times, strained relationship with Nader, heading an affiliated group called the Center for Auto Safety from 1969 to 1974. In 1975, he took his present job as special counsel for the House Subcommittee on Oversight Investigations.

"I'm getting paid three times more to do what I was doing for Ralph," he says.
"Ralph might consider that a sellout."
Working with Congress is not what he expected. "I'd always criticized it for being political and too superficial. But some of my preconceptions have been shattered

Ms. Claybrook, if confirmed by the Senate as head of the government's high-way safety panel, probably will have the most powerful administrative job of any former Nader associate. She worked in the Transportation Department in the 1960s; and did legislative staff work on several occasions. In the 1970s, as head of Nader's Congress Watch group, she didn't," she says with a chuckle.

Fallows, a soft-spoken Rhodes scholar, was involved in a Nader investigation of the Agriculture Department in 1969. A year later he examined corporate abuses in Savannah, Ga., and in 1972, he and Ms. Claybrook conducted the Congress Project, which sought to evaluate each congressman's performance.

He gained a wide reputation as a Washington journalist by 1976 when the Carter people asked him to write speeches for the future president. Fal-lows later became Carter's No. 1 speech

I can't really devote any time to thinking about it.

Q. You own land near the Queen Mary. At what stage is the Marina you ve proposed building?

A. Well, we've made several proposals to the city on our marina and we wish to go ahead with it. The environmental impact reports have been ongoing. The final decihave been ongoing. The final deci-sion rests with the city, of course, even though we continue to pay rent on the water area. We're going to go ahead and develop more hotel rooms and restaurants on the rest

I'm devoting my time now to

Q. Have you got a completion target date?

A. We're planning to build another 250 rooms, a seafood res-taurant and a ballroom to seat 1,000 people on the ocean north of the Oulet Cannon restaurant. We would like to get started within the next year, but you know how paperwork is today. In dealing with the bureaucracy, we try to go as fast as we can sentimes that just we can . . . sometimes that just isn't as fast as you'd like. Q. How do you think that addi-tion would affect the Queen Mary

A. I think the downlown Long Beach area has the most potential of any place on the coast. Notice I say potential. Whether that potential is going to be fulfilled or not is a different question. I think Querntial is going to be fulfilled or not is a different question. I think Queen-sway Bay is the greatest resource Long Beach has, and that as Queensway Bay is developed to bring in new money and new people, Long Beach can be a much better town than San Diego.

Q. Downtown Long Beach is dying, and the city is taking steps to rebuild and revitalize it. As a developer, how would you try to

A. A city is a very complicated thing, made up of mere than just real estate. It's made up of people, jobs; educational opportunities, recreation and shopping. Long Beach has all of those things to a greater or lesser degree. The idea is to bring all those opportunities up to the highest level. There is no one answer.

Q. How do you think this city will look in five years? Or 10 years?

A. Long Beach is going to be one of the most attractive places on the waterfront in the world.

Q. You're the vice president of a major development company, yet you recently pleaded no contest to a charge of grand theft in connection with the forgery of a public document that helped you self your! home for $60,000. Would you like to present your side of the story now?

FIREFIGHTING vessel sprays water on North Sea drilling platform off Oslo, Norway, site of spreading huge slick that could become Europe's worst oil-spill.

Huge Norway oil spill

Norwegian oil officials said it would take about a week at best and perhaps one to three months to halt the leak. An unchecked 612 day flow, would equal the 7.6-million gallons that poured from the wrecked tanker Argo Merchant off Nantucket Island, Mass., last

The May 1967 wreck of the supertanker Torrey Canyon off southern England dumped more than 29 million gallons into the water — the biggest oil tanker spill on record.

An estimated two million gallons flowed into the Santa Barbara Channel from an offshore well near Santa Barbara in 1969.

The oil industry says there have been no long-term environmental effects from the Torrey Canyon or Santa Barbara spills.

The Ekofisk blowout was the first major leak in the North Sea. Jim Fyock, a spokesman at Philips headquarters in Bartlesville. Okla., said it occurred during a maintenance procedure, or "work-

The procedure involves stop-ping the flow of oil, installing a blowout preventer and pumping heavy drilling mud into the well, he said. "All accepted safety proce-dures were being followed during the workover at the time of the blowout." he said.

Hague said the pipe burst at a vulnerable time when the blowout preventer must be removed. Mud was being pumped into the well to maintain pressure and everything appeared normal. Hague said, until there was a sudden upward movement in pressure."

Steward Kjell Knudsen told Norwegian radio that after the blowout five rescue capsules and a lifeboat were lowered from the platform without difficulty, and supply vessels transferred him and the rig's other crewmen to two nearby platforms.

The Ekofisk field, discovered just before Christinas 1969, was the first major oil and gas find in the North Sea. Last month the field produced 9,885,650 barrels of oil -1,313,000 tons.

Dust Bowl desperation rained out

ULYSSES, Kan. - Last Feb. 23 this small southwestern Kansas town was entombed in dust as howling winds swept in tons of top-soil from the wheat and milo fields to the west, eclipsing the midafter-noon sun and halting all movement over the grimy roads.

On Thursday, a cold High Plains wind was again whipping across the flatlands. But the air was clear and sparkling now, smelling of fresh rain on new wheat. The winter's threat of a new Dust Bowl had ended.

For the last week it has been raining periodically over the range and croplands that stretch endlessly across the old Dust Bowl

Oklahoma touch. Unirrigated win-ter wheat crops that a month ago faced extinction have grown 6 to 8 inches in the past two weeks, another testimonial to the plant's remarkable resilience.

The drought that has depressed this area for two years was not entirely broken by these rains. But it will take only one or two more rains between now and harvest time in late June to make a wheat

Yields from some fields damaged by the wind may be cut in half. But farmers who elect not to harvest these fields can plow them under and, with the new moisture in the ground, have a chance of growing a crop of mile.

"If you'd been out here early last week you'd have thought we were on the edge of disaster," Rob-ert Fuller, federal district soil con-servationist for nearby Finney County, said. "Now there's nothing but smiles," he said. "It's always amazing what a little rain at the right time can do for this country.' Wind damage to the wheat crops and the precious topsoil that sustains them was much less severe in this year's blowing season, now ending, than in last year's.

In Grant County, surrounding Ulysses, the district soil conservationist, Jeffry Bohr, reported that only 200 of the county's 303,000 acres of cropland had been dam-aged by wind this year.

"If the summer isn't extraordinarily hot, if we cut back water use 10 per cent, if we draw heavily on our groundwater supply and reservoir storage—then we'll get through the summer without serious problems," he said.

groundwater and storage water, we'll be in a weaker position to meet future drought conditions."

Singer said an alternative would be sharper cutbacks this year-perhaps as much as 25 per cent-to save more water for future years. That's one recommendation being weighed now by a mayor's task force in Los Angeles.

"Saving 25 per cent might well take mandatory controls." Singer said: "But I wouldn't expect to see mandatory controls until the sum-mer months. It's going to take that long to put all the facts together.

There's considerable question how drastically a 25 per cent cut would alter Southland lifestyles.

Water officials note that it is a 57 per cent cut that has turned Marin County into a virtual disaster area. They say San Francisco and Sacramento are working towards a one-quarter cut without devastating consequences.

Gov. Brown, who has emergency powers to declare water rationing, has already suggested that Southern Californians would do well to join northerners in saving 25 per cent.

It wouldn't be easy, however. We could possibly save 25 per cent, said John H. Lauten, MWD's eral manager, "Rut such a reduction would cause a significant reaction whom tails a significant library and people would lose their jobs."

Right now Lauten and other water managers are carrying out a makerive publicity campaign to try to get Southlanders to save just 10 per cent, which would put hardly a dent in local lifestyles.

A 10 per cent cut doesn't seem like much when you consider that Californians will use an estimated 40 million acre feet of water this year. The average Long Beach resident makes use of 140 gallons each day. Even if normal weather conditions return, the two-year drought has given water managers such a scare that they'd still retain many conservation measures.

"If it rained 40 days and 40 nights this fall, we'd still continue our conservation efforts," said MWD spokesman Joel Schwarz. "Southern Californians just can't continue to waste and squander their water."

"We're discouraging all the water use we possibly can," said Blaine Vernon, spokesman for the Long Beach Water Department.

After this summer, the amount conservation that will be required of all Californians depends on the weather.

Weather is the villain in the state's water crisis. In the last two years the climate of the entire western U.S. has turned more capricious than an Arab sheik with

And despite all the highly touted triumphs of American know-how, no one can predict whether 1977 is the second year of a two-year drought or the second year of a ten-year drought.

Whether it's the far tributaries of the Colorado River in western Wyoming, the snowpacks in the Sierra or the weils in Long Beach's Heartwell Park, the story is the 1976 was drier than normal. 1977 was much drier. 1978 and future years could be drier yet.

The great aqueducts—the water lifelines that sustain Southern California's economy and its quality of life—are either drying up at their sources or lack the pumping ca-pacity to slake the Southland's

The California Aqueduct that siphons water south from Central valley reservoirs has been shut down at the Tehachapis. Water from the Owens Valley Aqueduct to the northeast has been diminished by low runoff from the eastern Sierra and court challenges.

The Colorado River Aqueduct is running full tilt and can't supply enough water to make up for other water losses. What's more, Southland groundwater supplies are already overtapped and will be endangered if heavy use continues for two or three more years.

There's even been less runoff from local mountains.

Meanwhile, the drought toll in the north continues to mount, serving as a harbinger of what could happen here:

The Heich Heichy Reservoir at Yosemite, the main water source for San Francisco, is down to 6 per cent of its normal capacity.

-The Sierra snewpacks that provide water for both the south and north in California contain only a tiny fraction of the usual amount of snow —Total rainfall in key northern watersheds is down to 5 to 15 per cent of normal, compared to 20 to 24 per cent of normal in the state's worst drought year of 1924.

-More than half California's counties have been declared disaster areas. Livestock ranchers are selling off their herds.

—Prices of California grown crops are bound to rise sharply as farmers plant less and harvest less.

-The drought may even cause hrown-outs in some parts of the state, for there's hardly enough water behind dams such as the state's Oroville facility to generate electricity...

Gov. Brown said last month that the drought was already the worst in the state's recorded

And water officials in the last few weeks have begun basing their future assumptions on an even grimmer future.

"If the drought continues into 1978, Southern California is going to be in really serious shape," said Everett Asticford, a state Water Resources Department engineer. "The realization is beginning to set in that we better assume that the drought will continue."

Soviets pour arms into Mozambique

EXCLUSIVE

By Bernard Weinraub

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has sent sizable shipments of antiaircraft weapons and artillery to Mozambique in recent weeks, according to U.S. intelligence analysts.

The arrival of weapons in Mozambique is viewed as significant because the arms have the potential of neutralizing Rhodesian air power and thwarting retaliatory strikes into guerrilla sanctuaries along the Mozambique border.

Although Russian antiaircraft guns and artillary

Although Russian antiaircraft guns and artillery began moving into Mozambique about three months ago, the quantity of shipments has picked up in recent weeks, sources said. The last shipment was sighted less than two weeks ago as it was being unloaded in the port capital of Maputo.

Sources said that the weapons arriving by ship into Mozambique include SAM7s, a shoulder-fired antial craft missile, 122 millimeter howitzers, as well as T34 tanks and AK47 assault rifles.

Intelligence officials said that the exact quantitles of Soviet weapons arriving in Maputo remained unclear, but that there had been numerous sightings in recent weeks of ships unloading arms.

"The ship pulls in, the docks close down, the ship workers are sent home and the military moves in," said one intelligence source.

Officials said that the shipments are part of a "major upgrading of Mozambique's defense capabilities," which have been skimpy, and are viewed as a Soviet effort to directly bolster Mozambique's military position in relation to neighboring Rhodesia.

With the Rhodesian air force potentially neutral-ized and unable to strike guerrilla sanctuaries within Mozambique, intelligence officials say that the morale and offensive capabilities of the Rhodesian army could suffer a serious setback. Over the past year, the Rhodesian armed forces have clearly held the

Doctor's 'Laetrile for guns' probed

WASHINGTON Federal officials are investigating allegations that a Georgia congress-mab who is also a physician used dying cancer patients to obtain untraceable-guns in return for treatment with the illegal drug Lactrile, Sources close to the investigations said the most controversial charge is that patients treated with Laetrile by Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., feared he would withdraw the drug unless they signed federal forms allowing him to buy guns using their names.

THE U.S. Atty. in Atlanta and the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms are investigat-ing McDonald following disclosures that he sold a gun to a man and bragged that the weapon could not be traced because the person who signed the federal permit had died of cancer, sources said.

Officials in both agencies confirmed investiga tions are under way, but refused to discuss details.

However, sources re-ported that some patients and relatives of deceased patients said they signed gun permits for McDonald because they feared he would stop their Laetrile treatments.

Before his election to Congress in 1974, McDon-ald was one of the few American sources of Laetrile, which has been ban-ned by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

ONE individual familiar with McDonald's Georgia practice said many pa-tients learned of McDonald through John Birch Society publications. McDonald has been an officer of the organization.

John Rees, a member of McDonald's stall, said the congressmanadministered Laetrile because he thought the FDA ban in-fringed on human rights.

Rees and another mem-ber of McDonald's staff, Herbert Rumstein, said allegations that McDonald would withhold a drug from a patient were "outrageous." McDonald McDonald has refused to discuss the case despite repeated queries, including submis-sion of a written list of questions.

"Anyone who knows Congressman McDonald or has dealt with him knows that he is not capable of coercing anyone," Rumstein said. "He is a believer in individual free-dom and the dignity of the individual human.

McDONALD'S spokesman said the congressman has written to the U.S. Atty, in Atlanta charging that a "media smeet" is depriving him of his civil rights.

But a source familiar with the allegations against McDonald said:

"They this patients) were terrified not to sign. You go into a man who is dying go into a man who is typing and who knows you are breaking the law by popping him full of apricots (Laetrile) and you ask him to do you a little favor. TUCSON (AP) — Tucson police continued their search for a late-model van believed to have been used by several people who gunned down the warlord" for a motorcycle club.

Police theorized the shooting of Robert "Shorty" Little was carried out as part of a feud with a Tueson motorcycle club, the Devil's Disciples.

Little was gunned down at about 11 a.m. Friday at the motorevele shop, The his motorcycle shop, The Bent Rim. Police said a van carrying several per-sons drove up behind the shop and Little, who was in a back room, was hit seven times by bullets fired from a gun held at close range.

Government sources said the current investigation includes obtaining lists of patients McDonald treated from two Atlanta hospitals. Agents began checking signatures on these patients' admission forms with signatures on 4473 forms to determine whether the gans were purchased for McDonald.

SEVERAL witnesses came forward after the first disclosure of the investigation.
McDonald, who is from

Marietta and represents Georgia's 7th Congressional District, has raised campaign funds through the Lactrile treatments. One of McDonald's close associates has treated patients with Lactrile and then asked them to make a contribution, according to news reports during the

Truck found, $80,000 in loot missing

CHICAGO (AP) - An armored truck missing since Friday after picking up $80,000 in coins and currency from toll plazas was recovered Saturday with the money gone and the driver tied up inside.

An anonymous tele-phone caller told police where to find the vehicle, ending a massive search by federal, state and county authorities using squad cars and helicop-

The truck was found be hind a garage on Chica-go's northwest side not far from the downtown dis-trict. The driver, Darko Kucan, 27, was unharmed. He had a ski mask over his head so he could not see. The truck's keys were in the ignition. The truck had contained $30,000 in coins, some in rolls and some in bags, weighing 1.5 tons, and $50,000 in currency.

Kucan, an employe of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority for two years.

Authority for two years, told police he was leaving the tollway in Rosemont, a suburb northwest of Chicago, when a car be-hind him began flashing its lights.

Kucan said he pulled over to the side of the road and got out of the truck. He said two men approached him and forced him into their car and tied him up. What happened after that was not clear. Police continued questioning Kucan, who said he could not identify the two men nor the car.

Blood tests not available to scientists at the time of the epidemic show that at least 16 per cent and per-haps as many as 40 per cent of the 61 employes tested may have been immune through previous exposure.

Even the lower of the two figures — 16 per cent — is remarkable, because Legionnaires' disease struck only 4 per cent of the Legionnaires attending the convention, a fact that was difficult to believe and even more difficult to

SO IT turned out that, even though only one em-ploye got sick during the epidemic, the disease was four times more common among workers than among conventioners. Why?

bays and weeks were spent on that question. It was important to know when the employes were sick, but a simple blood test cannot reveal that. All the test can show is that at some time in the past, the subject was infected by this particular

One explaination proposed by epidemiologists was that the employes got sick at about the time of the epidemic, but for un-known reasons they had a milder illness than the Legionnaires and thought nothing of it.

This seems a remote possibility, though.

Because the epidemic generated so much pub-licity, it is unlikely that any employe would have come down with even a mild respiratory illness without recognizing the possible significance.

MORE likely, the employes were infected months or years earlier, brushed the illness off as a bad cold — though some might even have died and gave no thought to it when Legionnaires' disease broke out. By then. they were immune.

Dr. David Fraser, in charge of the CDC investigation, considers that an attractive hypothesis to explain why employes with positive blood tests do not seem to have come down with the disease during the epidemic.

Dr. Robert Sharrar, who is heading the Philawho is neating the rinia delphia investigation, is also intrigued by the hypothesis but does not think it is the full explanation.

Even if 16 per cent were immune, he said, that does not explain why those with negative blood tests (those who were not immune) did not get the disease when the Legionnaires did.

IF HE would discount the hypothesis, how then would he explain the positive tests among the 16 per

"I have thought about Dr. Sharrar said. have thought about it. I have thought about it. And I still don't know how it could have happened."

Is it possible that the bug has been around Philadelphia or near the Bellevue Stratford for years and that the people living and working in the area slowly built up immunity after getting incon-spicuously sick?

It seems far-fetched, but not so much that pub-lic health officials are not checking it out. Dr. Sharrar has several blood samples from people who work near the Belle-vue Stratford to see whether, like the hotel employes, they are immune to the disease.

It has already been proved that Legionnaires' disease was not caused by a biological fluke — like the emergence of a mutated bug that is now gone forever.

IT SEEMS, in fact, that there are isolated cases of the disease all over the October in Indiana. Legionnaires disease was also the cause of the two major epidemic mysteries in the CDCfiles—the 1968 Pontiac, Mich., outbreak in which 141 persons were ill, and the 1966 epidemic at St. Elizabeth Hospital in the District of Columbia, in which 16 patients were killed and 91 were sick.

DRS. Fraser and Shar-rar are now convinced that the bug was transmitted through the air because it struck several people who never entered people who never entered the hotel and only came within a block of it. This again was proved by the McDade test, which showed evidence of the bug in their blood.

There is other intriguing evidence to support the airborne theory, from the Pontiac epidemic. CDC epidemiologists had exposed laboratory guinea pigs to air from the airconditioning units in the public-health building where the epidemic occur-

Some of the animals subsequently died, but the laboratory people at that time could not find the cause. Tissue from the animals was frozen and stored. Now that the Le-gionnaires' disease bug has been identified, the CDC has rechecked the tissue. Dr. Fraser refused to say what had been found because the data

Oilmen applaud, ecologists weep as tanker makes it

By Mary Neiswender Staff Writer

VALDEZ, Alaska—Oilmen applauded. Ecologists cried. But as the giant ARCO Fairbanks cut through the wind-whipped, gray-green waters of the Valdez Narrows— elect and snow covering her decks—to berth at one of five oil docks for the first time, the die was cast.

And the die is black.

Black like oil. There had been doubtfor a time—that the 120,000-ton computerized tanker could make the run into Valdez, thereby stalling plans of oilmen to take billions of barrels of oil from the Alaskan North Slope down the 800-mile. $8-billion pipeline to the Valdez tanker terminal.

Wednesday, with 42 tanker skippers aboard, all veterans of oil transportation, along with Alaskan port pilots, there was little room for error.

And there were no errors.

The 883-foot vessel—almost three football fields in length—glided past seals basking on ice at the foot of the giant Colombia Glacier and slipped easily through the Valdez Narrays diversing both Midrows, dwarfing both Mid-dle Rock and the hopes of ecologists that it couldn't make it.

It maneuvered easily into the dock, past construction crews pressing to complete the terminal and docks before the mid-summer date for the oil flow to begin.

There are still fears, expressed by ecologists, that tankers will not be able to rip the area constantly.

Oilmen say winds hit only 75 mph and the 200 mph figure is fantasy. Wayne Callan, a cruise skipper and 15 year resident of Valdez, says the truth lies somewhere in between.

"I've seen gusts-not winds, just gusts—up to 125 miles per hour in Valdez." he says, "and you wouldn't want to go on the water in that. But there are few days like that . . . any other time, I'm out in it."

Tankers, however, will not navigate the narrows south from Valdez if winds exceed 50 mph, oil industry spokesmen say. With this, other safety restrictions and sophisticated navagiational and radar equipment both on the tankers and ashore, the 30-mile trip down the Valdez arm is no problem, they Fourteen round trips were made through the sound, south of the Valdez Nar-TOWS.

The final two weeks will include passage through the narrows into the port of Valdez, with tugging and docking maneuvers.

Although oil officials said they were not worried, all seemed to hold their breath as the first trip through the 900-yard narrows began.

Recombinant DNA re-search is a highly contro-versial new scientific specialty involving the manipulation of genetic materials of a cell from one species to another, thereby altering transmitted characteristics.

Critics fear the process could create new microorganisms barmful to man. Proponents argue that it is useful for research into genetics and cancer, and that cells could be altered to pro-duce such needed substances as insulin or increased amounts of antibiotics.

"There are many medical and scientific institutions in the city where this type of research is being carried on," said Dr. Pascal Imperato, commissioner of health. Their potential for causing serious human illness if improperly handied cannot be ignor-

After a storm of public protests this past winter about plans by Harvard University and the Massachussetts Institute of Technology to conduct recombinant DNA experiments, the city council in Cambridge, Mass., held a series of hearings before voting to permit the experiments.

Under the regulations proposed for New York, the type of organism in-volved and the objectives of the study, the names of sponsors and funders, the location of laboratories, storage places and transportation plans and precautions taken against biological hazards in-volved would have to be registered with the city.

Brown University in Providence, R.I., announced Thursday that it was constructing a "bio-logically secure" labora-tory for DNA experiments. Authorities said there had ecn no protests against the plan as yet.

Soviet fishing trawlers host U.S. 'watchdogs'

FALMOUTH, Mass. Par from bome on the North Atlantic, eight Americans are living among Russian fishermen aboard Soviet trawlers.

The seven men and one woman are federal emwoman are federal em-ployes assigned to learn first hand how foreigners are working the waters claimed by the U.S. under the 200-mile limit. "They are our watch-dogs," said James Medei-ros, field director of the new venture for the Na-tional Marine Fisheries Service.

On April 11, a Coast Guard tugboat rendervoused a few miles off the Massachusetts coast with two Soviet fishing vessels. The Americans climbed aboard to be taken to the fishing grounds 130 miles southeast of Nantucket Is-

There the eight Americans split up, each going alone to live on a trawler in the Soviet fleet until the Coast Guard picks them

The trawlers, ranging in length from 180 to 300 feet, are like floating factories, catching fish, cleaning and freezing them and grind-ing up the leftovers as "The Soviet ships are large and relatively com-fortable," said Medeiros. "Our people have their own staterooms. They eat their meals in the wardroom with the officers.

They'll be treated like VIPs. They are representatives of the U.S. government. The foreigners are motivated somewhat by fear, because they know we're checking for viola-tions. They call you 'Mr. Inspector.' I'm sure we'll have no problem with treatment."

Since the 200-mile limit went into effect in March, foreigners are still allowed to fish within U.S. waters. Seventeen foreign ships are now fishing for hake

The observers work 12-bour shifts. They dissect samples of the catch to determine age and feeding babits. This information will be used by federal biologists to help set next tractification of the set of the se year's fishing quotas. Observers also make sure the foreigners save only the allowed species, use proper equipment and keep accurate records. If they spot a serious viola-tion, they can call in a Coast Guard inspection team.

Medeiros expects that when the observers re-turn, their first complaint will be about the Russian

Cuba-U.S. relations thaw fast

WASHINGTON (AP) -A delegation of American businessmen who spent five days in Cuba returned home convinced they have made a major stride toward normal relations between the two countries.

One key participant. Harvey B. Mackay, who was invited to a four-hour meeting with President Fidel Castro, predicted that the LES community. that the U.S. government will at least partially lift its 16-year trade embargo against Cuba within two

Other developments that indicate rapidly im-proving relations between Cuba and the United States include the lifting by the administration of restrictions on travel by Americans to Cuba. President Carter also has said he would not veto a proposal in Congress to lift the trade embargo on ex-ports of food and medicine to Cuba.

Other members of the visiting group agreed with Mackay, who is vice president of the Greater Min-neapolis Chamber of Commerce.

ATTORNEY Cornell Moore said he was told that Cuba is prepared to send a major sports dele-gation to compete in the United States with college teams in basketball, baseball, swimming, fencing and boxing, contingent on approval by the U.S. governmenL

The trade delegation, composed of Minnesota businessmen, stopped here Saturday en route home. They were accompanied on the trip by about 25 reporters. It was the largest U.S. trade delegation to visit Cuba since the trade embargo was imposed. The entire delegation was wined and dined by the Cuban government as well as American businessmen are anywhere. They attended a baseball game and major night club, toured schools, a sugar mill and a cigar factory and were guests at two sumptuous banquets In the beginning they were told there could be no discussion of specific trade opportunities until the embargo is lifted. which left many wonder-ing whether they were wasting their time.

THE GROUP knew there was White House interest in the trip, since it had been cleared in ad-vance with Vice President Walter F. Mondale's of-fice, but they did not consider themselves as representing the U.S. government, nor did they have any assurance Castro would see them.

But Castro dramatically elevated the importance of the meetings in midweek by meeting with the group twice, first with all 52 members for 90 minutes Wednesday and then for four hours on Thursday with a smaller group of 16 he invited to his office in the Revolutionary Palace in downtown

Havana. Castro's message al both meetings was the same: Lift the embargo, and solutions to all other U.S. Cuban problems may

LWU era ends as Bridges steps down

By Les Ledbeller New York Times Service

SEATTLE — Harry Bridges gaveled to a close here Saturday the 22nd biennial convention of the international Lonshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, his last after 40 years as founder and presi-

The mood in the hotel hall was somber as delegates came to face the fact that the man who had led the ILWU since its independence in 1937 was actually retiring at 75, as he said he would two years ago, and that they must elect candidates to replace him and his long-time colleagues, William H. Clester, vice president and assistant to the president, and Louis Goldblatt, secretary-treasurer.

IN A LOW-KEY final session Saturday morning James R. Herman, 52, of Local 34 in San Francisco, and G. Johnny Parks, 55, of Local 8 in Portland, Ore., were nominated as the two presidential candidates to seek the voles of the 55,000 lLWU rank-and-file members during the next 50 days. Herman is the favorite, with strength in the large locals in California and Hawaii. Parks has strength in Oregon, Washington and Alaska and promises to fight hard to seek votes in his last formal address as head of the union, as in his last formal address as used to the minds, as strongly as ever about solving unemployment with a 30-hour work week, condemned the fact that "our national labor unions had the power to deny" en-trance into this country of Russian delegates to the convention and indicated that he would next "put together the power of the older people" in a drive for better treatment for people over 65.

Bridges, as lean and stiff-backed as ever, re ceived standing ovations before and after his opening address to the 451 delegates from Canada and the Western U.S. In his slight Australian accent he spoke.

BRIDGES, who in the last 40 years had led the West Coast longshoremen to break with organized labor over the principles of local autonomy and union democracy and molded a militant, effective organizademocracy and motded a minimal, effective organiza-tion able to withstand attacks from all levels of government, employers and other unions, also fos-tered a scrappy independence that made name-call-ing, booing, cheering and emotional rhetoric part of each debate here over policy statements supporting tuna fishing, the 30-hour work week, a South African boycott and other issues such as illegal aliens and discrimination. discrimination.

And many delegates continued to support the independent status of the union, a choice that has prevailed despite Bridges' repeated attempts to try to get the longeshoremen to rejoin the AFL-ClO in the interest of unity and effectiveness.

The disputes over policy indicated the problems facing those elected to take the union leadership as the union prepares for coast-wide bargaining next year, explores new organizing methods to expand its membership and faces the challenge of container ships and mechanization.

The approach of Herman and Parks to these problems will probably decide the union's presidential election after the two months of campaigning that will begin now that this convention is over.

'A-blast' widows sue U.S.

HARRY BRIDGES . . . Stops at 75

ANCHORAGE (AP) Widows of two workmen. at the site of a 1971 Am-chitka Island atomic test explosion have filed suit alleging the men died as a result of radiation.

The suit was filed Friday in U.S. District Court, according to the Anchorage Times. The suit alleges that the federal government's negligence resulted in the exposure.

David Miller, spokesman for the Energy and Research Development Administration (ERDA), said he could not comment on the case because it was in litigation.

The suit was filed by the widows of Nick G. Aleck and Gregorio Reveles. The suit says Beverly Aleck lives in Anchorage and Maria Reveles in Mexico.

Aleck died of leukemia and Reveles of cancer of the pancreas, according to the suit. Both were civil-ian laborers at the site. but the suit does not say when they were there.

THE HIGHLY controversial Amchitka blast. code-named Cannikan, was touched off Nov. 6, 1971, in a hole 5,875 feet deep below the barren is-land in the Aleutian Chain. The island is about 1,200 miles southwest of An-

Records show that Revelds died July 25, 1974, two years and nine months alter the test

The date of Aleck's death was not immediately available.

The suit does not ask a specific damage award. However, records indicate that Mrs. Aleck had asked for $2 million in an earlier out-of-court claim. That effort apparently is being dropped, and the plain-tiffs' lawyers are seeking to consolidate their cases.

The lawsuit does not detail the circumstances surrounding the alleged radiation exposure.

THE AMCHITKA blast was preceded by charges that it might trigger an earthquake or tidal wave. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, picketed the White House to protest the 5-megaton blast.

Chairman James Schlesinger of the Atomic Energy Commission, the ERDA's predecessor, was equally vehement in his support of the test. He is now President Carter's energy adviser.

Schlesinger took his wife and two daughters to the Amchitka command post — 23 miles from ground zero — to witness the test in a show of personal support.

In an 11th-hour decision, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to stop the test. Government reports called the test a success and said the explosion went off with only minimal environmental damage.

DETROIT (AP) - The outgoing president of the National Organization for Women cautioned Saturday against pursuing a feminist movement for women only.

"Beware a woman's culture... separatism is not the way to go," Karen DeCrow declared in her keynote speech at NOW's 10th annual national assembly meeting this weekend in Detroit.

"We are struggling because we live in a male separatist world. We don't want to replicate that mistake."

Ms. Decrow, president of the 54,000-member

"All states which have not ratified are controlled by the Democrats," Ms. DeCrow said. She called on President Carter to "help get women into the Constitution," declaring "human rights begins at home."

Ms. Decrow proposed that government contracts be taken away from states that have not ratified ERA, and that all federal funds to those states be cut off.

She also urged NOW members to begin economic boycotts of those states. "We're going to start advertising Take Your Vacation in a Ratified State"... they the states) aren't interested in women, but they are interested in money.

firm, immediate attention is required. After years of what they label "benign neglect," immigration officers say President Carter's simple attention to the problems represents something of a breakthrough.

Faced with high unemployment rates amid charges that illegal aliens have taken jobs away from millions of U.S. workers, the Carter administration is under considerable political pressure to curtail the flow of illegal migrants into this country.

AND, faced with accu-sations of widespread ex-ploitation and abuse of these people at a time when he is pressing human rights issues around the world, Carter feels morally bound, ac-cepting to some aides. BUTTONLESS jackets were the offering for suits previewed by Blackwell. This Anglo wool version is worn with matching cloche, has satin crepe lining and a silk tie front blouse in contrasting color.

From subdued to sensational and sexy best describe fall's new fashion looks pre-viewed recently in Los Angeles.

Contrasts in styles ranged from plunging necklines on clingy Jerseys, strapless jumpsuits and reversible V-necks to high necked, long-sleeved creations for daytime and evening. Fabrics were knits, jerseys and wool blends.

Also back on the fashion scene are colorful, artificial flowers used to accent pockets and suit lapels for daytime wear and large, floppy versions in bright hues decorating waistlines and plunging V-necks for evening.

The previews featured styles of the better ready-to-wear designers with offices in downtown Los Angeles. The day-long series of shows took place in the various designers' showrooms.

The star of the shows undoubtedly was Mr. Blackwell, who was his usual caustic self while describing his fall collection as "totally new, yet very Blackwell.

"I've discovered that there is nothing older than an old Blackwell. There's not one feather in this year's collection and very little beading."

He said the summer season was "de vasting" for most designers, and that he was starting his 20th year in the business by doing one show a year in the European market out of Munich. "And, the odds were I wouldn't last six months when I started. It just shows that an individual halter top to a low-cut style.

Two came with long sleeves and all were decorated with the artificial flowers for color accent. "Ninety per cent of my line has sleeves this year," pointed out Blackwell.

Calling evening clothes "vital to the woman's wardrobe," he previewed some daring and some not-so-daring styles. There was a see-through overblouse inlaid with glitter dots, a "provocative" red gown with plunging neckline and fringe, a strapless lame dress with one-arm stole and a black taffeta dress with ruffles that can be worn on or off the shoulder.

The option of wearing tops on or off shoulder was evident, too, in the collection

Fallaci in a writer's war on fascism

By Patricia de Luna Siap Piper diana Fallaci is an outspoken lfan journalist who has been hting fascists "all her life," fighting fascists "all her life," everywhere she finds them. And, as a journalist whose reputation is sufficient to garner her interviews with the heads of many countries, she has looked for fascists or hints of fascism in some of the highest placed.

Rolling Stone magazine praised Msz Fallaci as an artist skilled in unclothing the emperor. A writer from South America headling article on the journalist as an "injaryeew with a soldier."

Driana Fallaci was delighted with the soldier description. Latin with the soldier description. Latin Americans understand her, she says, and that understanding is hard to find in other interviewers.

During a recent round of scheduled appearances, Oriana Fallaci is tired, and after being interviewed by two women from Ms. magazine, just a little defensive. She acknowledges that only recently did she become a fighter in the women's mortanent.

She labels the two Ms. Maga-zing representatives "scientific

She labels the two Ms. Magazine? representatives "scientific femilities." Their first question was not hardinestion, she says, "it was a reprinch. It did not even have an interiogation point. It was a declaration period."

And she waves her hand emiliateally to demonstrate the straight of that period. "They came to me with all the fanaticism that is in them. You have come to feminism late, they say, I say, 'Yes. True. Absolutely.'"

She admits, "I was not aware of the problem of women before, but let's face it, I was fighting my own private battle. I was a guer-rilla fighter for myself. True.

"But if there were not women like me demonstrating that a woman can do it, not only as well as a man but better, which is important. The words are not mine but in order to be equal to men we have to be better than them, which is not equal.
"If there were not women like me, nothing would get started. Awarely or unawarely, we were those who started the whole thing.

"We are like the group of soldiers who go first to find the booby

Indignant at the Ms. accusations, Ms. Fallaci had demanded, "Do not come to me with your arrogance of philosophers of feminism. I was a labor worker of femin-

MS. FALLACI is the author of seven books, including one on the time she spent as one of the few female journalists in Vietnam entitled "Penelope at War," and her weil-known "Interview with

It was her latest book, "Letter to a Child Never Born," which set off the women from Ms. Magazine. Oriana Fallaci calls it a novel. Some who oppose it, see the book as a treatise on abortion. One New

Many readers guess that the monologue is based on her own experience. Not so, says Ms.

Fallaci disdainfully.
That would be cheap. It would become a journal, eh.

"That book has been in my iew years talking with women, you know. I've been talking with my mother." Her voice softens. "A lot. The story of the abortion of the woman who runs and the police are after her is the story of my mother.

"I have been pregnant. There are very few women, I think, that have not been pregnant. I lost my child. But I would never do a per-sonal story of this. I wanted to do something universal, something in which women could recognize themselves."

And she thinks she has suc-ceeded. The book, in which the main character faces the decision main character faces the decision of life and death, whether or not to allow a child to come into the world, whether or not the mother has the right to make the decision for the unborn, she calls "the apotheosis of doubt. It is the doubt of the doubts. To be or not to be."

She says, with some amaze-ment, that the book has been well received in Italy. "In Italy, where I have a tremendous audience, I say to myself, if I sell 50,000 copies, I must be very, very happy. In one year and a half, it has sold 600,000 copies and it continues. All alone. This is fantastic and I see it not among the intellectuals only, but the simple men, the porter at the station, the electrician. I have still to understand why. I don't know Author Studs Terkel found it a book on life and death and liked it, she says. "I also found a famous old intelligent politician who wrote to me that he identified with the woman. He said, 'to me this is a book about sorrow and I am that SITTING NOW in her suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Ms. Fallaci looks less the laborer worker for feminism and more the celebrity she is becoming. Each door on this seventh floor hallway is marked with the name of some famous time-honored movie star. ... Her door is the exception.

Marked on the outside of her posh two level suite is "The Ritz." Moreover, she had been met at the airport with what her press agent called a red carpet treatment.

Ms. Fallaci demurs that this is all too much for her. "In Latin America, where they know my story, they would not come to me as to a glamorous person."

She was "very hurt" she says; when a story in the New York Times marking the death of her Slover, Greek poet Alexander Panagoulis, had referred to her as his oglamorous companion. "My god." they understand nothing. How ill- y informed they are."

FORMER movie great Luise Rainier — Oscar-winning actress making a comeback.

Q: Now that Rod Stewart and Britt Ekland are lovebirds again; what became of Rod's former girlfriend. Dee Harrington?

A: Dee is cooing too, but not in Rod's ear. She is putting the fin-ishing touches to a book detailing her five years as Stewart's live-in-love. Scheduled for publication later this year, the book, she says, will make a few people cringe. None of which bothers Britt, who appears quite content to be taking up where Dee left off.

Q: Now that Don McLean is making a comeback, is he willing to say why he went into hiding?

A: In the words of his hit song, the composer of "American Pie" drove his Chevy to the levy and the levy was dry. Depressed at the reception of his later albums. McLean holed up in a country house on the bank of the Hudson River. "I just didn't have anything left," he recalls. "I didn't have to crack any social barriers and I wasn't interested in singing at the White House, so I just sat at home and watched the sun go down." The 31-year-old composer has just finished writing the score for "Fraternity Row."

Q: What has happened to David Cassidy? Not long ago, he was everywhere — now we hardly ever see him.

A: The one-time idol of the Acne Generation has himself been hit with a bad attack of skin problems — the result, say doctors, or nervous tension arising from his fight to quit the drug scene and his grief over the death of his father, Jack Cassidy, in a fire. Love, however, appears to have cured what the doctors couldn't since his romance with "Rich Man, Poor Man" star Kay Lenz. his features have resumed the boylsh good looks that once traumatized the teenyboppers.

Q: With all the smog and pollution, is our life expectancy continuing to rise or is it at a standstill?

A: The death rate for 1975, lowest in the nation's history, was body 8.9 per 1,000 persons, largely because of a decline in deaths from beart disease, strokes and accidents. The average life ex-pectancy for all Americans has now reached a 72.5 years.

Q: Is it true that the great '30s star Luise Rainer is planning a comeback.

A: Rather than planning her own comeback, one is being planned for her by actor-turned-author Thomas ("Lady") Tryon, who is writing a screenplay for the lady. now aged 66. Tryon has long been a Rainer fan, and would like nothing more than to see the star, who won a 1937 Oscar for "The Good Earth," return to films after a 30year absence.

"Not that I am used to living in a poor way. I am not poor. But I live in a very simple decent way. I am a good person. I am a woman who has passed the last eight reaths of her life nursing her mother, who is dying of cancer.

"I was writing the book and jumping to her to clean her..."

THIS IS HER first attempt at promoting a book. "It doesn't belong to my temperament. The reason I did it this time is I was on the edge: I was losing my mind." The pressures of caring for her mother and losing her man were too much.

'I couldn't bear it anymore. I said I would do anything they (the publishers, Simon and Schuster) want. They want me to go to Chicago. They want me to go here, I go here. Anything, anything" to get away from what she was doing.

"But already I am annoyed by it. Very rarely do I happen to find a person who understands who I am or with whom I can talk.

So, what is it like to be me? It is to live in a world in a way that you would like to live. It is like being a soldier. It is that I fight: I being a soldier. It is that I fight: I struggle, anything that I do. Nothing comes to me as a gift that falls from heaven on my head."

Oriana Fallaci is a liberal socialist. "And everybody knows it."
She talks about the dialectic process of philosophy — thesis, antithesis and synthesis. "I am so completely liberal," she says, "I believe so much in freedom and in the freedom of the artist. And even when I believe strongly in one thing, I can't help but see the contrary of it.

"And the more I grow the more doubts I have. All the others have a point which is right. They all have something that you have to consider shout.

"Did I? Eh. It means that in September, 1965, I beleived that. And you want me to be still in 1965, September? Many things have changed. I have changed. Many things have happened in my life. I would be an idiot if I had been still there in 1965.

Her collection also starred the strap-less jumpsuit with overjacket, dresses with tie-front drapes ("the front drape is a good way to hide the tummy.")

BELTS, POCKETS, full skirts, flounces, ruffles, blouson tops, elastic waistbands and full-legged trousers were common denominators in most of the col-

Softness makes the designs "packable and good for travel.

Scarves are still prominent on the fashion scene. They were shown often with daytime dresses, and for evening, many were long, lowing versions that could be worn as a shawl or headwrap.

THE CAFTAN is still around for at-home entertaining. This brown print version with matching turban is from Mr. Blackwell's fall collection, previewed in Los Angeles recently.

Also featured were dresses with nó-waist styles and self-tie belts, designed to be worn with or without the belt.

At Dattilo's preview, Terry Fry noted that pants "will always be a part of fashion" and Mr. Blackwell commented, "I've never objected to pants, only when they were used in place of skirts." The numbers of pantsuits shown was minimal, however, and pantsuits among the audience were fewer than in previous years.

Dattilo's collection featured coatdresses, smock jackets, tunic tops and reversible tweeds. His clothes had the from pastel blues, greens and roses to a bright oriental red and jade green, includ-ing what Ms. Fry called the "ugly color of the year" — elephant ear, which is a cross between brown and gray.

There was one long sheath dress with a hood, which could be turned around and worn in the front.

HELEN BASS showed dinner suits and jersey dresses with hand beading in short and long versions. Her new feature was the removable scarf collar which was worn on a jewel neckline dress of acrylic-wool

The costume look of the coat and dress was hig in the A & O Couture collection, which also featured combinations of onepiece dresses with angora tops and silk

The new look in pants, as shown by A & O, featured high, elasticized tie waist, and loose leg trouser. Vests were popular, some sleeveless over long sleeved dresses. Bow-tie blouses or rolled collars were the norm here.

Jill Richards had one dress of taffeta and old face and A & O featured crepe de chine face, poly chiffon face and a bro-caded crepe de chine. There was even a return of the spagnetti-strap dress.

To sum up the fail fashion scene shown by West Coast designers, it's a return to classic lines and traditional looks with a splash of the contemporary. And elegance.

METALLIC THREADS highlight this black taffeta evening gown from the Blackwell collection. The flounced hem and pully sleeves are two of fall's new styles. The elaxricized top allows for on or off-shoulder wear.

But this spring, feeling was running high among Cornell's 250 Negroes. They wanted the black studies program to be a separate college run entirely by blacks. They wanted amnesty for seven blacks who had rampaged through the administration building the previous December.

decided to discipline three of the December protestors and after someone burned a cross in front of the Negro coed dorm.

Came April 19, Parents Weekend. At 6 a.m. Saturday, 120 blacks seized the student union, Willard Straight Hall, rousted out 30 sleeping parents and seized the campus radio station to broadcast protests about Cornell's "racist attitudes."

The Formula

Death for picnic pests

Have you ever won-dered, as I have, what possible good can come from pests that seem to to the pess that seem to serve no purpose other than to annoy us? The common rat is a good example. Why are they here? What good do they do? None that I know of.

They contaminate and destroy, causing billions of dollars of damage each year. But I also wonder this: If by a magic formula all rats could be destroyed, would we then discover the reason for them being put ere in the first place? Your guess is as good as mine.

But to the subject of ants: I'm not smart enough to know why they're here, but I prefer to not have them devour my garden, so here's a formula that I use to repel them and send them on their way.

Methadone relieves withdrawal cravings in addicts, permitting them to hold jobs and lead relatively normal lives. It lacks the mind-altering effects

Stringent controls imposed on methadone by the Food and Drug Administration to curb illicit use have had the effect of creating a government monopoly of treatment facilities, the doctors say.

The doctors add:

There are now more addicts on the street using methadone illicitly on an occasional or regular basis than there are patients in these facilities."

The present problem stems from the failure of any effective treatment program to reach the majority of the addicts, they say.

Spinal injuries

Promising new research involving injured spinal cords has been conducted by scientists in the Soviet Union.

In experiments with laboratory rats, trypsin and several other enzymes were administered to animals whose spinal cords had been cut. Forty per cent of the rats recovered from their paralysis and walked.

It took Dr. Levon A. Matinian 20 years to find the right enzymes which would block the formation of scar tissue and allow the severed nerves to regenerate. Dr. Matinian is affiliated with the Orbeli Physiology Institute in Yerevan, Armenia.

Trials with humans have not yet been conducted, according to the Na-tional Society for Medical Research.

Going to the hospital is almost always an unsettling experience, and this is cer-tainly true for a child. Judging from the experience in my own family. I suspect there are few families which do not at some time have a child go to the hospital for an operation or a serious illness.

What can the parent do to help a child? Part of the problem is appreciating the experience from the child's point of view. Every child has some anxiety in living in the land of the giants (adults), and this anxiety can be markedly increased in the strange and unfamiliar world of the hospican evoke an overwhelming and some-times intractable terror.

No matter how much reassurance is given that the shot is "going to help you," the child has trouble fully understanding it. More than one child has fantasized revenge in growing up and sticking others as he was stuck.

M8. SHERIDAN also cites other worries of children in the hospital. Sometimes the child believes that the illness is his or her fault. If the child is facing surgery, he may see it as an assault or mutilation about which be has no say.

The child may wonder if the hospital can really help. This may be especially true for youngsters who have a chronic illness. Children can tell fairly quickly, too, that the hospital is organized for the convenience of the staff and not the patients.

Of course, all may not be bad about going to the hospital. It can be a time of special attention, when one receives sympathy from all the family and is the center of family concern.

can you do to help your child? First, since separation can be difficult for a young separation can be minimit for a young child, plan to be with your child in the initial period of hospitalization. Most hospital pediatric wards try to accommodate parents, so the child can be reassured by the presence of a familiar figure.

Second, get a grip on your own feelings. If you are anxious and wosried, your child will be doubly so. Indeed, if you are child will be doubly so. Indeed, if you are overly anxious, you may complicate your child's adjustment to the hospital, and the staff may have to ask you to leave.

Third, you need to understand what is happening and share what information you can with your child. Explain what is happening, and when you are not sure, ask the doctor or hospital staff to explain.

FINALLY, listen to your child; sense where he or she is at. Encourage a sharing of feelings, and of fantasies. Anticipalle troubled feelings, and even if you cannot do anything to relieve the feelings, respect

One-week drive to begin

This week only, persons hoping to see such attractions as the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble, Danny Daniels Dance America show and duo-pianists Veri and Jamanis will have the opportunity to purchase subscriptions to the Long Beach Community Concert Association's 1977-78 season.

Customarily, Community Con-cert membership campaigns are brief. Headquarters through this week's campaign Monday through Saturday is The Pacer Realtor, 3116 E. Seventh St., Suite 1. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Arthur L. Arnold (Dorothy Henry), 2445 Monogram Ave.

As a bonus, new subscribers will be entitled to attend the George Shearing concert on May 7.

ALL CONCERTS take place at Millikan High School auditorium, 2800 Snowden Ave. The series of concerts, which are given from autumn through spring, is $12 for adults and $6 for students. A family plan, which will admit two adults and several children in the same family, costs $30.

Season ticket holders for the Long Beach concerts have reciprocity privileges in surrounding cities' Community Concert series and may attend them free.

No tickets to individual concerts will be sold and admission to concerts is by membership card

Depending on the size of the membership and funds available, more than the three guaranteed concerts may be offered.

Calling upon their impressive musical backgrounds, members of the New York Vocal Arts Ensemble achieve a cohesive and moving interpretation of music in which all contribute equally. The ensemble has performed in the United States and Europe since 1971.

Danny Daniels, choreographer Danny Daniels, choreographer and dancer of Broadway, films and television, formed his 12-member Los Angeles based company to lead the resurgence of tap dancing and present it as an essentially Ameri-can dance form.

history of tap dancing in this country and shows its development from several other forms of dance including the Irish jig. traditional British clog dances and the strong influence of black rhythms in this idlom.

Purpose of Dance America is to develop and preserve tap dancing in the American vernacular in much the same manner as Igor Moiseyev has made the folk idiom of Russian dancing a permanent part of the dance scene. Music for dancing of the company is all by American composers.

Frances Veri and Michael Jamanis met as scholarship students at Juilliard School, married and became a professional duopiano team.

They present both the classics and contemporary works.

They have recorded several albums and in 1973 combined their lalents with actor Hans Conried in "Carnival of Animals" broadcast nationally over Public Broadcasting System.

Lamplighters coming

For the first time in their 25-year history, The Lamplighters of San Francisco will bring their Gilbert and Sullivan season to Los Angeles audiences.

Opening production will be "The Pirates of Penzance" Saturday at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and next Sunday at 2 p.m. Performances will be presented at the Pazadona Civic Auditorium the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

Later in the season at the Pasadena Civic, the troupe will present "The Mikado" Aug. 13 and 14 and "The Sorcerer," Oct. 29 and 30.

CLASSICS AND contemporary music by Veri and Jamanis will entertain Community Concerts audiences.

Ralph and Tony Madrigal are the top chefs at Cigo's seafood speciality restaurant, Pacific Avenue at Ninth Street, San Pedro. Owned by fish connoisseur Emmett Parson's, Cigo's features an immense variety of sea delicacies, including freshly caught fish, in season. The many-course dinners start at $3.95 for fresh red snapper or white sea bass, caught in the cool waters off Northern California and Oregon.

in the cool waters off Northern California and Oregon.

People drive to Cigo's from nearly everywhere in Los Angeles and Orange counties because they know it has exotic seafoods which can't be found in other ocean speciality restaurants. Cigo's two gourmet fish dinners feature such exotic appelliers as deep-fried baby river smelt and squid. "San Pedro people have aiways loved those items," says Emmett, "but now they're appreciated just as much by people from other towns. They really love that deep-fried squid, because the flavor Is out of this world!"

The Mermaid gourmet fish dinner, $6.95, includes the baby smelt, squid, octoput salad deliciously unfishy); sauteed abalone chips, cracked chilled crab and steamed clams in an epicurean broth. The Fisherman gourmet fish dinner, $7.95, includes the smelt, squid, octopus salad, cracked crab, steamed clams and a combination plate of grilled fresh fish, deep-fried shrimp, oyster, scallop and grilled geoduck, the giant clam similar to abalone. Both dinners also include hot garlic toast. The flavor contrasts are wonderful because Tony and Ralph are veteran chefs with great seafood expertise.

Open for luncheon, dinner, cocktails and banquets, Cigo's features steaks, prime rib au jus and such ocean choices as scampl, cioppino fish stew, Mexican cabrilla, a fine whitefish; excellent sword-fish steak, sand dabs. broiled squid, fried shrimp, abalone steak, baby scallops, fried oysters, shrimp and crab cocktails, shrimp and crab Louie salads and many more. The dinners start at $3.50 for mostaccioli pasta with meatballs. All the dinners have numerous accompaniments, including antipasto of cheese and salamt, soup and salad, potatoes and cheesebread.

IN A MOTEL in faraway Denver, Colo., a man

IN A MOTEL in faraway Denver, Colo., a man and his wife discovered an ashtray that had been stolen from Tee Cee's restaurant and bar in Long Beach. The ashtray contained Tee Cee's slogan: "Home of the Famous Pupu Plate."

The words aroused their curiosity. They'd never heard of pupu before and wondered what it was. Recently they visited Long Beach on vacation. They dropped into Tee Cee's, ordered the pupu and loved every mouthful. They were so happy with their discovery they told night bartender Hutch Hutchinson the story of how the message on the stolen ashtray had brought them over 1,100 miles from Colorado to Long Beach.

had brought them over 1,100 miles from Colorado to Long Beach.

Pupu is a Polynesian word for tropical food. At Tee Cee's bar and dining room on Willow Street just west of Atlantic Avenue, the pupu plate contains a fascinating variety of teriyaki steak tidbits on skewers, a shrimp cocktail, fried shrimp, egg roll, fried rice and barbecue rib. It's served on the dinner with soup or a large fresh salad and hot garlic bread. It's $4.50 regularly. But if you dine early at Tee Cee's you'll find that the pupu is on special every night from 5:30 to 7:30 for $3.50.

Tee Cee's (closed Sundays) is owned by Tommy (Tee Cee) Young and his wife Jeane, a charmer from Mississippi who has a soft southern accent. Their staff includes day chef Bob Pagay, night chef Ron Bartels, day bartender Ferrel Gray and the nightly entertainer, Ernie Woodruff, at the piano-bar. Ernie is one-of-a-kind, a crowd favorite because of his knack for doing such old pop hits as "Ace in the Hole" and "Am I Blue?"

The menus at Tee Cee's carry this message: "SPECIAL OF THE DAY???? ASK YOUR WAIT. RESS." It pays to ask, because throughout the week, at luncheon and dinner, Tee Cee's features some very worthwhile, very delicious, inexpensive specials. On Monday and Tuesday nights, the special is tender, juicy, savory prime rib, $3.95 on the dinner. On Wednesday and Thursday nights, the special is the lobster dinner, $4.95, and if you've price lobster lately you know that's another "best buy." The Friday night, the treat is a handsome porterhouse steak, $3.95 on the dinner.

At lunch time, Tee Cee's draws enthusiastic day night, the treat is a handsome porterhouse steak, $3.95 on the dinner.

At lunch time, Tee Cee's draws enthusiastic patrons because of Bob's specials which change every day. The Tuesday attraction is always prime rib, $3; the Thursday attraction is always teriyabi steak, $3. Other luncheon appetite-brighteners include the pupu plate, $3; Polynesian special, $2.35; hot or cold sandwiches and interesting salads.

For dessert be sure to have Tee Cee's custommade Teaberry ice cream, 50 cents. Definitely different; definitely delicious.

Stay Slim for Good earn to leave a little

and E. Ann Sutherland, Ph. D.

You are now ready to take on a task which may well be the hardest thing in the whole program.

At each and every meal (not snacks) you now must leave something on your plate: something of each item of food, no matter how small, even if it's only one bite of meat, one teaspoon of potalo, one string bean. You must leave something.

If you are a typical problem eater, you will almost certainly always clean up your plate. You have always eaten everything on your plate for so long as you can remember. You were taught to do this for the sake of the starving children in China, or India, or Africa, or Armenia, or down the block.

What exactly did you learn? You learned that you couldn't possibly be "full" until you'd eaten everything that was put in front of you, that an empty plate meant a full stomach. You learned to feel ashamed and guilty if you didn't clean up your plate. And perhaps you still feel that way.

There are two problems with this. First, there is the moral stigma and emotional turmoil that you're likely to feel when you don't finish your food. Second, there is an eating pattern enforced by such feelings and expressed in the firmly rooted habit of finishing up everything in sight. It's really only a small step from cleaning up your plate to devouring a whole box of chocolates or a whole package of cookies.

What we're talking about here, in fact, is a pattern of addictive behavior. It's exactly like the alcoholic who tells you "Once I start a bottle, I can't stop until it's finished."

YOU CAN STOP. You can learn how to call a halt. Just as you've learned to eat at regular times, stop until it's finished."

YOU CAN STOP. You can learn how to call a halt. Just as you've learned to eat at regular times, and to eat more slowly, you can learn to shake off the guilt and ignore the tension in order to leave something on your plate. You should feel guilty if you don't leave something on your plate.

Forget, just for the moment, about the starving children in India. Eating everything in sight will hardly help them. You can't assuage your guilt by ruining your health. Do something positive for yourself first, and then think about other ways to help the self first, and then think about other ways to help the self it'st, and then think about outer ways to approximately the intention is not that you should go hungry. This is not a directive to eat less. It is an exercise designed to strengthen your own self-confrom, when faced with a plate of food in full view. You must learn to estimate how hungry you are, and then take much food as you think you need. as much food as you think you need.

Then add an extra spoonful of each item when you serve your meal so that you can leave that extra bit on your plate. When the meal is over, scrape that leftover food from your plate and into the garbage. Under no circumstances should you offer it to — or force it upon — anyone else at the table.

If you have problems with this task, you may have a powerfully overlearned need never to waste a scrap of food. If you do, you are coming up against one of the most firmly established components of your own problem eating pattern, and you may need more than one week in which to get it under control.

If you do experience problems with this phase, think about where your difficulty lies. If your problem is guilt, you must keep on trying until you master it.

REMEMBER this rule applies only for meals, not for snacks. But it applies for all meals, whether inside or outside your own household. If you're eating at a friend's house, don't concern yourself about questions of good and bad manners. If necessary, you may explain why you must leave something on your plate. However, according to eliquette books, it is in plate. However, according to requeste books, it is in fact good manners to leave something on your plate to indicate that you've been fed adequately.

Don't let anyone trip you up for any reason, well-intentioned or otherwise. Don't be influenced by the fact that you are a guest. Follow your own standards and be assertive.

To reconstitute complete this phase was will

To successfully complete this phase, you will need a daily Grand Total of less than 60 points on your six non-shopping days and less than 65 points on your shopping day: the seven days, once again, to your shopping day: the seven days, once again, to run consecutively.

The new scoring element appears once again in Total A, with Total B tand on shopping day, Total C) calculated exactly as before. The new column on the record sheet asks: "Have you left anything on your plate: YES or NO." (Remember that this applies only to meals — you can still finish your snacks).

You score 5 penalty points for each meal at which you failed to leave something on your plate, so there's a possibility of an extra 15 points that could appear in Total A.

Once again, if you're exceeding or getting close

Once again, if you're exceeding or getting close to the upper limit, look at your subtotals to see where you are going wrong. And if the problem is in Total A, find the subsection where you're piling up the points and concentrate your efforts on tightening it

The glory of Scotland will be on parade at the international Gathering of the Clans. Robertsons, Mac-Donalds, Munros and MacIvers will dust off the kilts, practice the pipes and prepare to grandly march down Princes Street.

The celebration will actually last two weeks, with the first week beginning this Friday centering on Edinburgh, and the second week's activities dispersing to the home areas of the individual clans. Clan Donald, for example, will move fes-tivities to the Isle of Skyc following the Edinburgh events.

SCOTTISH officials are confident the event will attract up to 45,000 tourists, many of them Americans or Canadians

FLY AWE

Among main events planned during the first week in Edinburgh are a grand march, a fiddlers' rally, lectures on history and culture, exhibitions, golf tournaments, a Highland ball and Highland games. It has also been rumored that considerable amber liquid will make its unique contribution in pubs and at parties.

Perhaps one of the more moving moments will be the Church of Scotland's dawn service on Sunday. May 1, held on Arthur's Seat at 5:30 a.m. Arthur's Seat is a mountain at the edge of Edinburgh that holds an honored place in Scottish Ancestral-minded Americans should be forewarned that most Scots do not share their feelings of ancestor-worship. The average Scot will shrug his shoulders at what we hold in awe. If the principle that familiarity breeds contempt applies in this case, then remember clans are as everyday to the Scots as freeways are to us that Scots have made to the world, or simply likes bagpipe music. It's not necessary to belong to something to admire or enjoy it.

THE IMPORTANT thing is that Scottish history belongs to every-one who admires the contributions

Compounding this is the confusion that surrounds many American genealogies. Chances are great that somewhere along the way some Scottish blood has crept into the line. But being one eighth or one- sixteenth Scottish does not xactly put one in the center of the

Those interested in tracing their clan or sept (a sept is a family that served the main clan and thus is entitled to their tartan) should consult The Surnames of Scotland, by George F. Black, published by the New York Public Library, 1946. This book is commonly found in public libraries.

Because of the anticipated crowds, no tourist should visit Edinburgh without reservations. Gathering organizers have tentatively priced accommodations (without meals) in Edinburgh from about $50 for 5 days in small, unlicensed hotels, to about $150 in first DUBLIN, Ireland — Celtic culture, splendid scenery and proud people are the acknowledged assets of the Emerald Isle. The capital of the Irish Republic has more than its share of each category, not necessarily listed here in order of importance.

The scenery is urban, to be sure. The blue lakes of Killarney, the rugged Cliffs of Moher and the green mountains of Wicklow are out of view. But palmettoes and other sub-tropical vegelation sprout from planters on O'Connnell Street in the heart of the city, flowers festoon baskets hanging from bridges over the River Liffey and the fanlights of Dublin's Georgian doorways glow gorgeously in the gloaming.

Working in wood, stone, bronze, clay, sheet metal, fabric and occasionally in modern plastics where applicable; the Celtic artist describes his approach to any project in somewhat mystical terms.

"IT'S THE awe of the infinite," he explained during a stroll through the nearby National Gallery after lunch. "By that I mean each material must speak in its own voice. I'm only the interpreter.

"I also believe in mass producing designs so they can be made at a price people can pay, and to keep my 25 craftsmen working. I always have considered myself as a commercial artist."

As we passed a gigantic painting covering most of one wall, he paused in awe of the infinite canvas. The 19th century work depicted a royal wedding in a forest, with the complete original cast and incredible detail down to thorns on the thistles in the foreground.

"Would you look at that now?" he asked. "How do you suppose you start something like this? I can just see the artist standing here, charcoal stick in hand, ready to sketch it out."

He knelt to examine a leaf at the

Britain in miniature

Now you can see all of Britain's best tourist attractions on one 3½-acre site with never a sore look

You're not likely to suffer from sore neck, either. The tallest building, St. Paul's Cathedral, is only 16 feet high.

They're all concentrated at Christ Church, near Bournemouth, on Britain's south coast, in a Lilliputian outdoor museum called "Tucktonia."

Buckingham Palace, the Nelson column, old London Bridge, the Houses of Parliament, the fishing village of Polp-erro, the Old Curiosity Shoppe and hun-dreds of other attractions have been constructed in miniature with an obsessive attention to detail.

Tucktonia is sponsored by one of Britain's biggest breweries, Watney Mann, which expects more than a million visitors to the park this year.

APPROPRIATELY, the rest of the city depicts a "fine lady on a white borse," clothed in Tudor costume in commemoration of Queen Mary (1553-1558), who inaugurated the civic history of Banbury by granting it a charter of incorporation.

The Banbury cakes are known to have been made in the town as early at the beginning of the 17th cen-tury, and the "Original Cake Shop" in Parsons Street dates in part from an earlier period.

The bakehouse retains the old ovens, ancient oak beams, windows and low ceiling of the Tudor period, but modern equipment is used to produce today's cakes.

Incentive system pays off

DECAR ARBY: TO FED UP IN TEXAS hand objects to paying children for getting good grades in school: The idea of rewarding-good grades does have some merit because most children lack the maturity and foresight to realize the importance of working hard enough to get good grades.

When my son was a high school fresh-man, his grades were barely passing. He hated school and wanted to quit. Lecturing did no good. Discipline only made matters worse. Then on the advice of a friend I decided to try the "reward" method; nothing for a C, $1 for a B and $2 for an A. And an extra $5 if he made the honor roll.

For every "D" he lost a dollar, and for an "F" he lost two dollars.

The results were immediate. For his first report eard I paid him $1 — slightly above a "C" average. The following report eards showed steady improvement until he obtained a 3.8 average (A minus) in the first semester of his senior year. His atti-lude had changed, and he was actually enjoying school.

But the final payoff came in his last semester before graduation. We disposed of the report-card system; and I offered him a new car if he could make a 4.0 (straight-A) average for his final semester. Yes, he made it. He got his car and graduated with heart graduated with honors.

Some students get poor grades because they lack the incentive to work. All I did was provide the incentive, and it worked beautifully.

Walter O'Malley: Half Irish—all heart

Time Magazine once described Wal-ter O'Malley as "half Irish and all gall...

To white of other peoples' promises."

To which O'Halley might agree.

The which O'Halley might agree.

The wright is and he had the gall to offer Wrighey Field to the city of Los.

Angeles in exchange for 300 acres in an area loosely described as Chavez Ravine.

A sucker for other peoples' promises?

A sucker for other peoples' promis. There's room for debate on that point. Several sports writers were discussing the business acumen of Southland sports entrepreneurs recently. They arrived at the unanimous conclusion that if O Malley, the Rams' Carroll Rosenbloom and the Lakers' and Kings' Jack Kent Cooke were sent into a room to make a deal among them. Rosenbloom and Cooke would exit sans trousers.

O'Malley laughs at the suggestion. "All compliments are, gratefully accepted," says the 73-year-old Dodger board chairman, whose son, Peter, is president of the club BUT O'MALLEY is painfully conscious of his image — and that of the Dodgers.

During a conversation in his spacious and well appointed office in Dodger Stadium, O'Malley noted that draperies to windows overlooking the seating area were closed.

He walked over and opened them. "If I leave them closed, somebody is going to say. That fat, old Irishman is up there counting his money again."

O'Malley laughs, but it is laughter tinged with pain.

"I really don't sit here and count my money, you know."

He also is sensitive about charges that baseball commissioner Bowle Kuhn is his puppet.

"If that were so," he says, "some things might not be happening that are. I think the fact that-I've been actively involved in baseball for more than 25 years, that I've been on the executive council for a long time and that I've devoted my time entirely to the game leads some people to conclude that I have more power than I actually have. "If people want an opinion, I give it. But I rarely volunteer anything. Bowie Kuhn has vast experience in the law and baseball. I doubt that he'd ask advice unless needed."

O'MALLEY HAS a fetish about cleanliness at Dodger Stadium.

"Look out there now," he says, pointing to the seating area and the lush grass. "We probably have the best maintained stadium in the country.

"We hose down all the senting areas and runways after every game. The con-crete is as clean as the day they put it in nearly 20 years ago."

Loyalty is another matter of faith with O'Malley.
Waiter Aiston came to dinner and remained for 23 years as. Dodger manager, a remarkable tenure in these days of fact bucks and unich turnover.

Alfonso Zamora is on the ropes in the fourth round of Saturday's fight at the Forum, with Carlos Zarate standing by to trake sure his opponent stays down. Seconds later Zamora's father-manager threw in the towel, giving Zarate his 47th win in 47 fights.

Zarate's savage KO may scare off foes

By Rich Roberts Sill Wifer

Now that Carlos Zarate holds the only bantamweight champion-ship that counts, he may have fought himself out of a future.

Before the World Boxing Coun-cil tilligt battered Alfonso Zamora to the canvas in four rounds at the Foram Saturday afternoon, WBC featherweight champion Danny leatherweight champion Danny Loost had been offered $125,000 to defend against the winner of this battle of the unbeatens.

""I don't know if Danny will want to now," said promoter Don Fraser, who was as awed as the 13,996 spectators were by the savagery of Zarate's victory.

agery of Zarate's victory.

¿Zarate, admittedly hurt in the lifst round, said he was "com-first round, said he was "com-pletely numb and fighting on in-sthet! thereafter.

Leading with blows to the body, he plodded straight into the reputa-bly, harder punches of Zamora, broke through his opponent's guard, staggered him twice in the third, then knocked him to his knees at 2:30 of the round.

Zamora sald through a Spanish interpreter, "After the third round when he hit me with a left hook to the liver, I never recovered."

Early in the fourth he slumped down again to escape Zarate's attack, and when he fell a third time his father, Alfonso Sr., threw in a towel to end it at 1:11.

Then the elder Zamora charged across the ring to attack Zarate's manager, Cuyo Hernandez, who once managed his son. Earlier, in-truders twice had to be literally thrown out of the ring by helmeted inglewood policemen (Details in related story, Page S-3).

It was a bizarre afternoon of boxing, punctuated by the explosion of smuggled in fireworks that were as nothing compared to Zarate's fists, all giving the customers their ists, all giving the customers their money's worth. The gross gate was $357,440, and 3,500 other aficionados paid $35,000 to see it piped into the Anaheim Convention Center. The 25-year-old champion is now 47-0 with 46 knockouts, the highest KO percentage on record, although he was billed as the 'boxer" of the two with Zamora, 22, now 28-1, the slugger.

The scheduled distance for the non-title match was 10 rounds, but neither man was concerned with pacing himself. Zamora, 119%, who had knocked out everybody he ever fought, came out swinging from the rought, came out swining from the cls while Zarate, 119, upright and more stylish, proceeded with relative caution until stung.

Zarate claimed to recall little after the first round when Zamora glassed his eyes with a furious barrage to the head, but he became more effective when he took the battle to Zamora in the second.

IN THE third, Zarate drove Zamora into retreat, pounding the body until the guard came down, then homing in on the head. When the end came, Zamora was staring into space with empty eyes as referee Richard Steele helped him to his feet.

The season is just three weeks old but already Cey has surpassed his accomplishments of a year ago for the month of April when he hit only two homers and drove in just eight runs.

Ronnie has a great knowledge of the strike zone, he seldom swings at a bad pitch and he'll take those walks. That's what makes him an outstanding power

That, says Cey, and the fact the Dodgers have placed him in the No. 4 position in the batting order.

"I feel very comfortable there," he said, "and it's a big part of my attack to be followed in the order by Steve Garvey, Rick Monday and Dusty Baker. You have to be surrounded by the right players."

An example of this is the fact that Monday followed Cey's third-inning with one of his own, a towering shot to rightfield

Last year Cey batted fifth in the order, behind Cey and ahead of Bill Russell. As a result, he was pitched around, not because Rus-sell is an inferior hitter but because he is not inclined to drive the long ball. Cey hit 23 home runs in 1976, but 10 of them came with the bases empty. So far this season he's hit two with the bases empty, one with one on and one with two on base.

"I'm not knocking Walt (former manager Walter Alston) for batting me fifth," he said. "Please, under-stand that. I respected him, he managed the club the way he felt

ANGELS- Poly class of Gahr meet

By David Ferrell Staff Writer If meet officials had kept team scoring at the Gahr Invitational Relays Saturday, which they did not, then the Poly High Jackrabbits would have looked mighty good, which they did anyway.

With an impressive individual win by Mike Bradley in the 330 low hurdles and a string of strong relays, Poly overshadowed almost all its opponents in the night meet at a chilly Cerritos College.

Almost everybody, that is. Larry Jones of Kennedy Barstow, a team that would have given Poly a stiff challenge for a team title, literally came within an inch of setting two meet records in win-ning the high jump and long jump. With the absence of seven-foot jumper Dennis Smith of Santa Monica, Jones won the high jump at 6-9, breaking the old mark by one-half inch. He then missed a meet record by less than an inch in the long jump, winning at 23-3%.

Brad Harris of Los Alamitos

cleared 6-6 on his first attempt to take second in the high jump ahead of Renny Hanson of Poly, who cleared the same height.

Poly's Mike Bradley, running in lane nine, led a field of six runners under 40 seconds in the low hurdles by holding off Kennedy Barstow's Clyde Grady and Santa Monica's Tim Chambers in 38.0. Grady, sec-ond in 38.35, and Chambers (38.0) were under the old meet standard of 31.7.

After a brief battle with Rolling Hills in the eight-man mile relay. Poly ran away for another meet record when Joe Zahm came from behind to open a five-yard lead for Chris Neal and Michael Bradley.

Neal and Bradley stretched it yards farther and finished in 2:59.45, one second better than Rolling Hills, which held the previous record of 3:00.5.

Steve Alvarez of Coachella Valley and Steve Ortiz of Kennedy

Barstow locked up in a lengthy battle in the two-mile, leaving the pack by 70-yards, before Alvarez set one of the 12 total meet records with a 9:03.0 win.

Ortiz placed second in 9:05.6, also faster than the previous best.

Not every event lived up to its billing, though. The pole vault, in which all 11 qualified at 13-3 or better, went to Dave Pinto of Mark Indy, not enough money. But no one here is too happy about it," said one official. "If there are 87 cars around capable of running Indy, there ought to be enough to fill the field (22) here."

It isn't the fault of the organizers, including former Ontario (Calif.) Motor Speedway president

Jim Cook, who offer one of the largest purses ever, have spent a bundle of money fixing up and painting the aging speedway, and have worked hard to sell tickets. So far, the advance sale is one of the best in history. It helps, though, that among the 19 entries received there are Mario Andretti, making his first appearance here in three years, Johnny Rutherford, national champion Gordon Johncock and Roger McCluskey.

Andretti, who lives only a short distance from the speedway, and Rutherford took a back seat in practice Saturday to Andretti's teammate, Tom Sneva, winner at Texas two weeks ago, who had the Tully passed until 14-0, missed twice, got plenty of clearance within final try, then hit the crosshar on the way down. Sophomore Tim McIntyre of Los Alamitos, who like Pinto cleared 13-6 on his first attempt, finished second because of a miss at 13-0. Mark Bryant, who won the dis-cus for Antelope Valley at 180-4%. helped overshadow a strong double by Gahr's Greg McSeveney, who placed second in the disc at 1649 and third in the shotput at 55-10%.

Joe Staub of Cantwell won the shot with a throw of 58-94, while Marty Fuentes of Service was runner-up with a 56-10% tost.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — What happened to the other 71?

Entries were sent in for 87 cars, just short of an all-time record, for the May 29 Indianapolls 500. Practice begins for it in two weeks.

But Saturday, when practice opened for Sunday's $100,000 Trentonian 200 for Indianapolistype cars, only 16 cars were Among the missing were such notables as Al and Bobby Unser, and A.J. Fovt. What happened to them all?

as John does," Wilkins responded. "I'm basically in a discus competi-tion and I'm throwing against myself. I don't think I'm afraid to lose and I don't want to become afraid to lose. I don't want to get into a position when I think I've got to throw to win Generally, though, I thought I'd be a little sharper today, even though this is my first competition. I guess I'm just not quite as ready to throw as I thought I would be."

Wilkins was beaten by a leaner Powell, who has dropped 25 pounds from his Olympic Games weight of

"After the Olympics, my daughter came up to me and said.
'Daddy, you're fat.' I told her, 'No
I'm not, I'm big.' She said, 'No, Daddy, you're fat." There's more to it than that.

Powell is on leave from the San Jose Police Department and is distributing health food. Research has, led him away from the use of beef and refined sugar in his diet.

"The reading I've done has indicated that those two things are bad for you," said Powell, "so I've tried to avoid them in my diet. That's the primary reason why I've lost weight. That and the fact that I run 12 to 14 minutes a day in my workouts." The result has been a lighter, and weaker John Powell. "My strength is down," he admits. "My best-ever bench press was 460. Yes-terday I did 380, which is my best this year. But the distance a discus travels is based on lean mass and technique. I'm concentrating on technique."

He concentrated particularly hard on his last throw Saturday.

"Mac and I were in four competitions after the Olympics last year and he beat me all four times on his last throw," said Powell, "so I was very aware of his last-throw ability. I tried not to worry too much on my last throw, I wanted to be relaxed, and, fortunately, it was Powell's toss lifted, him from third to first and he watched quietly as Wilkins then stepped into last try. The Powell-Wilkins joust was easily the feature of a track meet that had several doubles, but no borne runs.

The better efforts included a meet record 55-2 triple jump by Milan Tiff, a 13.74 to 13.80 high hurdles win by San Jose sophomore Dedy Cooper over hurdles veteran Dedy Cooper over hurdles veteran Willie Davenport and a lunging, finish-line win by Olympic gold medalist Edwin Moses in the 400 intermediate hurdles. Moses, the hit two hurdles, was clocked in 49.9, barely edging Cal State L.A. sophomore Sam Turner.

Other highlights were a sterling anchor leg by Olympian Steve Riddick that gave the Philadelphia Pioneers a meet record 39.33 in the 400-meter relays, a blistering 1:47.77 meet record victory for Mike Boit in the 800 meters, a meet record 6-3% victory in the high jump by Canadian Debbie Brill. Boit was selected track athlete of the meet and Brill was the woman athlete of the meet

Long Beach State also got some good efforts, particularly from pole vaulter Don Baird, long jumper Greg Magee, hurdler John Peterson and quartermiler Hubert Beas-ley. Baird was a last-minute entry in the invitational pole vault and won at 17 feet. "I went in at 17 and out at 17," said Baird, who related a tale of a hectic morning in which he decided after he got up to compete, raced to the school to get his poles, was reprimanded by a coach for driving wildly on campus and then arrived at Mt. SAC "just as the competition began."

Magee, who has been bothered by a sose knee, went from third to first place on his final try and won the invitational long jump at 25-21. "I was settled in third, so I really had nothing to lose," said "I just went for it and it was there. Beasley had two top-flight 400meters, one a 46.6 second-place effort in the invitational 400. Peterson won a flight of the burdles in 14.2.

She will run the 100 and 200 meters and a leg of the relay for the 49ers in the Southern California Women's Intercollegiate Championships at UC Irvine April 30, and she is one of eight team members to qualify for the nationals at UCLA in May.

She finished seventh in the 100 while representing Great Britain in the Mon-treal Olympics and, with a best time of 11.16 for the 100, is higher than any other 149er except pole vaulter Don Baird, who is No. 2, in world ratings.

She prefers working out with men.

"England is my home, because that's where my parents are," she says, "but I like the weather here. I like the atmosphere. I can't really get into the people. They're so different . . . their ways and attitudes.

"I could not bring myself to be like the women here. They're completely dif-ferent, both black and white. Very bold. I've never seen anything like it, the way they talk and the way they relate to other people, like to men, and the way men treat them here. It's like going to a new

"We have a problem about mar-riage," Andrea says. "My parents live in England and Bryan's live in Canada and we live here. We're both over age, but that's another thing going back to the way we were brought up, compared to Americans.

"Kids here at the age of 18 do whatever they like. At 18 I was still under my father's roof. I didn't start dating until I was nearly 20. Bryan's upbringing was very religious and very strict.

"Everybody I've met here has either had a divorce or is into a divorce. That's not my culture. Where I'm from.—Barba-dos.—whomever you belong to, that's it. To get married without my father giving me away and without all our parents there would be wrong."

Andrea adds that "Bryan and I have a very good relationship going. He's also a West Indian and that's why we can relate so well to each other. Our families talked the same kind of language, ate the same kind of food, did the same things."

BUT IF ANDREA is disenchanted, it is because of the lingering apathy famil-iar to women's track and field.

"If they don't want me to run, just tell me," Andrea says. "I might be up-

Schrader chats with O'Malley Like son, like father:

"In the first place, we should clear up something," he says. "The maps show that Chavez Ravine was one hollow over from here. The area in which we built the stadium is really. . .oh, my God, I can't remember anymore. I'll think of it in a minute. Oh, yeah, it's Goat Hill.

Anyway, somebody — I think it was Vin Flaherty of the Exam-- suggested when we were going through Los Angeles on our way to Japan in 1956 that we take a look at what he called Chavez Ra-

We took a cab to this area, but it was all rugged terrain, with cans and debris. We couldn't locate the exact area, so we went to the Los Angeles library and got a map.

"Then we took a helicopter and flew over it."

*O'MALLEY RAISES his hand to halt a question. "This is a good time to correct a misimpression. It's generally reported that I got mad because the city wouldn't give us the land.

"At no time did we seek to have anyone give us anything. Our philosophy was that we would buy the land; make improvements on it and pay taxes.

When it came time to build a stadium, we owned Wrigley Field. We simply exchanged a $2 million statium that the city wanted as a recreation center for land on which to build a stadium."

O'Malley's activities in the Southland followed his decision to leave Brooklyn.

"Ebbets Field in Brooklyn was old and there were no radio or television stations there," he says. "There also was no parking. We would have built a stadium at Atlantic and Flatbush in Brooklyn, but we chuldn't buy the land.

"It had to be condemned under urban renewal legislation, but we ran into political problems. Baseball is hot news and any politician or do-goody can get coverage of a subject if it has something to do with baseball."

UNABLE TO purchase the land in Brooklyn, O'Malley moved the Dodgers to the Southland in 1958. They played at the Coliseum until Dodger Stadium was ready for occupancy in 1962.

The move from Brooklyn was accompanied by charges of sellout from the New York press, chiefly Dick Young of the Daily News.

"We would have stayed there," says O'Malley. "We wanted to stay there. But our situation in Brooklyn had become untenable.

Asked if he thought sports columnist Young would someday forgive him for taking the Dodgers to the West, O'Malley bristles. "Frankly, I really don't give a

But O'Malley does give a damn about the future of baseball.

As owner of a team which has made only one small upward adjustment in ticket prices in 20 years, he's concerned about spiraling salaries and increasing limita-

"I can't help but feel we should have reached better results with the players' association." he says. "The net effect has been to get costs so high that many owners are talking about passing it on the fans in the form of higher ticket prices."

O'MALLEY SAYS he's opposed to that philosophy.

"I don't want to see ticket prices going to $10 or $12, a point at which a family can't get together and come to a baseball game. Look what that's done to other sports."

The Dodgers didn't pass millions out to free agents over the winter because they chose to keep the money within the family.

"I'm happy we spent our money on players who had been with us," he says.

O'Malley places much of the blame on the owners for the chaotic conditions that have developed.

"You can't get 26 owners to agree on anything," he says. "Some very wise person said, in describing baseball owners, "We have met the enemy, and it is us." How true that is."

THE NET effect of disharmony among owners, says O'Malley, is that more and more teams are becoming owned by huge corporations and conglomerates.

"It's tough for a family-owned operation to compete with them," he says. "They can offset baseball by the staggeringly high profits of a corporation.

"That imbalance makes it tough for family-owned teams to compete. Take Horace Stoneham of San Francisco — it was a sad thing to see him have to get out of baseball."

Will the day arrive when the O'Malley family might be forced to O'Malley pulfs contentedly a cigar, weighing his reply.

"Could be," he says, "We get offers every month from people who want to buy the club."

After a pause, he adds: "Oh, I guess we'll get by somehow."

Walter F. O'Malley laughs — a pleasant, mischievous laugh that enguls his body and flows to the tips of his toes. "And be sure to remember, only half the lies about the Irish are true."

After the son had been knocked down for the third time in the fourround fight. Zamora Sr. hurled a towel into the ring to stop hostili-ties, then sprang through the ropes and charged Hernandez on the other side.

They scuffled for 15 or 20 seconds before other cornermen got them apart, but the elder Zamora renewed his assault minutes later outside the dressing rooms in the basement of the Forum.

tendant's account, as Zamora ran across the ring he yelled, in Spanish. Check the gloves ish, "Check the gloves!" Then he saw Cuyo and went blind crazy."

However, Zamora Sr. later told Zarate, "You are a good man, but your trainer (sic) is a cheating son of a bitch."

Zamora handlers also collected Zarate's handwrappings, possibly suspecting they had been illegally hardened. However, Joey Olmos, chief in-spector of the California Athletic ATLANTA — Atlanta relief pitcher Mike Marshall failed to show up for Saturday night's game between the Braves and the Dodgers and, reportedly, a team official said, "He'll never again pitch for this club... and may be never pitch again — period."

The controversial Marshall, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1974 when he was with the Dodgers, openly showed his displeasure at manager Dave Bristol when he was removed from Friday night's game after giving up three successive hits in the seventh inning.

He dropped the ball onto the mound and departed the field as soon as he saw Bristol leave the dugout. Then, on his way to the clubhouse, he angrily threw a bat onto the field.

Reportedly, a team vote was taken prior to Saturday night's game, the result being 23-1 in favor of Marshall's suspension.

Marshall was not available for comment but, it was learned, met just before the game with owner Ted Turner.

Following the game Turner and general manager Bill Lucas met but neither would issue a comment.

Marshall had appeared in four games with the Braves, was 1-0 but had Marshall had appeared in 10ur games with the allowed six runs in six innings, a 9.00 earned run average.

Warriors' big headache is Abdul-Jabbar

by Doug Ives

OAKLAND- If it wasn't so serious, it would be amusing.

Talking about the migraine headaches he has suffered lately, Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said, "I've played well on the court, but it has cut into my practice time."

17 Practice? It would seem that Kareem needs more practice like Carter needs more pills—or peanuts.

Perhaps his concern for missing practice is the measure of this man's desire for perfection, because he had done everything humanly possible in leading the Lakers to a 2-0 lead over the Golden State Warriors in their National Basketball Association Western Conference and the conference of the conference their National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal playoff series.

The third game will be played here today before a national television audience (12:45 p.m., channel 2) and the Lakers are hoping Abdul-Jabbar is a reasonable facsimile of his first two games at the Forum, where he acquid 67 points, grabbed 35 rebounds, blocked 12 shots and made most of the key points down the stretch.

The "I ain't never seen him play bad, but he was great / Friday night," said Warriors' center Clifford Ray, "I don't think there is really much more 1 can do to stop him." Kareem had 40 points, 19 rebounds and 9 blocks in the second game.

Al'Attles, the Golden State coach, says he can't concern himself with the talented Laker center.

We have to run more and continue to get Phil South into the offense," he said. "We can win doing

THE WARRIORS haven't won a game all year when they have failed to score 100 points, meaning they rely more on their offense than their defense. They have averaged only 96 points in this series.

The Lakers were able to win Friday night without capitain and guard Lucius Allen, and they probably will have to go without him again today. He may return for the second game here Tuesday night.

me second game nere Tuesday night.

Allen suffered a dislocated toe on his left foot early in the first game last Wednesday. He walks with a limp and only rest will ease the pain. Having won the two games at home, the Lakers can afford to give him more time off.

The defensive work of Don Chaney on Smith has been almost as vital to the Lakers' cause as Abdul-Jabbar's points.

Jabbar's points.

A 19-point scorer during the regular season, Smith has netted only 20 points in 78 minutes against Chaney and made just 6 of 23 field goal attempts.

West has been pleased with the performance of his forwards, Cazzie Russell and Don Ford. Russell outscored Rick Barry, 21-14, in the second game and had 19 points in the opener. Ford has netted 26, only six less than Jamaal Wilkes, who has taken 17 more shots.

Realistically, the Lakers den't expect to score a sweep. They would like a split here, which would put them in position to wrap up the series at home Friday might. If necessary, the sixth game is here next Sunday afternoon, the seventh at the Forum May 4.

A fleet of 525 yachts, varying size from 25 to 65 feet, spread out over the ocean Saturday afternoon for the start of the 30th annual Newport-to-Ense-nada international yacht

The boats got one of the best starts in history with a steady 10-knot northwest wind pushing them along. Because of the large number of entries, starts had to be made by classes from noon to shortly after I p.m. when the final group sailed from the staging area off the Newport jetty.

This is the race that at-tracts yachtsmen that sail all sizes of boats. For the fastest, it is about a 24 hour run, although a boat such as the Long Beach Yacht Club entry of the 62foot sloop Ragtime might be in Ensenada by dawn SLOWER boats will finish sometime Sunday or early Monday. The trophy presentation party is scheduled for noon Monday at Presental. day at Ensenada.

Long Beach Yacht Club had 31 other boats in addi-tion to Ragtime. Seal Beach Yacht Club had 15 entries. So did the Little Ships Fleet of Long Beach. The Ensenada race is well suited to the Little Ships Fleet, Alamitos Bay Yacht Club had five entries.

There were 13 classes that had to be srted, one each NAYRU, MORF and ORCA. Seven in PHRF and two in Ocean Racing.

Saturday to capture professional bowling's most coveted

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Facts on trout season openings

With the Sierra trout season opening Saturday, along with an increase of limits to 10 fish in many waters, the fishing world is beginning to look toward the mountain lakes and streams that are flowing

Prior to a summary of trout-waters, it might be well to tell ocean anglers that the yellowtail run is continuing at the Coronado Islands. Squid, a favorite ban for yellows, is scarce, out the yellows around the islands south of San Diego are taking anchovies and they are hitting jigs. In fact, one strong-armed young fisherman caught six yellows in that opening-day run by yo-yoing a jig.

Now for the trout: Anaheim Lake has been closed for the season. The water level has dropped and predictions are that it will be bone-dry by midsummer. Russ Cleary, who operates the concession at Anaheim Lake as well as those at Irvine and Skinner Lakes, announced miles from most parts of Long Beach.

IF YOU DON'T LIKE Crowley Lake, there are plenty of other waters in the Inyo Mono country that will be open and free of ice. That's right, some lakes still are frozen over and will be at the opening.

Mike Logue, president of the June Lake Chamber of Commerce, called to report that June, Guil, Silver and Grant are free of ice and there are some trophy trout in each of those lakes. June, Guil and Silver will be fishable throughout the entire trout season inasmuch as those lakes are fed by underground springs and have not those lakes are fed by underground springs and have not been affected by the severe California drought. The three are natural lakes.

Grant, however, is a man-made lake and its level will fluctuate, but Logue insists that its level won't be pulled down so much that it won't be fishable. In November of last year, the Department of Fish and Game planted brood stock trout in all four lakes as follows: June 1,850, Gull 800, Silver 1,175 and Grant 2,000. Those were excess rainbows and the weights averaged from two to five pounds.

averaged from two to five pounds.

The DFG will make more plants than usual in May and June this year in all four takes, so there will be chances of catching fish throughout the season.

June Lake Loop packers say that because of the low snow pack, some of the back-country lakes should be free of ice earlier than usual. Most of those are natural lakes, not man-made, and were planted last year with.

Empiry:

Surprisingly enough, Yosemite National Park Service-and Caltrans already have opened Tioga Pass. That is one of the earliest openings of that popular route in most of the years that this writer can remember.

On the eastern slope, it is expected that the roads to Sabrina and North Lakes will be open and there is the possibility that there will be a few open spots on the two lakes that were still frozen over a week ago. The road to South Lake will be open only to Parcher's Rainbow Twin Lakes (Mammoth) are breaking up fast and there will be some fishable water. Twin Lakes (Bridgeport) are entirely clear of ice. So is Bridgeport Reservoir Lundy Lake should be ice-free at the opening.

Mary, Mamie, George and Horseshoe Lakes in the Mammoth group are frozen over. So is Rock Creek Lake. One Bishop informant says that Bishop Creek will be a great place to fish next weekend. Pleasant Valley Reservoir, near Bishop, is open and has been for most of the dry winter. So is Crowley, which we have discussed at great length in previous columns. It is one-third of its normal size, but fishing should be even better this year.

The DFG has promised two and one-half million trout for plants in the Sierras this season, and those fish will be spread out through most of the season.

IF YOU ARE traveling to the eastern slope of the Sierra, anglers and travelers not even concerned with fishing will find an Interagency Visitor Center one mile south of Lone Pine at the junction of U.S. 3% and State Highway 136. The facility was designed to provide up-to-the-minute information on weather, roads, the back country, lake and stream conditions and all camping facilities. IF YOU ARE traveling to the eastern slope of the facilities facilities.

Overall theme of the new facility is "What to See and Do in the Owens Valley and Points North." The ceoffs includes a building, restrooms, a large parking lottinformational exhibits and brochures relating to the entire country.

The center, which has just been completed, will be dedicated at 1:30 p.m. Friday just in time to take care of the crowds that are expected to head for the hills and mountains.

Agencies cooperating in the new project are the Department of Fish and Game, Inyo and Toiyabe National Forests, State Department of Transportation, L.A. City Department of Water and Power, Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks, Bureau of Land Management, California Department of Forestry, Inyo and Mono Counties and the Eastern Sierra Interpretive Association.

The center will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays, and even later on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. It will be a good resting place and there will be plenty of literature available on all parts of the eastern slope of the Sierras.

""" "You know," said Cruguet, "he comes out and the proper clap for him. He's happy."

"Dickey Taylor—Seattle Slew runs in the name of his life Karen—said the colt will head for Churchill Downs and the Derby on Wednesday.

"But we'll have to wait and see how the colt is in the morning. He looks fine now," said Taylor.

Seattle Slew's winning time was a modest 1:49%.

But once he made his winning move, he was never der any serious pressure...

Sanhedrin finished second. 114 lengths ahead of Catalan, whose jockey, apprentice Steve Cauthen, said, tried to save something for the end, but the winner tas too!much horse today. I had no excuse."

Catalan, who was third, a head in front of Luis A.

Noble's Papelote, returned $2.10.

Assunta Louis' Farm's New York-bred Fratello Ed, was last with three-eigh who challenged Seattle Slew through the first part of the race, finished fifth, while Harry T. Mangurian's Jr.'s Iron Constitution was sixth and Winterlock was last.

Should Seattle Slew form of the part law weight of 126 pounds.

Each starter carried Derby weight of 126 pounds.
With a crowd of 36,170 watching the nationally televised race, Iron Constitution broke on top, but by the time the short run to the clubhouse turn was completed.

Seattle Slew was in front, followed by Fratello Ed. ridden by Ruben Hernandez.

After the first quarter of a mile. Seattle Slew had a length lead over Fratello Ed. After the first half he was in front by a head. Then on the turn, he began to move, and his margin in the stretch opened to six lengths

Fratello Ed faded on the turn while Sanhedrin, who was last with three-eighths of a mile remaining, came harging up on he outside under Angel Cordero Jr., to take the place.

Should Seattle Slew's sixth victory follow the pattern of the past two years, he will be the winner in he May 7 Derby. In 1975, Foolish Pleasure won the Wood before winning the Derby and Bold Forbes duplicated the feat last year.

Bold Forbes' winning time was a stakes record

:47%, more than two seconds faster than Seattle Slew's. But Saturday's Wood was the first race run on Aqueduct's main track this year, and the lack of activity on the track could have made it slow.

'He was never really pressed," said Cruguet, "and

Inglewood 'Cap doesn't seem same without Whittingham

by George Main Special to the LP-T

William Tell without an arrow. Dorothy Hamill without skates. Tommy Lasorda without Dodger blue blood. Charlie Whittingham without a horse.

One of the above is true. If you guessed Whittingham you win a used mutuel ticket.

There's no catch to it. The man who won both divisions of the $50,000 added Inglewood Cap one year ago at Hollywood Park has nothing to saddle for today's 37th running of this mile and one-sixteenth grass race

With the Whittingham forces on the sidelines im-ported Ricco Boy is the backstretch choice to make good over such grass-under-hoof lovers as Today n Tomorrow, Mr. Bold Batter and Anne's Pretender.

Ricco Boy was bred in Ireland and raced in Europe with some distinction. That means he came but no brass!ring and, as trainer Tommy Bell Jr., says: "That's why we were able to buy him".

Since arriving in the U.S., Ricco Boy has raced twice and won both. The races were over the grass in allowance company. Today's venture is his first in a stake. Fernando Toro, winner of no less than 40 races on the greenery here a year ago, will ride Ricco Boy. Apparently, Toro picked him over Anne's Pretender on whom he scored one allowance race victory.

Having last Toro, trainer Tommy Doyle picked up Bill Shoemaker, who has won a few Ingle-woods in the past. Shoe became available when Whittingham came up empty. Last year, Shoemaker won a division of the Ingelwood for Whit-tingham with King Pellinore and Jerry Lambert before, Shoe and Whit won their division with Gay Style. Gay Style has been retired. King Pellinore and Riot In Paris are still in Whittingham's care but have to pass today. Riot in Paris, along with Royal Derby, are "on vacation" at the farm. King Pelli-nore and Cacaucus are awaiting other dates at Hollypark.

Anne's Pretender has banked $51,000 since coming to the U.S. from England and he accomplished that with but one win, plus a couple of seconds and a third and a fourth in the San Juan at Santa Anita which was worth $10,000.

While Anne's Pretender has been running in stakes, he has yet to win one here. Not so Today n Tomorrow, who won the San Bernardino 'Cap in a swift 1:46% for nine furlongs on Santa Anita's grass; and Mr. Bold Batter, winner of a division of the Camino Real in a good 2:00% for a mile and a quarter.

OF COURSE the racing or COURSE the racing secretary will have some-thing to say about the Inglewood, just as he did with Santa Anita's San Bernardino. He judged Today n Tomorrow to be worth 112 pounds and he loved it, winning by two lengths. His high weight at 123 for that handicap was Anne's Pretender, who didn't like the spread at all and finished fifth, beaten three and a half lengths plus a nose.

The racing secretary Lou Eilken, is still high on Anne's Pretender. Once again he's given him high weight, this time 122 pounds.

The guess here is that Sandy Hawley and Today n Tomorrow will win this Inglewood.

FRED W. HOOPER'S Beat Inflation will have to prove he's the best middle distance horse in the West, and the son of Crezier will get that opportunity in due time. Under a confident drive by veteran Eddie Dunnni-gan, Skedaddle N. came from last place in the stretch to get up and cap-ture the featured $10,000 Invitational Handicap Saturday night at Los Alamitos Race Course.

Jim Dennis sent Baron Magi up along the outside to gain the lead at the three-quarter pole in 1:29<sup>1</sup>/s. At that point favored Lunar Chance had been shuffled back to fourth and was trapped down along the rail where Skeddale N. was racing in last.

As the horses turned for home. Dunnigan sent Skedaddle N. along the outside free of other horses and soon had the lead, pulling away to a three-quarter length advantage at the wire in 1:59%

Entrants soar at kite 'grand prix'; largest takes dive

But the fickle wind did cause a scramble when the "largest kite in the world" — nearly a block long — crumpled and fell on spectators who had lined Bluff Park to watch the festival's main specialty event. The crowd of about 200 persons had been forewarded that the batray-shaped kite - touted by the Guiness Book of World Records as the world's largest - was not a toy, and could be dangerous if the wind shifted.

Regardless, they stood transfixed as the kite and its tail — a 50 pound bag of sand — came plum-meting down when the wind died.

No one was injured, and owners of the immense red and white parachute-like kite repeatedly tried in vain to get it up again.

Attention soon shifted from the fallen "main event" to the strand below the buff, where hundreds of kites of all types were flown.

Although the event was directed at children, adult interest in kite-flying was manifest in the intricate engineering, playful crea-

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

THE CIVILIAN Conservation Corps was born in 1934 amid the pain and hopelessness of the Great Depression, the agony of 15 million unemployed. Eight years later the CCC died, its function as a job-creator taken over by World War II.

Critics of the CCC maligned it as a make-work boondoggle, totalitarian in concept, a haven for the lazy. No good would come of it, they muttered. But they were wrong, as history proved.

The forests greened and were conserved by the sweat of hundreds of thousands of young men who flocked to the CCC from hobo jungles, drought-ridden farms, the aimlessness of box-car travel, the despair of homes where poverty and hunger held families captive, where the future seemed as a bleak as the

They cleaned streams, terraced land, built trails, fought timber fires, constructed fences, opened roads, learned such trades as blacksmithing, surveying, welding, heavy equipment operation. They strung telephone lines, kept stores, tallied as clerks. They became a skills reservoir for the great war that was coming.

And all this they did for food, lodging, Army hand-me-down uniforms and $30 a month. They kept $5 of their monthly pay, sending the other $25 home

$$ of their monthly pay, sending the other $25 home to their families.

Nobody got rich. But bodies were toughened, spirits were bucked up, and man, nature and the environment benefited. Today, the CCC is remembered with fondness, with words of praise, with political appeals that it be revived as an alternative to the ghetto, the barrio, the slums, the social ills festered by youth unemployment. They measure the worth of the CCC against an estalating crime rate, the rice in welfare costs school dropout statistics. the rise in welfare costs, school dropout statistics.

And there is a yearning for the good old days, productive at least in retropspect.

The CCC is coming back, on a modest scale, in California. This is the first year for the California Conservation Corps, geared to provide jobs for about 1,000 young men and women. Members, aged 18 through 20, are being enlisted for board and room and pay of from $250 to $355 a month.

The state program parallels the old federal CCC. The corps will work out of several base camps on such jobs as building trails, cleaning streams, protecting watershed and wildlife, developing parks, working on energy and water conservation, and help-working on energy and water conservation, and neiping to fight forest fires.

So the past lives again in California. The present echoing the voices of the young men who went before—the young men whose CCC project, 1834-41, restored La Purisima Mission State Historic Park at Lompoc.

Those young men are middle aged now, and one of them, Ernest C. Doerr, lives in Long Beach. He's looking forward to the May 15 reunion at La Purisima of CCC alums. And he's asked me to help in rounding them up.

The reunion is being held in conjunction with the annual Fiesta Days at the historic mission. Enroll-ment is in charge of Bob Pereslete, 1609 Orchard Hill Lane, Hacienda Heights 91745, telephone 213-964-8919; or Jack Mason, area manager, La Purisima Mission State Historic Park, R. F. D., Box 102, Lompoc 93436, telephone (805) 733-3713.

I'm sure there are many former CCC enrollees in this area who'd enjoy cutting up old touches and swapping memories of youth gone by. I hope that, as Ernest C. Doerr, they have done well in life, as well as they did for their nation in a time of great travail.

The CCC could have held a reunion in my old Indianapolis neighborhood and drawn a big crowd. Many of my high school mates dropped out to go on the burn, figuring that they would find the Big Rock Candy Mountain at the end of a railroad line—or somewhere. They didn't, of course, All they found somewhere. They didn't, of course. All they found throughout the land was nothingness, signs warning them to keep moving, stay off the grass, hoboes not welcome, no help wanted.

Thirty dollars a month seemed like a fortune to them, and so they flocked to join the CCC, to learn a trade and do something worthwhile for their poverty-stricken families and themselves.

They built themselves up, became men and left their mark on the land. And many of them — too many of them — left their lifeblood a few years later on Guadalcanal, Kasserine Pass, Anzio, New Guinea. They never came back to enjoy the things they had built for the CCC.

The ones who didn't come back from the war will be at Lompoc May 15, in spirit. They'll be welcomed by comrades who remember the work they shared in the greening of a depressed nation:

The $12,900 annual raise that congressmen received this year made a lot of Americans mad. The decision not to pay the $50 rebate, which we think was eco-nomically wise, nevertheless rubbed salt in the wound for many taxpayers.

But American taxpayers should be the most angry about all the luxurious side benefits congressmen get. Some of them sound like perquisites of royalty.

There has been criticism by the Carter administration of the so-called "imperial presidency." In an article in the March 18 issue of New Times, writer Robert Shrum talked of "The Imperial Congress."

"The good life on Capitol Hill will never be heralded in a campaign brochure, but it is one of Congress' most conspicuous achievements," Shrum wrote. "Comfortable, affordable, gracious, spacious — Congress has created a Great Society all its own.

What Shrum is talking about are benefits such as the following:

- · A private barbershop where senators pay $3 for a razor cut, style and shampoo — about oncfourth the going rate in George-
- Special license plates making it legal for congressmen to park illegally and not be given cita-
- · Five full-time laborers whose only duty is to polish the automobiles of members of the House.
- · Fifty free picture framings a year, as well as free prints from the National Gallery of Art.

There are many other side benefits such as free postage and transportation, but the almost royal prerogatives which Shrum cites makes congressmen "kings of the hill" to be sure.

In keeping with that theme, the Long Beach Bar Association. under the direction of President Louise M. DuVall, has expanded its observance to five days, and the program will be taken out into the community.

Working with the Law Society at Long Beach State University. the Long Beach Bar will conduct public forums, community counseling sessions, a poster contest for grade-school children, tours of the Long Beach County Court-house and its 20th annual Law Day Dinner and scholarship awards program.

In past years, the observance was a one-day affair, centered around the association's Law Day banquet and scholarship awards. This year, there are activities running Monday through Friday all of them open to the public.

Most citizens have few occasions to consult an attorney, but this year's "Law Day USA" observance offers them opportunities to learn something about lawyers and the law.

All of us are inheritors of America's great system of individual liberty under law. As responsible citizens, we are partners in this system. It is a responsibility not confined to attorneys, judges and the courts.

It is appropriate, then, that the Long Beach Bar Association's 1977 observance of "Law Day USA" is intended to further public understanding and appreciation of this judicial system — of its laws and their values and of the individuals who make up the legal profession.

CIA's 'sad, sordid' history

WASHINGTON — The games that the Central Intelligence Agency plays have produced a terrible toll in human suffering. The consequences have been catastrophic for forlorn peoples from the Khambas in the high Himalayas to the Kurds in the Mideast hinteriands.

The painful details are buried deep in the CIA's vaults, but enough can now be pieced together to tell the suppressed story. It is a story of how the CIA has consciously exploited unsophisticated and primitive peoples for political, economic and military purposes. Invariably, the hinterlanders who were used by the CIA suffered severely for trusting the United States.

This sad, sordid chapter in American history should be exposed while Washington is still debating the CIA's future. For three decades, the CIA has considered it necessary to get down and operate at the Communist level, without regard for fair class and human rights. play and human rights.

THE PURPOSE OF the CIA's secret intrigues, presumably, has been to bolster intrigues, presumably, has been to bolster U.S. power and influence around the world. Yet the results, unhappily, have been distressingly the opposite. This has led some policymakers to suggest that the CIA should give up its dirty tricks and restrict its activities to gathering intelligence.

In the early 1960s, for example, the CIA recruited Tibetan tribesman, known as Khambas, who had fled the Red Chinese on wiry ponies into the high fastnesses of Nepal. The Khambas were brought to the United States for training; then they were outfitted with American saddles, small arms and other provisions suitable for mountain warfare. mountain warfare.

At the instigation of the CIA, the gal-loping Khambas would swoop down on Chi-nese military encampments in Tibet. The tribesmen were led by the CIA to believe they would reconquer their lost homeland with American help. They continued their harassments against the Chinese sporadically for a decade until the CIA lost interest. Then the proud Khambas, without CIA supplies to sustain them, straggled down from the mountains into the valleys

During the mid-1960s, the CIA persuaded primitive Vietnamese tribesman, called Montagnards, to exchange their called Montagnards, to exchange their bows and arrows for guns and grenades. They were recruited as scouts and border guards for the U.S. forces. Their reward: As the war spluttered to an end, thousands of Montagnards were herded into refugee camps where many perished from malnu-trition, exposure, tuberculosis and pneumo-

In Laos, the CIA formed a 14,000-man army of fierce Meo tribesmen to battle the Pathet Lao Communists. As the war drag-ged on, the Meo ranks were severely depleted, and children as young as 10 years were recruited to fill the boots of the dead. The triumphant Pathet Lao drove tens of thousands of Meos from their villages Yet today, the pathetic remnants of the mercenary army continue to fight the secret war that the CIA started.

Perhaps no primitive people have been so cruelly manipulated, however, as the Kurds who lived in the mountainous region of the Middle East, where Iran, Iraq, Turkey, Syria and the Soviet Union come together. The unfortunate Kurds became

In May, 1972, Kissinger brought his mentor, then-President Richard Nixon, to Tehran for a meeting with the Shah. At the Shah's insistent request, the two American leaders agreed to arm the Kurds for warfare against the Iraqis. The CIA, to its credit, resisted this particular scheme.

During the months that followed, the CIA smuggled some $16 million worth of untraceable Chinese and Soviet arms through Iran to the Kurds. They fought the Iraqis to a standstill. The jubilant Kissinger dispatched a congratulatory tele-

Those 'logical inconsistencies'

SACRAMENTO - The parallels between Jimmy Carter and Jerry Brown are becoming so striking that the California governor can't help but wonder if he hasn't provided a pattern for the President.

exceedingly close margins after watching huge poll leads all but evaporate. Both men then used almost precisely the same means of achieving unprecedented public popularity during their first few months in office.

Jerry Brown shunned completely the traditional pomp and ceremony associated with gubernatorial inaugurations. Jimmy Carter permitted only the minimum required by protocol. Both have since made a point of avoiding the ritualistic trappings of their office.

THE GOVERNOR ignores the gover-nor's mansion. The President can't live anywhere other than the White House which also is his office - but he sends Amy to public school.

The governor spends the night in a San Francisco tenement. The President spends the night with some folks in a small Massachusetts town.

Both men seem to have startled voters generally and other politicians in particu-lar by retaining, in office, the philosophical approach to government they cited during their campaigns.

Brown first and then Carter have accused the people of abdicating too much responsibility for the solving of social problems to the government, and told them they must share in the search for solutions.

Brown's popularity appears to have obbed, somewhat, and Carter's probably will, too. It may ebb even faster than Brown's, because Carter seems to be more of a doer, or at least a quicker doer, and of a doer, or at least a quicker doer, and since doing usually involves doing for some folks and doing to others, the others are apt to become unhappy.

Brown and Carter are coming along with a different approach to government at a time other new forces on government are coming into play. The consequence could

In addition, attention is being drawn, finally, to those perplexing logical inconsistencies which hamper government.

The most obvious of inconsistencies, presently, is being put forth by taxpayers. They like what inflation is doing to their avaclacles, but they don't like what it is

They want government to reduce expenditures. But they want more police, more freeways, more free beaches and parks, a subsidized bus service and better libraries, among a bunch of et ceteras somebody else is supposed to pay for.

Liberals object when, government tells them what they can and cannot smoke. But many of the same liberals want government to prevent people from owning guns.

Conservatives think it appropriate that government regulate individual morality, but become incensed when government attempts to regulate corporate morality.

Sohio terminal

The harbor commissioners and City Council members should be well aware. before they vote next month whether to fund the proposed Sohio oil tanker terminal on Pier J. of the death and destruction a supertanker explosion at the terminal could cause in the heavily populated Long Beach area.

Because the transportation, unloading, loading and storage of oil are hazardous, there can be no guarantee of safety. Re-gardless of how well a tanker is designed and constructed, or how well the crew is trained, mechanical failures and human errors do occur. According to Captain J. J. Lester, a British master mariner who states his figures can be confirmed by the Coast Guard, "more U. S. registered vessels sank, blew up or were involved in oil pollution last year than Liberian vessels" (1, P-T 1/9/77).

During a recent four-year period there were over 100 oil tanker explosions world-wide (L. A. Times, 12/18/76). Can it happen here: The Sansinena explosion answers that question. The Sansinena was only one fourth the size of the 165,000 deadweight ton supertankers planned for the proposed terminal, and its catastrophe resulted in 9 deaths, 50 injured, and an estimated $18 million in damage with more suits coming in and shattered windows as far away as 21 miles. Since that disaster in December 1976, four more tankers of U.S. and foreign registry have exploded in or near Ameri-

Long Beach port and Sohio representatives state that all Sohio tankers berthing at the proposed terminal would have inert gas systems (a method intended to neutralize dangerous gases in cargo tanks after they are emptied of oil). However, this does not mean there could be no explosions. The Coast Guard requires inert gas systems for oil tankers only if the tankers are 100,000 deadweight tons or January 1, 1975. The proposed terminal would be a common-carrier facility, used also by tankers owned and/or operated by companies other than Sohio. These tankers might or might not have inert gas systems already installed.

There are no legal and inspection guar-antees that all tankers that would berth at the terminal would have inert gas systems — officially certified and properly func-— officially certified and properly func-tioning. According to Dr. Donald Bright of the Long Beach Harbor Department, it would be necessary to have inspectors on every ship observing all the time, in order to effect such an inspection. It is hardly likely that the Coast Guard would accept the responsibility of performing inspection on a minute-to-minute basis. Be-sides, according to the Coast Guard. "inerting of cargo tanks has the potential "inerting of cargo tanks has the potential for reducing cargo tank explosions, but it cannot eliminate them" (Federal Register,

The proposed Sohio terminal could unload three supertankers at once. Sohio would also store about 150 million gallons of oil in six enormous tanks near the pier where the three tankers would be unload-ing the oil. An explosion of any one of these supertankers could create a chain reaction to the others close by and to the six tanks with devastating results.

Save, not waste

The most refreshing and hopeful editorial I have read for a long time was the one April 19, "A bad penalty."

Such pure, common sense from Senator Cranston regarding improving property and having your taxes lowered, as they did in Wilmington, Del., is almost unbelievable, coming from a politician. But, I has-ten to add, wonderful! I urge everyone to write to him and encourage this trend in sane thinking.

In the concluding paragraph, some sage advice was given: Instead of spending millions of dollars to eliminate blight, "It would be a lot more economical to encourage property owners to finance their own property maintenance by elimination of increased taxes for such improvements."

This country has a good chance of pulling through this time of inflation and shortages if our elected officials and powerful newspapers are concerned enough to think: Save, not waste, improve, not destroy; people, not projects.

Many readers scorn muckracking. But wasn't muckraking responsible for for tougher fire laws, ending child labor abuses, bringing a semblance of justice to migrant farm workers?

Corruption, malfeasance, bigotry thrive in a vacuum of publicity. It is the things we don't know that ean hurt us, and hurt us grievously. Evil festers in darkness. Publicity is light, illuminating all the dreary corners, showing up all the pockmarks, warts and cysts on the body politic and humanity itself.

We can only deal with what we know. And the task of a responsible newspaper is to see that we know as much as we can, no matter how painful the knowledge may be. We don't need cheesecake photos to inform us. We don't need the panderers of gossip, the keyhole peepers who run blind items about celebrities. We don't need lurid adjectives and cutesy-poo non-news features about trollops, gangsters, jet-setters and cocaine-smilling actors and actrosses tresses.

We don't need such things, but we get them in profusion from an oftimes mindless journalism that seizes every stick of flotsam washing up on the beach and fashions a story from the debris.

Know something? That type of journalism has been out of style for 30 years. It was senile when Walter Winchell was still operating, but not every newspaper got the message. Some of them tried to compete with the junky gossip sheets you find on supermarket counters. Fewer and fewer newspapers can keep up with such muck, and their obituaries continue to be recorded.

The responsible newspapers thrive. The fun-and-games papers tend to go bust as readers' perception of their true worth Irresponsible, hit and miss, scareline journalism is not only an insult to the "reading public, it's bad business as well.

We've been guilty of those sins on occasion. You've seen them in the past in the Press-Telegram night final edition, read them in a "nothing" story on Hugh Hefner's bunny airplane (complete with simpering pictures). And I can cite press agentry that has been run in the guise of a

That's behind us now. I think we're finally growing up. It's about time.

I CAN AGREE with the idealism expressed in a letter to the Ombudsman from James A. Norman of Long Beach, though I can't envision the newspaper world he sees in the coming. He writes:

"Wouldn't it be nice if the front page of our paper could be returned to the com-munity it serves. Just suppose, for in-stance, that no local nobody could get his name on the front page, no matter how horrible the crime he involves himself with.

"Wouldn't it be nice if, in time of crisis, we could have the front page teach us how to handle it? Water and energy conservation could be more important than "Perhaps in this day and age the news

Addressing a problem

I wrote a letter ("A day at school") to the editor published April 6. I wonder how many other people got a follow-up letter or two by writing to you. I mean a "reli-gious" type of report, papers and Commu-nist fightings and the whole works on what gious" type of report, papers and Communist fightings and the whole works on what we should do about it.

Do you sell our addresses to people? I know some places do this, then we, the people, get what is called junk mail. I also wasn't afraid to send my name and address since whoever this is that reads the paper knows who I'm talking about. I wouldn't bether you but no address or. wouldn't bother you, but no address or name is on the envelope that comes to me.

1 say everyone gets junk mail, but when it. comes first class, the mail man has to pay 26 cents postage due and I pay him to get a letter with no return. I like to know with whom I'm talking or about whom I'm writing. I find the mail interesting but I can't afford a subscription to a magazine. It seems to me these people who sent me mail have less to fear than me. What's the matter with them using their name? MRS. RAYMOND PRITCHETT.

lomosexual 'guild' aims to better police relations

By Brad Altman

Alleging that police surveillance of gay bars has stepped up in recent months, members of the Long Beach homosexual com-munity are forming a business guild.

.The group - designed to act as a collective voice for gay busi-besses - hasscheduled a meeting May It with representatives of the Long Beach Police Department's wice squad. -Spokesmen for the guild said it has about 35 members — primarily gay tavern and restaurant owners. They say this is the first time businesses serving a gay clientele have banded together in Long Beach, al-Though there are similar associations in Los Angeles and associations in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Gay bars in Long Beach tally at cabout 25, said Bernie Carroll, owher of Ripples, a gay bar in Belmont Shore. The LBPD's vice sagad estimates there are nearly 40 speh establishments.

At the guild's first meeting April 5, the participants agreed that one goal will be "to establish a channel of communication with the Long Beach Police Department."

Long Beach Police Department."

And vice squad representatives have consented to attend the meeting, its time and place not yet set. Said Vice Lt. Douglas Bostard: "We have nothing to hide."

CAPT. Robert Alford, head of the vice squad, said, "Gay bar Towners have succeeded in placing the vice squad on the defensive."

Some gay-bar owners maintain that in the past six months there has been a deterioration in the often-strained relationship between molice and gay businesses. police and gay businesses.

However, in an interview. Al-ford said there "has been no change in our method of enforce-ment or change in policies" regarding so-called vice control activities. He said neither the upcoming re-tirement May 1 of Police Chief-Ralph G. Kortz nor the changeover last year in city managers — from John Mansell to John Dever — has affected vice squad procedures or policies.

There seems to be a change in incre seems to be a change in policy in how the Police Department handles the gay situation," asaid Carroll. "When John Mansell awas in office, things went smoothly. We used to have cops come in and dance with their girlfriends. It doesn't happen anymore. It stopped just before Christmas.

rumor control center, according to Luigi Margadonna, a member of its steering committee and owner of the Ritz, a gay bar at 4365 Atlantic Ave.

He said information spreads fast in the close-knit gay com-munity, and when it's erroneous it can be harmful. A case in point occurred March 17, when four vice officers entered the Ritz during a St. Patrick's Day celebration and cited his business for alleged violations of the color of the col tions of city codes — including operating without a permit.

"There were rumors that customers were busted here," said Margadonna, who earlier this month obtained proper permits and is once again open for business. although his crowds are not as large.

"The rumors were completely false, but they were a disaster to my business," he added.
Another incident used to illustrate what is said to be the Police Department's changing attitude to-ward gay businesses took place last June, when occupants of passing cars hassled customers waiting in the to-entry Birples has according line to enter Ripples bar, according

THE OWNER explained that his two-story bar is packed to ca-pacity on weekend nights, and customers who want to enter must sometimes stand in line on the sidewalk next to Ocean Boulevard.

The problem of customers being sprayed with foam from fire extinguishers and hit by eggs was solved when Carroll hired a half-dozen police officers from the Police Department who naterilled the lice Department who patrolled the sidewalk during their off-duty

Carroll said the LBPD "gave me two hours' notice" and halted

why did the police stop showing up? "When the chief found out that those officers were working there. he told them to quit," explained Alford.

The captain said this was not because of blatant anti-gay bias but because of blatant anti-gay bias but was simply an instance when moonlighting officers were not previously "sanctioned by the chief, and, in any event, the Police Department doesn't allow police officers to work for, or in, or with bars—anywhere in town."

Carroll says that recently persons standing in line outside Ripples have again become the target of abuse from passengers in pass-of abuse from passengers in pass-ing vehicles. But he knows now the Police Department will not help, he complained.

Another instance of police involvement in the gay community caused business to "really drop" at several beer and wine bars along a stretch of Broadway, according to one Broadway bartender.

The drop in business occurred after the arrest of a bartender April 12 at Lil' Lucy's, 1200 E. Broadway, according to a bartender at nearby Sam's Place.

The Lil' Lucy's bartender was arrested for allegedly selling a raf-ile ticket to two vice officers. Pro-ceeds were reportedly to be donated to the American Civil Liberties Union gay-rights chapter.

Los Angeles attorney John Le-Bouef, representing the bartender in his upcoming court case, said the lottery was beld in part to advertise an annual Easter party to be held at Sam's Place, 1744 E.

Broadway.

The bar party was canceled two days before it was scheduled to occur when "it came to our attention that we have been, or could be, in violation of the law," according to a leaflet the bars distributed.

The bartender was arrested the following Tuesday.

LeBouef insists. "All they had to do was call Lil' Lucy's, notify them of the apparent violation . . . it would have saved a lot of taxpayers' maner."

Alford noted that the lottery Alford noted that the lottery was advertised in Pacific Coast Times, a gay-oriented free bar magazine: "We monitor these publications, and when we see flagrant law violations it's like flaunting it in our face." It was a call from the police that tipped the bars to the violation, he added.

THERE are other issues simmering that the guild expects to discuss in its face-to-face meeting with the vice squad next month. Guild members say they think the police may tread more gingerly when they realize that they will be facing the combined strength of a collective force in the future and not just individuals.

Meanwhile, the gay community in Long Beach is organizing itself on other fronts.

A political-action organization known as the Long Beach Lambda Democratic Club was started in January. A leaflet says its purposes include the registration of sympathetic arters monitoring the Long thetic voters, monitoring the Long Beach Police Department and supporting the enactment of an em-ployment act to forbid employers from discriminating against homosexuals.

A crisis hotline operated by a new organization called the Gay Service League has been housed in quarters donated by the Downtown Long Beach Neighborhood Center for several months.

"Gay businesses are legitimate and have the same right to exist as the corner grocery store," concluded attorney LeBouel.

death camp Opera born in

By Linda Kramer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It wasn't easy getting the opera "Emperor of Atlantis" from manuscript to stage. It was written by Jews on the back of entrance forms to a Nazi concentration camp.

The composer and librettist were killed at Auschwitz in 1944 about a Auschwitz in 1944 about a month after they finished the opera. The opera, which had its American premiere here Thursday, reveals courage and humor in the face of suffering.

"It probably couldn't have been written any-where else," said English conductor Kerry Woodward. "It's full, on the one hand, of desperation, and, on the other, full of hope. Both these elements are so deep and so strong that it would have had to come from somebody who really experienced these things in full measure."

The opera was written and rehearsed at Theresienstadt, a showcase con-centration camp used for international inspections to prove prisoners were not mistreated. But the Nazis did not allow "Emperor of Atlantis" to be performed because of its antiwar sentiments and thinly disguised satire of Adolf Hitler.

Under its facade, Theresienstadt was actually a way station for Auschwitz. Composer Viktor Ellman and librettist Peter Kien were able to hand "Emperor of Atlantis" to a friend before being ship-ped off to their deaths.

The friend, Dr. H. G. Adler, survived the camp and tried to get the opera performed immediately after the war, but no one was interested. In 1973 he mentioned it to Woodward, and the young conductor started to piece together the torn and ragged manuscript which bore the blue pencil of the censor.

"The libretto was typed on the back of forms peo-ple filled in when they came into the camp," said Woodward. He conducted the world premiere in Amsterdam in 1975. The San Francisco performance was the first in English.

The opera is a fable in four short scenes centered on the figure of Death. who abdicates his duties to protest the despotic Kaiser's presumption in ordering him to lead a universal war. Without death, there is no relief for the suffer-

their performance of three chamber compositions Friday in the Long Beach State University Graduate Center.

Billed as the Berlin Philharmonic Octet, the rhinarmonic octes, the musicians, rather than playing music scored for eight instruments, performed two quintets by Mozart and a Beethoven septet.

The Beethoven work, scored for two violins, cello, bass, horn, clarinet program and provided the most inspired playing by the ensemble.

All seven musicians experienced no difficulty with the septet, Opus 20 in E flat major, playing together as a unit, as in the two earlier quintets. In the opening move-ment, the spirited interplay between first violin Bernd Gellermann and second violin Bernhard Hartog was particularly impressive.

The smooth and melodic—almost hymn-like—passages in the second movement supplied a marked contrast to the spirited first, with the clarinet of UII Rodenhauser offsetting the two

The andante, which follows the brief and straight-forward interlude tempo di menuetto, demonstrates Beethoven's excellent ability at inter-twining the timbres of the string and wind instruments.

In movements 5 and 6 the performers continued to show good intonation and balance within the ensemble.

Beginning the concert, Gellermann and Hartog were joined by Rainer Moog, viola, and Peter Steiner, cello, completing the string quartet, and augmented by Jan sugmented by Jan Schroder, horn, for the Mozart Horn Quintet in E flat major (K 407).

Kerr sexy with clothes on NEW YORK - "Yes, I'm a grandmother," confessed Deborah Kerr, not looking it but liking it.
While having tea at the Regency bar on a recent afternoon, "because I'm terribly English still," the beautifully elegant Miss Kerr gave details. Her grandson, Joe Shrapnel, by her daughter Francesca, 25, is 5son, Joe Shrapnel, by her daughter Francesca, 25, is 5months old.

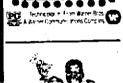

She had thought grandparenthood might be a burden: "I didn't think it could be as magical as it is."
Rushing from L.A., where she'd played O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," to do Shaw's "Candida" in London, she remains one of the busiest look back on the days when she was considered daring and erotic without disrobing.

"Things can be exciting without everybody immediately taking their clothes off," she said, and remembered two sexy milestones in her own career.

Because of this prac-tice, other big names have been hauled into the Polanski case, including one of Hollywood's biggest Academy Award winner Jack Nicholson.

The actor wasn't even in town when Polanski, who was staying at a hotel, reportedly borrowed Nicholson's place March 10 to photograph the 13year-old girl for a French magazine. And it was there that the alleged rape occurred.

After Polanski was arrested at his hotel the next day, the cops went to Nicholson's home with a search warrant and there found Anjelica Huston, the actor's longtime girl friend, with what they said was cocaine. So they nabbed her, and another big name increased the sensation of the story. Anjelica is the daughter of John Huston, renowned not only as a director but as an actor. Polanski's alleged datliance with an underage girl could not have occurred at a worse time, con-sidering what has been happening in Los Angeles. where there has been a rash of cases involving illicit sex with minors.

Californians get uptight about their image as trend-setters for unorthodox life styles, getting the blame and/or credit for spawning everything from the flower children and Jesus freaks to communal bathtub parties and holis-tic healing. And the heavy indictment returned against Polanski could have been the citizenry's way of showing that it does not condone this new trend of sex with kids.

Shortly before the Polanski case erupted, Los Angeles was labeled the kid-porn capital of the country, the place where children are exploited as the "stars" of hard-core movies catering to audiences of middle-class, middle-aged men.

Before that, the Los Angeles Police Department became embroiled in a sex scandal involving teen-age girls in the police Explorer Scout program. Known as the Law En-forcement Explorer Girls, the teen-agers assist po-lice around the city, learning the civic virtues of law and order.

Some of the girls, it was charged, were learning more than that from at least 16 police officeers who came under investigation on charges of drinking and having sex with their little helpers. Because of the statute of limitations. insufficient evidence, reluctance of the girls' parents to bring charges and other reasons, most of the charges have been dropped, but the department is still involved in hearings on the scandal.

There were other less publicized cases — a county probation officer charged with taking two county wards, girls aged 15 and 16, to his home. getting drunk with them and having sex with the younger; a former deputy sheriff convicted of having sex with three pre-teen neighborhood boys, and an elementary teacher in-dicted on 15 counts of sodomy, child molestation and oral copulation with his students.

On Bryan Avenue, Brower Curver Drive and Morris Road. Designed by Architecture West of Orange, the homes will feature exteriors with padre brick, stone and lap siding trim. Architectural features will include bay windows, pot shelves, brick and wood columns and covered front patios. Roofs will be tile or wood shake.

Five three- and four-bedroom one- and two-story plans will be available. Each home will offer a sheltered entry with sloped roof, concrete driveway, two-car ga-concrete driveway, two-car garage with direct access to the house, living and family rooms with sloped ceilings and formal dining rooms.

Kitchens will have ceramic tile countertops and pass-through windows to exterior eating bars. Double-doored master suites will have sloped ceilings and sliding glass doors to back patio or balcony. Adjoining master baths have decorator oval tubs.

The homes will have many normally extra-cost items - such as wet bars and electric garage door openers — as standard fea-tures. One model has an over-the-garage bonus room that may be converted to fourth and fifth bed-

Prices are expected to be in the $90,000 range. Sales are expected to start in May.

What's your problem? Rights of tenants clarified

Will Rogers is credited with saying: "I never met a man I didn't like." Even if we take the comment literally tand, let's face it, it's suspect), then it becomes immediately apparent that Rogers was never a tenant and never a landlord.

Dear Mr. Campbell:
As president of the statewide Association for the Protection of Tenants here in California, may I bring two facts to your attention as a consequence of a recent column:
1. Unless it is an emergency or impractical, your

1. Unless it is an emergency or impractical, your landlord should give you reasonable notice of his plans to enter, and enter only during normal business hours. Twenty-four hours is usually considered reasonable notice.

2. Tenants who find it necessary to obtain roommates to help pay rent to gouging landlords—or even reasonable rental rates—should first consider if any other tenants are paying similar rental rates for SiMILAR space, i.e., one bedroom, two bedroom, etc. If so, it would be discrimination for the landlord to up the rental rate by $25 a month, or even $1, because two single persons were sharing.

to up the rental rate by $25 a month, or even $4, because two single persons were sharing.

Married couples enjoy "dual rates" with no increase in wear-and-tear. Two singles of either sex are usually better housekeepers since there is more to lose if they should become sloppy. Married couples are bound by a "paper contract" to live AS IS until death dus part.

death do us part.

Let's not forget that about 47 per cent of the population in this state rent and that the number one complaint received by the attorney general's office concerns landlord-tenant relations. Gov. Jerry Brown has said rents are "not in the American tradition of owning a home" — they are second-class citizens. — R. David Herndon, Hayward.

ANSWER: Despite the governor's attitude, I couldn't agree more with your comments about tenants' rights. Unfortunately, moral rights are one thing, and life is quite another.

Dear Mr. Campbell:
In a few months I will finish paying off a $2,500 loan. I was told by one of the agents that I would have to pay $20 more to city hall to clear myself of said loan. Is there such a law? I thought after I finished my obligation, plus interest, it was all I needed to!clear my debt. Please let me know if this is so. — A. P., Philadelphia, Pa.

ANSWER: Yes, there is such a law, and actually answers: 1es, there is such a taw, and actually it's a small price to pay for having this debt recorded as being paid. Without it you could — at some time in the future — have the devil's own time trying to sell your house; lot or whatever piece of real estate you pledged as collateral.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Dear Mr. Campbell:

My husband and I have been separated 33 years.
Since then I have purchased a house. His name is not on my deed but I have been told that upon my demise he would be able to get my house.

I contacted a lawyer and told him the facts by telephone. I was told to come to his office for a conference and that the fee was $50. Naturally, I didn't appear. Would you please answer this question for me? —Mrs. V. B., Hartford, Conn.

DRANGE COUNTY EVENING NEWS AND INDEPENDENTS

ANSWER: I can answer it only by saying that the $50 you just "saved" yourself could turn out to be the most costly mistake of your life. If you are still legally married to this man, and if you should die without a valid will, then he most certainly would be in line for the house — or a hefty percentage of it state laws concerning residents who die without a will vary, but a surviving spouse is the prime heir. Please keep that appointment with the lawyer.

MOTOR LOG TO GENE AUTRY HOTEL, PALM SPRINGS lew T-Bird is a winner

By Bill Emery Associate Auto Editor

Thundering bools and thundering birds ... there's a new kind of thunder in Palm Springs and a new kind of Thunderbird from Ford in tind of Thunderbird from Ford in the personal luxury car market.

Gene Autry, who rode Western saddle on his horse. Champion, for three generations and 95 movies singing and playing his guitar while wearing a white Stetson 10 gallon cowboy hat, has moved on the premise of his 15-acre resort hotel in Palm Springs.

E. Having recently expanded the Having recently expanded the facilities to include suites and bungalows that are as luxurious as any in the lower desert, the Gene Autry Hotel now features three swimming pools, 2 hot therapy pools and four championship tennis courts.

To visit this luxury home of the Angels when practicing for the season in the desert, we borrowed a new 1977 Thunderbird from Jack Wixom, owner of Pacific Ford at 3600 Cherry Ave. in Long Beach and drove to the Gene Autry Hotel at 4200 Palm Canyon Drive East in Palm Springs.

It's a rare privilege to testdrive a luxury car, and the new 1977 Thunderbird, with a new look, a new size and all the luxury ap-pointments is the quietest car-we've driven. It's so smooth and effortless to drive that it almost mesmerizes you.

Individual front seats are large in every dimension, supporting long legs right out to beneath the knees and they are deeply padded for complete support. The driver seat is adjustable six ways, while the passenger side reclines for even more comfort on long trips.

Although the "T-Bird" is 10 inches aborter this year, the car sports a wider track and a new suspension system that makes it agile in the corners and over rough spots. There doesn't seem to be any loss in passenger roominess and the car looks as long as an Eldorado. Certainly, the hood line is as impressive as ever before An unusual feature in the electric sunroof, which is spotlighted by a unique wrap-over roof treatment, is the tinted see-through moonroof that can be completely blocked out by a sliding panel that shuts out all sun rays and matches the head-liner. liner.

Much of the luxury appointments on the Thunderbird appointments on the Thunderbird are optional equipment. The motor log car was equipped with dual remote-control outside sport mirrors, automatic temperature control air conditioning, speed control built into the steering wheel. AM-FM stereo radio with Quad 8-tape player and power windows.

It was a surprise to touch the door handle one night and see the interior light up as well as the door keyhole. This has to take the frustration out of finding the keyhole in the rain at night, or, for that mat-the rain at night, or, for that mat-ter, any dark night. In a few sec-onds, the light goes out by itself. Among the standard features of the all new Thunderbird are power steering, power front disc brakes, automatic transmission and a new 302 CID 2V V-8 engine. Optional 351 and 400 cubic-inch V-8 engines can be ordered.

carge coach windows in the rear quarter panels eliminate blind spots and make it much easier to back out of tight areas. This together with wide sweeping windows give the new T-Bird excellent visibility. Large coach windows in the

For a mid-sized car built on a 114-inch wheelbase, the new Thun-derbird offers good looks, good handling, a quiet, smooth ride and prestigue to match anything in the luxury field. Its elegance is mir-rored in the reflection of the many admirers both on the road and in the post desert resort area.

Gene Autry is the Emperor of Entertainment. For decades, he entertained us on radio, in the movies, in personal appearances and on television singing cowboy songs and classic standards while accompaning himself on the guitar. Then he took to entertaining us with his care has aball team the with his own baseball team, the Angels. Now, he entertains travelers and vacationers in one of the most elegant hotels in the lower desert resort area of Palm Springs. all the while seeking a pennant for his famed team.

The Gene Autry Hotel used to sit all by itself on the side of the road leading to the Palm Springs Golf Course, just barely sitting on the edge of 15 acres. Today, luxury residential units border the hotel, and last year, a $2 million expansion added 12 luxurious bungalows and executive suites that rum as high as $135 per night.

Four championship tennis courts, three awimming pools and two hot therapy pools make this botel a contender for the most desirable resort in the desert.

Gene and his wife, Ina Mae since 1932, moved into their own home on the property a couple of months ago and can frequently be seen in the El Sombrero Room, which features the finest Mexican which leatures the these ward culinary talents to be found, as well as charcoal broiled steaks and chops and other American dishes.

New convention facilities offer private parking and entry to richly decorated conference and ball rooms. At a recent celebrity-packed evening of fund raising for the Eisenhower hospital, more than $2 million was raised with personalities such as former President Ford, Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra among the guests attending.

The convention center has complete separate kitchen and bar fa-cilities plus accommodations for entertainment.

Frank Davis, the hotel's general manager, told of plans to add condominiums on the hotel property which would be serviced and maintained by the hotel staff. And, the hotel may go after the big and, me note may go after the ofg league tennis groups by doubling the number of courts now in opera-tion. A pro shop is currently under construction with Terry Ackerman, resident pro, available for lessons.

Continuous entertainment is tensioned sentertainment is cocktail founge: A new glass-enclosed Garden Room just off the landscaped pool area is available for breakfast, luncheon, dinner or private cocktail and dinner parties.

The next time you hear "Ru-dolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer". chances are it will be Gene Autry singing it as that one record alone topped 10 million in sales ... one-fourth of his total record sales. And next time you go to a game at Angel Stadium, you can bet your bottom dollar Gene Autry will be there rootin' for his team. He had to leave right after the interview as the Angels were playing that Saturday night and had never lost a bome game, which he always attends. Maybe, just maybe he'd get that pennant by going on the road. And, maybe, just maybe, the Angels would all be winners if they hit the road in a new 1977 Thunder-bird. It's a real winner!

WHY A CAREER AT REX L. HODGES REALTY?

Answer: You have more going for you. "IT IS JUST THAT SIMPLE," stated Bernie Jones, Vice-President/General Sales Manager. Rex L. Hodges Realty has been in business since 1929. That's over 48 years in the Long Beach/Orange County basin. We are a "Family of Companies." Today more than ever before we all value a family relationship. Our family extends from Robert C. Westmyer, owner of Rex L. Hodges Realty, to one of our newer salespersons Steve Smith, who recently ioined Rex L. Hodges at our Westminster Village office. Steve formerly owned a large hamburger franchise. Everyday we are striving to make "Our Company" a better Company.

> The Real Estate market is pretty well saturated in every city, so there has to be reason to choose REX L. HODGES REALTY and after 48 years in this business we know what the differences are: We also feel the programs we offer to salespersons, and also to the customers, who will be selling their homes, and the persons who will purchase homes in 1977 will enable you, the salesman, to provide 100% coverage. When Rex L. Hodges Realty offers the services, we are aware we have that extra edge coupled with 48 years of sound. confident service. A solid family atmosphere and you have a winner.

JUST LOOK AT THE DIFFERENCES

Beach office on Pacific Coast Highway.

Juanita Newman, the manager, is a fine example of the great opportunity at Rex L. Hodges company.

If management is in your plans, plan a career with Rex L. Hodges Realty.

In 1976 Rex L. Hodges Realty purchased Pacific Bay Real Estate in Northern California serving the East Bay area including Oakland, Berkeley and Richmond. Now! That's growth, and we are negotiating with others at this very time.

Equity Loans: Your customers can take advantage of a "no payment" part of their equity loan and repay when their home has

Training and Counselling: A professional never stops training and retraining. A license allows you to sell. Rex L. Hodges Realty shows you how to match the right buyer and the right home, and how to market that owner's home to get it sold. Real Estate is a very rewarding profession and yet there are many different problems that arise, and when a Company has fellows like Earl J. Christensen, Vice-President, and Terry Mulholland, Vice-President, you have two of the finest minds in General Real Estate State of California. When you join Rex L. Hodges you join our family and families seem to have a way of overcoming any or all of the difficulties that arise.

Trade in Program: An absolute must in the 70's. Our Trade-In Program is not some hit or miss proposition. It works. We pioneered "Trade-Ins" in 1929. Think about it.

H & H Development Co. H & H Development Co. is a subsidiary of Rex L. Hodges, a part of our family. We build apartments, condominiums, shopping centers and medical offices. We will also build for your clients on their buildable lots. All H & H properties are covered by a Builder's One Year Warranty. Another good reason to start your career at Rex L. Hodges.

HOME WARRANTIES:

When you purchase your next home specify you want an American Home Shield Warranty. (*This one year warranty protects your home against the defects or malfunction of the major systems, appliances, and hot water heater, garbage disposal, dishwasher and last but not least waste and drainline stoppages). So call the nearest Rex L. Hodges office and specify that you want an American Home Shield One Year Warranty and leave the shopping to us.

when you sell your home please remember that when your home is listed with Rex L. Hodges Realty, if you so desire, your home will be covered by American Home Shield Warranty. Ask the salesperson about the defails. Better still call and we will deliver the prophyres with information. Walt was reconst brochures with information. Well, we ran out of space, but I hope that maybe we have told the Rex L. Hodges story and remember there is a difference when you join our family.

Cordially yours, Bernie Jones -

Mr. Kunkel joined the Long Beach District Board of Realtors April 17, 1957, served on many committees and received a certificate in Real Estate from City College. He is now serving a 2nd term as a Director of our Board and currently serving the first of a 3 year term as State Director on the Multiple Listing Commit-

Bruce was employed by another Realtor 3 years before opening his own office at 1651 South St., Long Beach, with his wife. Helen has been a Realtor Associate working with Bruce since 1966. They specialize in personalized, know-how service to their many clients and Bruce has been a consistent million dollar producer

Among his hobbies are traveling, music, bridge, sports and creative real estate. The Kunkels have a daughter who is a Sergeant Deputy Sheriff and a son graduating from Sonoma State going into graduate studies, along with 4 grandchildren. They have been very active in their church the 30 years they have lived in the great city of Long Beach. Bruce is a member of the Calif. Assoc. of Realtors Real Estate Certificate Institute Division and has had many courses in advanced investment, real estate exchange, etc.

Two specials to take look at TV in '50s

By Bob Martin TV-Radio Editor

Remember television in

Two upcoming TV specials — one from CBS and the other from NBC — will provide viewers with a nostalgie look at popular performers and programs of the period, along with televised news highlights of the decade.

The CBS special, produced by CBS News with Charles Kuralt as narrator, is titled "When Television Was Young." It will air Thursday night from 9 to 11 or Channel?

NBC's program is called "TV: The Fabulous 50s." It originally was scheduled to be shown Saturday night from 9:30 to 11, but has been post-poned to an as yet unannounced date.

Six stars will host different segments of the NBC show - Lucille Ball. situation comedies; David Janssen, action dramas; Michael Landon, Westerns: Mary Martin, dramatic and musical speuramatic and musical spe-cials; Dinah Shore, vari-ety shows, and Red Skel-ton, comedians.

Some persons look back upon the Fifties as "the Golden has at talentime".

Golden Age of television." But, then, some people think of the Depression era of the 1930s as "the Good Old Days." Maybe it's just that we tend to remember the good things and forget the bad. Or maybe it's just that we were younger in the Fifties.

Overall, the TV fare of today is no doubt superior to that of the '50s, but many memorable programs were turned out in those early days of televi-sion — and some entertainment giants were in their prime.

The two specials will jog viewers' memories and bring to mind:

Comedians such as EDWARD R. MURROW ... Millon, Berle, Ed. Winn, JACKIE GLEASON, ART CABRIEY

Comedian Klein hones skills on college circuit

By James Simon

NEW BRUNSWICK. N.J. A - Contedian Robert Klein says he's limiting his television talk show appearances these days and concentrating on college concerts to prevent being "sucked dry" by the tube. "TV only gives you the tip of the iceberg: you've got to be quick and funny," said Klein, who got much of his exposure in 50 appearances on 'The Tonight Show' with Johnny Carson.

"It's, 'Well Johnny, I'm back in L.A., I've got a new album out, and then move over one chair. I fell off the edge once when he had all the Mills Brothers on. In the last several years I've done less TV: less frequently and more effectively, I hope. I can do as much of it as I want. I can always give a good 15 minutes, but you can be sucked dry of material.

SO KLEIN, 35, has turned his attention to the college concert circuit, where he pockets several thousand dollars a night for 90 minutes of improvisational comedy. Much of the material centers on his student days at Alfred.

"I picked the college by the catalogue; all those pictures of smiling students walking along with heads up. No pictures of drunk students throwing up ... nothing like, 'I may be pregnant,' says Freshman Sue."

Despite the Bronx-born comic's reservations about TV talk shows, he recently completed "Klein Time, a pilot comedy show for CBS which he hopes will get a spot in the network

"IVE HAD problems with Standards and Practices - the censor. I wanted to use 10-second film of paramecia repro-ducing," he told a crowd of 2,300 at Rutgers Univer-

"They don't even have sex. They just split up. No one can get excited about paramecia. Nobody walks around saying, 'I'd like to see pictures of young paramecia. If your job is to look for things dirty, you'll find them."

After Alfred, Klein attended Yale Drama School before joining the Chicago improvisational company "Second City" in 1965. He credits that group with nurturing comic skills that were later honed in dates at nightclubs and on the TV talk show circuit.

Klein has been in four movies and has three comedy albums out.

The crime is incidental on 'McMillan,' 'Lanigan'

By Jerry Buck

On "McMillan" and "Lanigan's Rabbi" crime is regarded as a necessary

The crime, usually murder, is only an excuse to bring the characters together for a display of light comedy by some of the best practitioners on the tube.

The two shows look and feel different from the usual police drama. There are few car chases and shootouts — but how the words do fly. The plot is often sidetracked for an irrelevant scene involving the main characters.

The dialogue, particularly on "Lanigan's Rabbi," is witty and droll, and the characters emerge as more than just cardboard cutouts.

"McMILLAN" and "Lanigan's Rabbi" will be seen tonight in an NBC Double Feature Sunday Mystery Movie. "MeMil-lan" airs at 8 and "Lani-gan's Rabbi" at 9:30 on Channel 1.

"It's an absurd word. but I look for mischief in the eyes and interplay of an actor," said Leonard B. Stern, whose Heyday Productions turns out the two shows.

"It's so hard to find an actor who can convey a sense of charm. There aren't many light, charming comedies still being done where you can hone that talent.

Fortunately, he has two with well-honed talents in Rock Hudson (McMillan) and Academy Award-winner Art Carney (Lanigan). Stern's association with Carney goes back to "The Honeymooner" days. when he was writing for that classic comedy and Carney was playing Norton the sewer worker.

"ROCK IS an actor who

was weaned on light comedy and farce," said Stern, "He was able to Stern. "He was able to make the transition to this show with case. Do you realize that most of his peers from those earlier days are now in their 70s? And there are few replacements coming along.

Stern said this lack of training also extends to writers and directors. The "Lanigan" script was written by two fine word-smiths, Don M. Mankiewicz and Gordon Cotler, who also do the polish work on the "McMillan" scripts.

In tonight's show,
McMillan is called on to solve the murder of a beautiful photographer's model, while carrying on a hit-and-run romance with photographer Joan Van

The story is somewhat reminiscent of the 1940s detective movie "Laura." McMillan becomes obsessed with the mystique of the victim as he views films of her — and the "victim" walks in alive and well. She had flown off to a mountain cabin for the weckend and a visitor was done in instead.

gan and Rabbi David Small (Bruce Solomon) solve the murder of a psychiatrist who's had too many couch sessions with his women patients. Lanigan must put up with an ambitious politician who demands a quick solution.

The solutions of both murders are a little shaky, but the character revelations en route make it worthwhile.

"McMillan" underwent a basic change with the departure of Susan St. James as the wife at the beginning of the fall season. Stern said, "lt's helped us creatively because we can look at the show with a new perspec-tive. We're trying to go back to the romantic mood of earlier Rock Hudson movies by bringing in girlfriends.

"Lanigan's Rabbi" is inits first season and is a more interesting show than "McMillan." The concept and the characters offer more depth and range, and Art Carney is one of the finest actors on the screen today, as he has proved with his Oscarwinning performance in "Harry and Tonto" and in "The Late Show." Newcomer Bruce Solomon as the rabbi has emerged as a dest performer in his exchanges with Carney.

Best of worst appear on 'Gong Show' special

By Bettelou Peterson Knight-Ridder Newspapers

The acts that don't get "The Gong Show" aren't the worst that try out. They are the merely me-

"When we're picking acts," said Chuck Barris, show's C 0 the creator and coproducer, we're looking for the best and the worst. It's sort of like a 'U'. Anyone down in the valley is out." (Along with the tasteless).

Barris and his partner, Chris Bearde, still are somewhat surprised to be the inventors and proprietors of the country's newest craze.

"The Gong Show" with
Barris as host is seen daytimes Monday through Friday on NBC. A halfhour syndicated version with comic Gary Owens as host is on various stations in the evening. And Tues-day at 8 p.m., NBC will present a special hour-long "Gong Show" hosted by Barris.

CHUCK BARRIS is the producer-host and Tony Randall is one of the guests on "Gong Show" special at 8 p.m. Tuesday on Ch. 4.

THE SPECIAL will include old and new acts plus cameo bits by celebrities such as George Burns and Ben Vereen. There will be other celebrity guests on the panel of judges who are the keepers of the gong used to stop the acts too awful to continue.

Barris insists that "not one act is a put-on. They're for real. They think they have something legitimate to sell. You'd be surprised how many of the worst have actually worked somewhere.

'Most of them are intensely serious about what they do. We've had a few turn hostile when they're gonged."

THE BIG difference between "The Gong Show". and the old Major Bowes, later Ted Mack, "Amateur Hour" is the basic premise. "We aren't a showcase," said Barris. "We aren't trying to give talent their big break. We're just putting on the most entertaining show we can.

Some "Gong Show" acts have gone on to other jobs after they were on the air, said Barris. "After all, a national TV show is great exposure. Agents are taking a look at it."

Actually, it was an updated "Amateur Hour" he had in mind when he started out, said Barris, a veteran game show producer. ABC, which carried his "The Dating Game" and "The New-lywed Game," asked him for a new daytime series. "But I found there just weren't enough acts to do a straight show," said Rarris.

THE GONG idea came out of "some kidding around" by Barris and Bearde, who work together on another syndicated series. "The Bobby Vinton Show." At first, there was plenty of gong material in Southern California's vast reservoir of oddballs and hopefuls. Now gong acts come from all over the country, "On their own," underlined Barris. The show does not pay transportation.

"We have to start out with about 400 acts to get the 45 we need for each week's shows," said Barris. "The stall tapes them. then gets it down to about 150 that they send on to BARRIS and Bearde go through the audition tapes three days a week. Each Saturday, Barris tapes the five shows for the daytime series one after another. He'll add a sixth show to his schedule next fall when he replaces Owens as host of the syndicated series. (The special is one of four for NBC-TV, said Barris, and not a pilot for still another "Gong Show. 7

Now that his face is familiar, Barris has discovered a hazard he's never known before. No matter where he goes, acts try to audition for him.

"I CAN usually escape the ones who corner me in the supermarket." he says. "But on airplanes, I'm trapped, Even in first class, they insist on auditioning in the aisles. I tell em, if they want to get on the show, go on down to the auditions."

Kraft is spending less on TV, enjoying it more

By Bob Wiedrich

Kraft, Inc., is spending less on television advertising and enjoying the benefits of its policy more.

Instead of being bombarded by phone calls from indignant parents, the Glenview, Ill., based firm is receiving plaudits for refusing to spend its shareholder's dollars to sponsor filth on the air.

Part of the reason for concentrating more of its multimillion-dollar annual advertising budget on the print media and radio results from the rising cost of sponsoring prime-time TV shows.

However, a goodly por-tion of the decision to switch also was dictated by a shortage of quality programming that would conform with the firm's standards of good taste.

KRAFT, INC., will not sponsor shows requiring a parental discretion label, nor will it sponsor programs involving sex, shock or violence themes.

The company constantly monitors the programs offered it for sponsorship. And it remains alert against getting caught in the switches by spot announcements sandwiched into programs containing off-color or otherwise objectionable material.
"Kraft commercials are intended to express the same sense of respect a well mannered guest would show in a consumer's home, for that is how the company sees itself each time one of its mes-sages appears," says Ar-thur W. Woelfle, Kraft's president and chief operating officer.

INSISTING wholesome programming to accompany its commercials is nothing new for Kraft. The firm pioneered the concept nearly 50 years ago in the days of radio.

And although Kraft now finds itself confronted by a diminishing field of programs meeting its standards, the firm refuses to cop out as many of its corporate colleagues have by claiming they have no control over the content of TV shows they sponsor.

Kraft formalized its policy, especially designed to avoid bankrolling shows with a potential adverse effect on children, in 1970. It summoned the chief executive officers and account executives of its ad agencies to reiterate the firm's long-standing policy.

IT HELD another meeting last spring to re-emphasize its demands that Kraft dollars never be used to subsidize the national TV trend toward airing garbage during prime-time hours.

On both occasions, Dr. Walter Menninger of the Menninger Foundation was on hand to explain the psychological implications of objectionable programming material on society.

His presence also served to emphasize that the position taken by Kraft, inc., was not an executive whim but was well founded on tact.

Last year, Kraft spent $101.9 million on worldwide marketing programs. The sum included sponsorship of five TV specials that not only won awards but drew large audiences.

THEY ALSO served to highlight the company's determination to spend its money only on programs qualifying as family entertainment so as to hopefully exert a positive influence toward reshaping the standards of the television  $industry\ itself.$

'At last year's meeting with the advertising agen-cies, we found that far less quality programming was available to us in 1976 than company spokesman said. "The change was astound-

"As a result, we are being even more careful, especially in placing spot advertising.

"And in 1977, the amount of radio and print advertising by Kraft will be going up because of the limited number of ttelevision) programs available to us.

JAMES KEMPER JR., chairman of the Kemper Insurance Companies, calls that "socially responsible programming." His firm also refuses to sponsor violence and filth.

Kemper recently wrote the top executives of about 30 major American corporations, detailing his company's guidelines for tasteful TV advertising.

Water shortage: another phoney crisis?

Is there a water shortage? No. Well, yes. Well, maybe, depending. Well, not for five years.

Meanwhile, the waters in Southern California flow lavishly, while the water experts drown us in rhetoric.

Tonight, Channel 7 launches its most devastating documentary series yet. "The Big Drought," an Eyewitness Closeup, separates the drought news from the gossip and California's ... lurid water past from our painful water present.

Turn off the bath water, and turn on Eyewitness News at 6 o'clock every night this week. We'll pull the plug on your drought doubts.

CBS report. on baseball, a business .

"It is dangerous, cruel and unfair. And for the young, strong, talented and lucky, it is absolutely wonderful. For us, if we don't strain the point too hard, it can provide a parable for our changing times." It is baseball, America's symbol, and the description is Bill Moyers' on CBS Reports: The Baseball Business, to be broadcast Tuesday, April 26 (10-11 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

This broadcast will preempt regular programming.

The New York Yankees are the focus of the broadthe and cast representatives of what baseball has become.

Q. Jimmy Carter promised the American people an open Administration. Will he and Attorney General Grillin Bell therefore make available to the American people a list of those Congressmen who accepted bribes from the South Korean CIA, or will we have the usual Congressional cover-up?—R. P., Clilton, N.I.

A. We will have to wait and see.

MAE WEST

Q. About MaeWest—what is her true age? And does she have some weird fetish about muscle men? Also, what is her new film "Sextette" about?—Jim M., Hopedale, Ohio,

A. Mae West is about 85, give or take a few years. She gives her official birth date as Aug. 17, 1893, but those women who are jeal-ous of her perennial youth maintain that she was captured by the Confederate Army as a Yankee spy during the Civil War, 1861-65. "Sextette," based on her own play, concerns the efforts of Mae—an American superstar—and a British nobleman to consummate their marriage. It is a farce. Mae for years has had a penchant for muscle men, equating overdeveloped muscles with sex.

Q. Is it true that tennis champ Jimmy Connors has lost his girlfriend, Marjorie Wallace, to Berry Gordy of Motown Records and that he's returning to Chris Evert?—L.G., Boca Raton, Fla.

A. Connors has lost Wallace, is not returning to Evert.

Q. Why is James Abourezk, the Democratic Senator from South Dakota, quitting the U.S. Senate after one term?—F.S.S., St. Paul, Minn.

A. He is fed up with the hypocrisy of the Senate and many of its members. He believes they are more interested in furthering their careers than in serving their constituents. That Senatorial life is not for him. It is also not for his wife Mary, who found conditions in Washington so vapid that at one time she went to work as a dental assistant. Abourezk, the least affluent of all U.S. Senators and one of the most honest plans to practice law in South Dakota and elsewhere.

THE JAMES SCHLESINGER FAMILY IN 1974

Q. James Schlesinger and wile Rachel—do they have eight or 12 children?—Hannah Clark, Buffalo, N.Y.
A. The Schlesingers have eight children at this writing.

Q. Has Michael Manley, Prime Minister of Jamaica, succumbed to Fidel Castro of Cuba? Is Castro communizing Jamaica?—F.T. Gomes, Miami, Fla.

A. Mr. Manley's People's National Party (PNP) is moving steadily leftward and establishing close ties with Cuba, only 95 miles across the Caribbean. Cuba's Interest In Jamaica is political and strategic; Manley seems to be going along with Castro.

Q. Why is NBC paying Henry Kissinger $1.5 million? —Louise Nevins, Scarsdale, N.Y.

A. Ostensibly for the TV rights to Kissinger's memoirs and occasional use of him as a commentator.

Q. Since moving to Vermont, has exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn been threatened by Soviet agents?—Knox Henderson, New York City.

A. Solzhenitsyn says he has, explaining, "Messages have been put under my gate with threats to kill me and my family."

Q. Last year I heard that Warner Bros. was about to produce a porno flick starring Warren Beatty called "Hardcore." Was it ever produced?—Jo Flandini, Jersey City, N.J.

A. "Hardcore," written by Paul Schrader, author of • "Taxi Driver," was shelved by Warner Bros., then reportedly sold to Columbia portedly sold to Columbia Pictures, which may or may not produce it this year.

Q. American Alrlines pleaded guilty to making an illegal $55,000 campaign contribution to Richard Nixon's reelection campaign, for which it was fined $5000. The company also said it made 71 illegal corporate contributions to 71 present and former politicians between 1971 and 1973. Were Gerald ford and Tip O'Neill among the recipients?—F.D., Washington, D.C.

A. They were alleged to have been, each for $100, but the government prosecutor says no action was taken because "we felt that in 99.8% of the cases we would be unable to prove that the recipients knew that the money was from the corporation and we felt in most cases they probably did not know."

Q. Is it true that President Carter tends to select the shorter of two equally qualified persons and that he himself wears elevator shoes?—Virginia Kimes, Homeworth, Ohio.

A. Carter does not wear elevator shoes, nor does he judge candidates by their height.

Q. How old is Barbara Walters, the TV commentator, and is ABC-TV going to drop her?—Helen T. Branch, Chicago.

A. Barbara Walters is 47. ABC-TV will surely hold on to her for the next two years, unless Miss Walters herself seeks to break her contract.

In Chicago, a woman with chronic pelvic pain has been freed of it.

In New York, a married woman long unable to conceive now has a child. and another unable to have intercourse without agonizing pain no longer has that problem.

Despite the varied nature of their symptoms, these women were victims of a single, common female disorder, endometriosis, and all have responded to a new drug, danazol, recently released for use by physicians after many years of investigation.

It's an unusual drug which seems to have other promise: against chronic cystic mastitis, a common breast problem: possibly even against breast cancer, and as an oral contraceptive for men as well as women.

But if it did no more than combat endometriosis, danazol would rank as an important advance.

Wandering tissue

Endometriosis is one of the most perplexing problems of women, an enigmatic disease in which endometrial, or uterine lining, tissue appears outside the utens in the abdominal cavity.

There it : s as if it were still in the uterus and each month becomes engorged. In the process, it may imitateeven scar—nearby organs and can grow into pea-size or larger nodules which may obstruct bladder or bowel or cause displacement of reproductive organs.

Endometriosis is a common cause of painful menstruation, chronic pelvic discomfort, prolonged or profuse menstrual periods, painful intercouse, and infertility.

And it used to be thought that endometriosis affected only women in the middle menstrual years, but recent reports note its occurrence in teens.

"The incidence is far greater than is generally suspected," says Dr. Robert B. Greenblatt of the Medical College of Georgia.

Disease often returns

Surgery has been used, but it is difficult to remove the out-of-place tissue and the disease often returns.

Because endometriosis is relieved during pregnancy, female sex hormones similar to those in oral contraceptives (which produce a pseudo-pregnancy state) have been used.

But such hormones have had drawbacks. During the initial months of treatment, they may increase pelvic congestion and the proliferation of aberrant tissue. Subsequently, 60 percent of women benefit, but sizable doses may be needed and some women worry about possible serious side effects such as blood clots that may lead to strokes.

Danazol provides a "significant new approach" to treating endometriosis,

A Breakthrough Drug For Women

by Lawrence Galton

Dr. Niels H. Lauersen (r) and his Cornell University Medical College team found that women on the drug danazol noted a decrease in menstrual and pelvic pain after 2-6 weeks. There is some hope it may prevent breast cancer.

according to physicians who carried out the trials before the drug's recent release by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Dr. Niels H. Lauersen of Cornell University Medical College, New York, has called it "a tremendous breakthrough."

It's a synthetic derivative of the male sex hormone testosterone, but with virtually none of the usual male sex hormone activity.

It stops ovulation, menstruation, and stimulation and engorgement of endometriosis in an entirely different way -by inhibiting output by the pituitary gland at the base of the brain of two hormones needed for ovulation.

First used effectively in the United Kingdom and treland, danazol has been under extensive testing in this country for more than six years.

Among the first U.S. studies was one by Dr. Greenblatt and a Medical College of Georgia team. Ninety-two percent of a group of women with endometriosis benefited, including women who had had previous treatments without success.

At Albany Medical College, Albany, N. Y., Dr. Robert L. Friedlander tried danazol in 28 women; 21 experienced complete pain relief and five others noted marked improvement.

In trials involving 370 patients at many medical centers, the drug relieved painful menstruation, the most common symptom, in 95 percent of cases; pelvic pain, the second most common symptom, in 88 percent; and painful intercourse, the third most frequent, in six months. In tests by Dr. Lauersen and the Cornell team, after two to six weeks of treatment, patients commonly note a decrease in pain, a general feeling of well-being and an ability to resume more physical activities. Patients usually have one menstrual period after start of treatment, then no more; but menstruation resumes three to six weeks after therapy ends. And the symptoms of endometriosis have not recurred for follow-up periods of up to a year thus far.

Aberrant tissue shrinks

A prime hope is that in the months without ovulatory stimulation, aberrant tissue may shrink and disappear-reabsorbed by the body.

And at the Michael Reese Medical Center, Chicago, Dr. W. Paul Dmowski and other physicians have carried out a study with 39 women. Prior to treatment with danazol, all the women had undergone laparoscopy, a diagnostic procedure in which a thin, electrically lighted tube is passed through a tiny incision in the abdominal wall for internal viewing. When the procedure was repeated after treatment, 59 percent of the patients showed no evidence of disease at all; 26 percent still had some adhesions but no more active endometriosis.

Trials have also demonstrated the ability of danazol to help some women with infertility problems. Medical College of Georgia physicians studied the drug in a group of women with infertility associated with endometriosis; 54,5 percent conceived. Notably, too, in another group of women with infertility for which no cause could be found, 40.7 percent conceived after danazol therapy.

Chronic cystic mastitis is a common breast disorder, producing lumpy masses, pain and tendemess.._

At Cornell, when Dr. Lauersen and his team gave danazol to 27 women with mastitis, all but one experienced not only relief of symptoms but marked decrease or complete disappearance of the breast masses.

During the mastitis study, the investigators noted that although most of the women were fertile, none conceived while receiving danazol. The drug is now being evaluated as a possible oral contraceptive.

A practical contraceptive?

Dr. Greenblatt points out that the drug has worked in preventing pregnancy without disrupting for any length of time the resumption of normal ovary function. And Dr. Lauersen stresses other important advantages if danazol proves practical as a contraceptive; it is actually anti-estrogenic and does not have the possible side effect of bloodclotting abnormality which may be associated with estrogen-containing products. And, as a nonestrogen pill, it could also be tolerated by women with cystic mastitis who cannot take the currently available preparations.

As for men, early work by Drs. R. D. Skogland and C. A. Paulsen of the University of Washington and the Public Health Service Hospital, Seattle, Indicates that danazol in combination with testosterone is a potentially effectiveand reversible—male contraceptive that markedly reduces sperm counts.

Can danazol help combat breast cancer? In preliminary animal studies, Drs. Thomas G. Peters and J. David Lewis of the Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, have noted shrinkage of breast cancer in two-thirds of danazol-treated cases.

Tested on animals

Moreover, when given to 50 healthy animals daily for six months before they were injected with cancer-causing chemicals, danazol prevented breast cancer in 43, So there is some possibility that the drug, if effective as an oral contraceptive, might simultaneously protect the breast against tumor. But it will take years of research to determine.

No drug is without side effects for some people, and danazol is no exception. The most prevalent undesirable effect is weight gain because of water retention. Often this can be controlled by a low-salt diet and early use of a diuretic drug to promote fluid excretion. Spontaneous elimination of fluid frequently occurs about the fourth month of treatment. Some decrease of breast size also occurs but is reversible.

Danazol, all told, appears to be a boon for many women with severe, difficult-to-control endometriosis and its complications, and with possible additional values as well.

The American dream of owning your own home is growing more

"There is already a critical housing shortage and the crisis is deepening." according to Leon Weiner, president of the Hational Housing Conferenco. "Soon, five families will be competing for every four apartments and homes available in many citles -- driving up home prices and rents.

By the early 1980's the average home will cost $78,000 and only those people with incomes in excess of $20,000 will be able to afford them. according to a recent Harvard-MIT study.

"Recalating costs are becoming the main housing problem, not only of the poor, but are spreading upward to affect middleincome people as well," Bays Arthur Solomon. director of the Harvard-MIT joint study. For example. 5 million homeowners have mortgage payments in excess of 25% of their income. Another 10.5 million tenants paid more than 25% of their income for rent in 1975. And almost 60% of America's families cannot afford to buy the median priced new home.

Despite the inflationary price of homes, the physical condition of many American homes is deplorable: 2.3 million U.S. households have no bathroom or share one; 700,000 households have plumbing that frequently breaks down; 4.5 million families live in houses with leaky roofs, and 3.6 million femilies are living in overcrowded conditions.

"We must both repair and maintain existing homes and apartments, and bulld each year a steady flow of new dwellings," Loon Weiner told a recent Mational Housing Conference in Washington, D.C. "Only such steady production will bring cost-saving. price-reducing efficiencies in our building . industry. Stop-and-go policies, with associated unemployment and bankruptcy, ultimately drive up costs and prices...."

Two years 820 actress Halina Mikolaiska was called "the sweetheart of the Polish public." She was the recipient of two national awards and publicized as "one of the most talented actresses in Poland."

Then she joined the Committee for the Defense of the Worker, took an active role in complaining about food shorteges and highprices.

Suddenly she was out of favor with the authorities, and strange things began to happen to her. Young men in the streets roughed her up. Anonymous phone-callers awakened her in the night, said she was "well-recommended as a whore" and asked how much she wanted for a romp in the hay. Her car was tampered with so it would blow up on starting, and she began receiving letters threatening her life.

Halina complained to the police in Warsaw, who brushed her off. In Krakow, when she complained of having been manhandled in a train compartment, the police there oddly enough told har she was under suspicion as a fur thief.

Some weeks ago a band of young rowdies broke into Halina's Warsaw apartment. warned her that she would be bombarded with rotten eggs if she ever appeared again onstage. She tried to phone the police, but the line went dead.

A few days later Halina Mikolajska suffered a nervous breakdown, was admitted to a sanitarium where psychiatrists diagnosed her as "seriously eick."

The chances of surviving an auto accident depend on the speed of your vehicle.

Data supplied by the National Safety Council show that your chances of living through an accident going 71 MPH or faster are no better than even.

Traveling 61 to 70 MPH, the chances are 7-1 in your favor, and 31-1 in your favor if you're traveling 51 to 60.

When you've slowed down to between 41 and 50 MPH. the odds jump to 88-1 in your favor and are 97-1 at 31 to 40 MPH.

Many women have stopped using the contraceptive pill. They are returning to other methods of birth control or forgoing them altogether.

A study reported in the "Journal of the American Medical Association" reveals that of 100 women at the cutpatient unit of the University of California Wedical Center in San Prancisco, 53% had changed contraception methods in the past two years, most of them abandoning oral contraceptión.

The study, seeking to determine current attitudes toward sex and reproduction, showed that among the younger population there was a substantial decrease in marriage. a decrease in the desire for children, a shift away from oral contraception to barrier methods and an increase in the acceptance and understanding of bisexuality.

Conducted by Susan Wall. R.N., and Nancy Kaltreider, M.D., the study involved women aged 19 to 75. The high percentage of non-marital cohabitation (23%) and single living (17%) indicate the currency of new life-styles.

Vantage perfects low-tar 100's.

Introducing Vantage 100s.

You may not have known it, but those extra long 100's that so many smokers find popular are usually extra long in tar.

And that means they couldn't be Vantage. Because Vantage was made for smokers who wanted a cigarette that was low in tar and high in flavor.

So we resisted the trend. Until we could perfect a 100 with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.

Well, we've done it. In new Vantage 100's. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage 100's. There's never been a long cigarette quite like it.

Sam Brown: Man in Action

by Peter J. Ognibene

ack in 1969 Sam Brown was in the streets leading peaceful anti-war demonstrations against the government, appointed by President Carter to head ACTION, the federal agency for volunteer activities at home and abroad.

ACTION is a natural spot for Sam Brown, because he's been an activist all his life. Now he expects to bring some of the same energy and organizing ability that made him a student protest leader a decade ago to the task of putting new life into government programs that he feels were permitted to languish during the Nixon and Ford Administrations.

Among these are the Peace Corps, VISTA, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, Senior Companion Program and Foster Grandparent Program, all of which call for broad citizen participation in the task of helping other people. Brown, now 33, thinks that Americans are still ready to respond to such calls provided they're given the opportunity and encouragement.

"I don't believe that they have lost their idealism or the appetite for the hard work of building a better future for our country," he says. "We possess a great reserve of human energy. But it cannot be conscripted—people won't respond just because their government is calling. They won't believe that they can make a difference unless they really can."

Looking ahead

Here's how Brown envisages the future of some of the programs he'll be running:

VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America): "I had a chance to meet a number of VISTA volunteers," he says. "Their willingness to work is remarkable. But the framework hasn't always been there to facilitate the work those people want to do." He'd like to see VISTA volunteers working increasingly in neighborhoods with community people on poverty problems.

• Peace Corps: Brown has strong ideas on building up this overseas operation that's fallen from a '66 peak of 15,500 volunteers to 6000. He'd like it to be broader based, rather than focusing on highly skilled professionals and technologists. The Peace Corps should be "a program of people serving people, not government serving other governments," he says. "The volunteers should not go into the world as American missionaries. They should neither be instruments of American policy nor salesmen for American culture." He'd like to see Peace Corps volunteers live among the people they're serving rather than in diplomatic compounds and find living styles appropriate to the local cultures. He'd also like to see the Peace Corps moving into additional countries without regard to whether the local government is "left" or "right," democratic or totalitarian.

• Programs for older volunteers: These include the Retired Senior Volunteers, Senior Companions, Foster Grandparents and others, all of which are designed to give a new sense of usefulness to older but still highly active citizens at the same time that they provide necessary services to others. Retired Senior Volunteers perform a wide range of tasks, from teaching first aid to providing transportation to physicals' offices, recreational facilities and the like. Foster Grandparents work with young children who have physical or emotional problems.

Brown would like to see all these programs expanded, and he waxes especially enthusiastic when he talks about ACTION's Senior Companion Program: "These are low-income people over the age of 60 who are paid a small stipend to work with the frail elderly. They help them buy groceries, clean their houses, or go out for a walk or ride with them. For the volunteer himself or herself, it's like a new lease on life.

"Too frequently," Brown adds, "older people in this country have been shunted aside, and they are, after all, the repository of this society's wisdom. They are the most skilled people we have... And yet, they get put aside as if they had nothing to contribute."

Unlike most of President Carter's top appointees—who come from prestigious law firms, banks and universities—Sam Brown has an unorthodox background. His principal career has been that of a political organizer.

Born in Iowa

A native of Council Bluffs, Iowa, he graduated from the University of Redlands in California, received an M.A. in government from Rutgers and attended the Harvard Divinity School. He began his political organizational work as president of the National Student Association, and in 1968 he became "chief kid" of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's unsuccessful drive for the Democratic Presidential nomination — a valuable lesson in grass-roots organizing.

In 1969, Brown organized and led the Vietnam Moratorium in Washington. That march of a half million Americans to protest the war in Vietnam was probably the zenith of the anti-war

The war, however, went on. So did Sam Brown. He left Washington, but instead of returning to lowa, he settled in Colorado. He went to the mountains to think and write, but he quickly discovered that he was not cut out for the contemplative life. He subsequently moved to Denver and became involved in a new political campaign, one unlike any of his past endeavors.

Olympics hassle

Colorado had bid for and won the right to hold the 1976 Winter Olympics, but after the initial euphoria wore off, it became evident that the businessmen who had made their successful pitch to the International Olympic Committee had not realistically calculated what it would cost the state's taxpayers to stage the games. Brown joined with several others and organized Citizens for Colorado's Future. The group mounted a petition drive to put the question of state financing of the Olympics on the 1972 ballot. Their statewide, citizen-lobbying effort resulted in a decisive victory for the referendum. The games went to Innsbruck, Austria.

RELIVIN CONTINUED

Two years later, Brown ran for state treasurer. Although the incumbent Republican tried to pin a radical label on Brown, the people didn't buy it. They gave him 55 percent of the vote.

Brown, a bachelor, began to take on the trappings of other established citizens in Denver. He bought a house in an inexpensive neighborhood, acquired a mortgage and a dog. He made the rounds of political dinners, spoke before civic groups. He skied or played tennis when he could, but mostly Brown took care of state business.

Carried out pledges

During his two years as treasurer, he put most of his campaign platform into practice. Banks had to bid competitively for the state's checking accounts. For time deposits of a year or more, Brown also considered each bank's "social responsibility." Those that lent proportionately more of their deposits to students, small businessmen, ranchers and buyers of old or relatively inexpensive homes received special consideration.

But of all the steps Brown took, none created more of a stir in the banking community than the "Guide to Banking Services" his office published. Because few banks were willing to cooperate, Brown hired two researchers to go from bank to bank to record their charges for checking and savings accounts as well as the interest rates they charged borrowers or paid depositors.

"I was elected to serve the people," he said, "and I'm doing what I can to demystify the banking industry."

When President Carter offered him the directorship of ACTION, Brown was reluctant to leave his adopted state, but he just could not say no.

Sam Brown sees no inconsistency between his years in government and his years outside. In both phases of his life, his objective has been the same: to get people to work together toward goals he believes will benefit all. He sums up his views of ACTION this way: "It's about the best job in town because it's independent. Our programs are, in many ways, the most idealistic things this nation does."

'We're looking for people who want to write and see their work published'

'Writing children's books and stories is the ideal place to begin a writing career,' says a widely published author. 'Ideas come naturally out of your own life and experience, and it's easier to get started — thanks to a remarkably effective Course you can take at home, in your spare time.'

By Alvin Tresselt

People are always amazed when they find out my 53 children's books have sold over two million copies. Yet they some serious writing?'

That used to make my blood boil. Writing for children is probably the most important writing of all. I had my own special reasons for concentrating on the children's market, and with a few hundred thousand published words behind me I can tell you this with authority: if your main interest in writing is getting published, there is no better place to begin than writing children's books and stories.

I've learned a lot about writing for children and I love It. Now I'm passing my knowledge on to my students so they can profit from it. When I'm not writing my own children's books and articles I spend my time at the institute of Children's Literature, a workshop for writers that does only one thing and does it better than any school or college or university I know: it trains qualified people to write for the children's market.

How we spot budding authors
What exactly is a "qualified person"? It's someone with an aptitude for writing who can take constructive criticism, learn from it, and turn it into a professional performance. Nobody else can get into the Institute of Children's Literature. The reasons are simple: our reputation is built on success, and if prospective students don't have the earmarks of success to begin with, we probably can't help them. And we tell them so, it's only fair to both of us.

To help us spot potential authors, we've developed a revealing test for writing aptitude. It's free, and we don't charge for our evaluation. But no one gets into the institute of Children's Literature without passing it. Those who pass and enroll receive our promise: You will complete at least one manuscript ready to submit to a publisher by the time you finish the Course.

Alvin Tresselt was the first editor of Humpty Dumpty's Magazine for Children, executive editor of Perent's Magazine Press and has served on the board of the Author's Guild. He is now Dean of Faculty at the Institute of Children's Literature.

When we teach, you learn

This is the way I work with my students, and my fellow instructors — all of whom are experienced writers or editors — work more or less the same way.

When you're ready — at your own time and your own pace — you send your assignment to me and I read it and reread it to get everything out of it you've put into it. Then I edit your assignment with a red pencil just the way a publishing house editor would. I return it along with a detailed letter explaining my editorial comments. I tell you what your strong points are, what your weaknesses are, and just what you can do to improve. It's a matter of push and pull; you push and I pull and between us both, you learn to write.

The proof of the pudding

This method really works. I wouldn't spend five minutes at it if it didn't. The proof of the pudding is that many of our students break into print even before they finish the Course.

Kathleen Huber, New York, N.Y., writes: "Regarding my sale to Highlights for Children for $125, it started out as a story assignment for the Institute, and Highlights was only the second magazine I had sent it to. Certainly your Course made this sale possible. It may be the best investment I ever made."

A.M. Hummel, Danville, Pa., writes, "When Highlights for Children accepted my short story — Assignment #8 in the Course — and sent me a $65 check, I could hardly believe it! Then, within a week, I got another check and a go-ahead for a second piece."

"I won first prize of $400 for a Course assignment!"

"Before taking your Course (which I checked out with the National Better Business Bureau), the short stories I scribbled for my two tiny tots never caught an editor's fancy," writes Emily Burns of Salem, Orecon.

"My first sale, to National Catholic Weekly, was a Course assignment. Then I submitted another Course assignment in a creative writer's competition and won first prize of $4001"

Yes, the market is out there for writers who are trained to crack it. More than 130 million children's books are purchased each year and sales top $330 million. Between 2,000 and 2,500 new titles appear annually and new authors account for as many as half of them. The 40,000 titles now in print have been on the active list an average of ten years and their authors collect $22 million each year in royalties!

There are also 250 children's magazines published with a total of 60 million copies printed every month. You can imagine how much writing it takes just to keep them colors!

Free Writing Aptitude Test offered

To find qualified men and women with an aptitude for writing, the Faculty and Consultants of the Institute have prepared a special Writing Aptitude Test. It is offered free of charge and will be professionally evaluated at no cost to you by our staff.

SERVE AN iTALIAN SUPPER

by beth merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Food with the flavor of Italy is always popular, and it need not take hours to prepare. To make the menu authentic, begin with a simple antipasto—Genoa salami, wedges of hard-cooked eggs, sardines, olives and fresh or marinated vegetables. Keep the servings small, so appetites are not dulled for the main course.

Easy Eggplant Parmesan is the star attraction—slices of eggplant coaled with commeal, pizza sauce and two varieties of cheese to give them crispness and a piquant flavor. Add a salad of tender spinach leaves glistening with Italian dressing, a loaf of warm Italian bread (plain or partially sliced and spread with garlic butter) and a decanter of Chianti wine. Spumoni ice cream provides a happy ending.

EASY EGGPLANT PARMESAN

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese 1/2 cup enriched commeal 1 medium-sized eggplant (about 11/2 pounds) pared and cut into 1/2-inch slices

1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted 1 can (8 ounces) pizza sauce

1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Mozzarella cheese

2 tablespoons chopped parsley Combine Parmesan cheese and commeal. Dip eggplant into butter; coat with commeal mixture. Place in greased 15½ x 10½-inch jelly roll pan. Spread slices with pizza sauce. Combine Mozzarella cheese and parsley; sprinkle over pizza sauce. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, or until eggplant is tender. Makes four to six servings.

THE OFFICIAL GOLD MINE INGOTS

in Solid 24 karat Sold

A UNIQUE COLLECTION OF THE OFFICIAL GOLD INGOTS OF THE GREAT GOLD-PRODUCING MINES OF NORTH AMERICA

A single, limited edition. Limit: One set per subscriber. Subscription deadline: May 15, 1977. Official Minter: The Franklin Mint

GOLD! The word instantly conjures up an image of riches . . . a feeling of power and prosperity ... thoughts of a great and glorious age in history. No other precious metal has been so widely praised and so universally desired by man.

And now, for the first time in history, the great gold producers of North America are making it possible for collectors in this country to acquire the official ingots of North America's almost legendary gold-producing mines.

This totally unique collection will contain fifty ingots, each representing one of fifty leading North American gold mines. And each of these ingots will be minted in pure 24 karat gold.

The Franklin Mint-the world's foremost private mint-has been appointed official minter for these historic gold ingots. And, to assure the rarity of this extraordinary collection, the mint will issue the ingots in a single, strictly limited edition. The complete collection is available solely by subscription, with an ordering deadline date of May 15, 1977, and an absolute limit of one collection per subscriber.

The great gold-producing mines

The fifty solid gold ingots in this collection will represent leading gold mines of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic—the five major goldproducing nations of North America, And each great mine is as unique and individual as were the undaunted gold prospectors of North America's history.

The mines to be represented include: HOME-STAKE, the most productive gold mine in the United States, situated in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where gold seekers risked the vengeance of the war-like Sioux as recently as 1875 . . . SOUTH PORCUPINE, of Ontario, Canada, where "the gold appeared in blobs like candle drippings and sponge-like masses, some of them as large as a cup." . . . CARLIN, in Nevada, where ultra-sophisticated extraction techniques recover gold in particles so small they can only be seen through an electron microscope . . . SUNNYSIDE, in Colorado, the third largest gold mine in the United States . . . and even the new PUEBLO VIEJO gold mine in the Dominican Republic—the largest gold mine in the Western Hemisphere, which produced more than 400,000 ounces of gold in its very first full year of operation.

Ingots of beauty and distinction

The name of each of these great gold mines will appear on the obverse of its official ingot. All of the names are distinctive. And many represent gold mines that even predate the settlement of the regions in which they are located. The reverse of each ingot will carry the name of the owner/operator of the mine . . . an engraved outline map indicating the area where that mine is located ... and a Franklin Mint hallmark cer-tifying that the ingot is minted in pure 24 karat gold. A Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to both the official status of the ingots and their gold content, will also accompany the collection.

Each ingot will measure 9.9 x 18.6 millimeters and will have a guaranteed weight of at least 40 grains of 24 karat gold. Thus, the complete set of fifty ingots will be guaranteed to contain more than 2000 grains of 24 karat gold! A stunning collector's treasury of solid gold. As rewarding to own as it is impressive to display.

A strictly limited edition

A very limited number of individual ingots are being minted for the actual gold producers for the use of their own staff or customers. Thus, it would be virtually impossible for any collector to acquire a complete set of all fifty ingots from the mines themselves—even if one could afford to travel to each of the gold mines to obtain

Those who subscribe to the series, however, will have the exclusive privilege of acquiring the complete collection directly from the official minter. And no other complete sets of The Official Cold Mine Ingots will ever be produced.

Moreover, the ingots will be issued to subscribers at the convenient rate of one per month for fifty consecutive months, beginning in June 1977,

The hand-crafted display chest which will acc the collection features a transparent security cover which may be kept locked for the protection of the gold ingots, yet provides a full view of the entire collection. A storage area is provided within the lid for the important background material that will accompany each ingot. And the owner's personal signature will be inscribed on the chest by the mint, if desired.

Deadline for ordering: May 15, 1977

For those with a special appreciation for the mystique of gold . . . for those who take pleasure in recalling the historic Gold Rush days of our history . . . for all those who seek to own heirloom works of distinction, heauty and raritythis collection of The Official Gold Mine Ingots will be a prized and enduring treasure.

But remember: all applications for this official collection must be postmarked by May 15, 1977, to be accepted.

Artist in paradise: Polynesian painter Rosine Temauri Masson stands amid some of her work hanging on walls of her breezy island home in Bora Bora.

Rosine's Life Is as Pretty as Her Pictures

by Richard Harrington

ahiti, with its exotic women, sundrenched atmosphere, brilliant skies and tropical landscape, has long held a special fascination for artists. The famous French painter Paul Gauguin, of course, did his most memorable work there.

Now, the neighboring South Pacific island of Bora Bora has produced an accomplished artist of Its own, a 32-year-old woman named Rosine Temauri Masson, one of whose paintings was selected for a stamp issued by the Tahiti Post Office.

Rosine has lived all her life on Bora Bora. She has traveled abroad only once, to exhibit her paintings two years ago at a show in Auckland, New Zealand. Every one of them was sold.

Her art career began at the age of 16, when she met the French painter Jean Masson, who settled on Bora Bora. She became in turn his model, his pupil and the mother of his four children: Giované, now 16; Fianetta, 14; Emmanuel, 12, and Martin, 9. Rosine lived with Masson until his death in 1973.

Today, she is a fine artist herself in watercolors and in block-printing cloth with Polynesian designs. Rosine has retained the best characteristics of a true Polynesian woman—independence, vitality, good humor, resourcefulness, charm, love of life and femininity.

"I'm the happiest person in the world," she says. "I've got four beautiful children, I love being an artist, and we live in a paradise. We never worry about food, shelter, money and the future. Every day is a new experience."

Rosine's children were all born out of wedlock, although the registered father is Jean Masson. There is no stigma to this in French Polynesia, where no child is ever unwanted. Every day the youngsters bicycle four miles to the village school in Vaitape. Occasionally Rosine drives them there in her Citroen.

She herself looks after the house—a comfortable abode fanned by constant trade winds. Food comes from a breadfruit tree nearby. She cooks and eats bananas from her own garden. There also is an abundance of hibiscus, frangipani and other blooms. The first thing she does every morning is to pick a flower to wear behind her ear. Then, unhurried in the Polynesian style, she washes the laundry, picks up dead leaves, fishes in the lagoon behind the house. She is the family's sole support, without ever thinking of asking anybody for help. That is an alien thought among Polynesians; they look after their own.

Pictures on walls

The walls of her home are hung with her own and Masson's paintings. She would never allow him to have another model, and he was quite content. Some of his best paintings were the many nudes for which she posed. Many of the portraits of her are in art collectors' hands. When Masson was alive, he made a precarious living, but since his death his paintings have jumped in price..

Rosine has developed her own style in painting, a combination of primitive and representational. She paints in her kitchen or under a tree and lets her ideas develop slowly as she works.

A couple of times she has had onewoman shows under the auspices of an art gallery in Tahiti. They have been financially successful, which has meant much for her self-assurance, besides enabling her to support the family. She also sells paintings to tourists right from her studio. She has posted signs near her house in French, English and Japanese inviting visitors to stop in and look. Most of her paintings are still lifes and local scenes, and they sell for $100 to $200, depending on size. Masson's paintings, of which she still retains many, bring 10 times that price.

Post office job

When officials of the Tahitian Post Office requested the use of one of her flower paintings for a new 20-franc airmail stamp, they didn't offer any payment, and to her timid query about an honorarium replied bluntly: "It's good publicity for you." Rosine took their word for it. Then they spelled her name wrong on the stamp-"Temarui" instead of "Temauri."

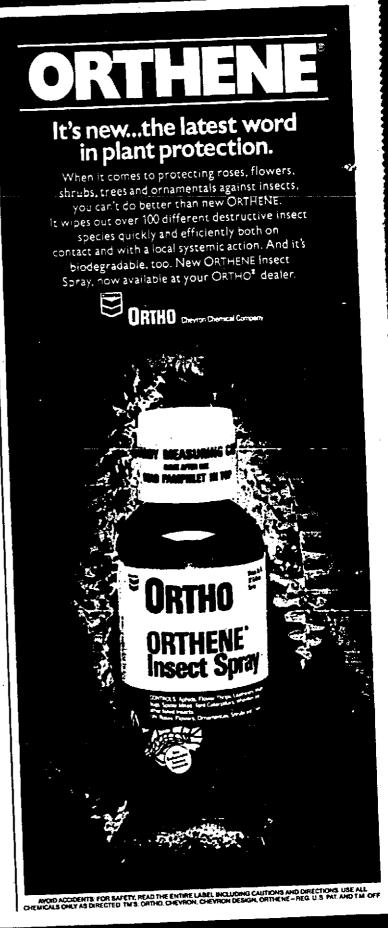

But Rosine shrugs off such minor mishaps. She's content with her life, her work and her children; if women in more "civilized" areas of the world are fighting for equal rights, Rosine figures she has them already.

Her artistic persistence is rather unusual among her people, who are inclined to work less rather than more, preferan easy, uncomplicated approach to life, and never stay long with anything. She's also unusual in that she appreciates her surroundings. The natives are not particularly aware of the magnificent natural setting of their islands, and of the spell they exert on foreigners. But Rosine sees beauty all around her and captures it in her paintings.

Rosine poses with her four children, whom she supports by painting. Their father was the late French artist Jean Masson, who lived here for years.

Q. How can I get back in shape?
A. There is only one answer to that: get more exercise.

Q. Won't sports do the trick?

A. Sure. sports are great, provided you practice a "complete" sport like jogging. swimming or rowing a few hours every week. Unfortunately, most men don't have the time or energy for that.

Q. How about calisthenics?

A. Also very good, but even a beginner's program should comprise at least 200 to 300 repetitions. Most men find calisthenics tiring and boring and give up after a few workouts.

(), Isn't there an easier way?

A. There is one outstanding home training method I use and recommend. It's fast, it's easy and it keeps you interested because during every workout you actually see your strength increasing on the built-in Powermeter gauge.

Q.-Mhat's it called?

A. Bullworker<sup>a</sup> training. It's based on Isometric techniques which have been proven to increase strength three times faster than conventional methods.

Q. How long does it take?

A. The introductory "get back in shape" program requires only 70 seconds of exercise per day. The complete advanced training program takes about 5 minutes.

O. What kind of results can I expect?

A. After 2 or 3 weeks of introductory training, most men can see an increase in strength of around 10% and measure an extra inch or two of muscle on their shoulders, chest, biceps—and an inch or two less flab around the waist.

Q. But it's hard work, isn't lt?

A. Absolutely not. Most men between 15 and 65 in good general health can run through the full program without getting tired. Bullworker training is progressive so you perform better each time, yet the training always seems easy to you.

Q. What can I expect from continued training?

A. The sky's the limit. There are specialized exercises for building-up or trimming down any part of your body you want to: broad, muscular shoulders—bulging biceps, powerful wrists and forearms—a deep, manly chest tepering down to a flat, trim waist—muscular thighs and calves. You can expect strength increases of up to 4% a week; that's 50% in just three months and I have seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength.

Q. How can I find out more about Bullworker?

A. I suggest you write for the Free Booklet in color. It contains complete details about Bullworker training and tells you how you can try a Bullworker for two weeks in your own home without cost or obligation.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Spacemomen

Nichelle Nichols, the 32-yearold actress best known as Lieutenant Uhura from the "Star Trek" spaceship Enterprise, is going to work for NASA.

She will be used in advertisements and teaching films to promote young people's interest in becoming astronauts.

Outfitted with a real space suit instead of the snug uniform from "Star Trek," Nichelle will also tour schools and universities promoting the career possibilities at NASA.

Youth Unemployment

More than 7 million young people are currently unemployed in the 23 Western industrial nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Youth unemployment is higher now than ever, according to the International Labor Organization in Geneva. The ILO reports that the 7 million figure doesn't completely reflect the situation because many young people have become fed up with job-hunting and are no longer counted as unemployed. Even if the economic situation improves significantly in these 23 richest nations, the ILO doubts chances will improve for these youths.

The reasons for youth unemployment, says the ILO, are the failure of the educational system to adequately prepare young people for the job market, the hesitation of employers to give them a chance, and the indifference of society.

Student Outlook

Four of every 10 high school students in Japan have thought at one time or another of committing suicide.

A poll of 1500 high school students conducted by Daito Bunka University revealed that 34 percent of the boys and 50 percent of the girls had considered suicide for a variety of reasons.

Among those who had pondered suicide, the meaninglessness of life, the fear of failure, and disagreement with parents were the reasons listed most frequently on the questionnaires.

Even those who had never thought of doing away with themselves said they had great worries, mostly about their futures. When asked what they thought Japan would be like by 1997, 56 percent predicted it would be much more difficult to live in than at present.

Enriched Flavor's Tobacco Gives Merit Significant Taste Edge.

Extensive taste tests show MERIT outflavors conventional low tar cigarettes.

Full tobacco flavor in a low tar cigarette. That's the remarkable MERIT breakthrough.

A breakthrough made possible by over twelve years of intensive research into the components of cigarette smoke that contribute most to flavor.

The result: 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.
MERIT and MERIT 100's are packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with extra flavor. Tobacco that for the first time delivers flavor you just wouldn't expect in a low tar cigarette.

Tests among thousands of smokers like

How Karen Frederick got Slender and stayed Slender.

"When I married Karen, she was already wearing a size 20, but I loved her because a man doesn't marry a dress size. And now... I've watched her blossom into a beauty!"

That's what Bill Frederick says about his wife, Karen, who lost 148 pounds with the help of Slender diet food.

Karen, who went from a high of 277 pounds to 129 pounds in 19 months, says, "I'd been heavy all my life. Nobody had ever seen me slim.

Then, I finally tried Slender, Well, honest, it's delicious...the canned Slender tastes just like a malt.

I think the Slender worked because if I'm going to sit down and eat, I'll ent...a frozen pizza or two, cookies, candy...but I could just grab a can of Slauder and it'd satisfy me. I wasn't tempted. It was amazing. Sometimes I'd have lean meat, a vegetable, and some salad for dinner but, mostly, I stuck with the Stender.

'And when I started on Slender." Karen continues, "my measurements were 52-52-52. Now they're 34-271/2-36.

"Another thing," she says, "I'm working now. It's so hard to get a job when you're fat. Nobody would hire me. I don't think I worked two weeks in my whole life until I got this job. And I love working. People seem to like me better, too. My personality has completely changed because I was bashful before, and I wouldn't have anything to do with people."

Karen has kept her new Slender figure for over year. "I can eat whatever I want now," she says, "but don't desire the sweets like I used to eat all the time." "That's right," Bill Frederick says, "Karen tried to lose weight for so many years ... and she'd get aggravated and quit. But I never made fun of her or said the word 'fat.' Who am I to talk anyway...I'm no Mr. America. I loved her for what she was from the start... and I encouraged her. But if somebody gave us a million dollars to have her back the way she was, I wouldn't take it!

When Karen finally reached 129 pounds she had her wedding ring cut down from size 91/2 to 5.

Just look at Karen's picture. You'd never guess that this vibrant, auburnhaired woman had to make all of her own clothes; there were so few dresses in her size. And now-for her Slender after picture, she's slipped into a size 10!

Think about it. It could be you. Just stop by your market and get a week's supply of Slender-for starters. Next thing you know, you could be in one of our adslooking fantastic!

Are NATO's ground forces a match for the Soviets? Some military experts say the sophisticated anti-tank missiles used by NATO forces can stop any Russian tank assault across Europe.

that the Soviet Union is spending more on defense than was previously believed. But they point out that this does not mean that the Soviet Union has more men or more weapons as a result, merely that the ruble cost of the Soviet defense budget is higher than had been estimated before. In fact they argue that the higher estimates show that the Soviet defense industries are probably less efficient than Western economists had calculated.

American accuracy

50 far as Soviet missiles are concerned, the counter-argument is that whereas the Soviets may have more launchers and larger missiles, the U.S. strategic missiles are more accurate and also carry more warheads. Both sides are now able to attach extra warheads to their missiles, which are then released in flight to strike separate targets. But the United States is at least five years ahead of the Russians in this sophisticated technology. At present, on its submarines, bombers and ICBM's. the United States has 8530 deliverable nuclear warheads, whereas the Soviet Union has only 3250, Furthermore, the Defense Department now concedes that the Russians are equipping their missiles with these extra warheads at a rate far slower than had been feared.

Again, while the explosive power of Soviet missiles is superior to the American equivalent, it is also agreed by all that the accuracy of American Minuteman missiles is formidable. U.S. nuclear subs carry missiles accurate within one-quarter of a mile and new rockets are being developed that narrow the margin of error down to four city blocks.

On the seas

As to the Soviet naval buildup, it is true that the Soviet Union has long been intent on boosting its forces and on being able to do more than merely defend its own coastal waters. They have long had a superiority in dieselpowered submarines. But one reason why the United States seemed to be slipping behind over the last few years was that many of its ships came due for mothballing because of age. We are now engaged in a large ship construction program just at the moment when the Soviet Union will itself have to start retiring many of its ships. There are also wide differences in servicing capability. Gen. George Brown, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, recently pointed out that only 11 percent of the Soviet submarine fleet was out of port at any given time. whereas 50 percent of the U.S.fleet of Polaris and Poseidon submarines was usually on the high seas. A year ago Secretary of the Navy William Middendorf said flatly, "The United States Navy has major assets not possessed by the Soviet Union, such as superior aircraft carriers, quieter submarines, and more highly qualified personnel. Therefore there is little validity to the charge that we are falling farther and farther behind the Soviet Union in seapower."

Are the Russians Stronger?

by Alexander Cockburn & James Ridgeway.

Il across the country the debate has spread like a prairie fire: Are the Russians stronger than the Americans?

In the halls of Congress and the State Department, at the major universities and think-tanks, experts are locked in angry argument—counting up warheads, army divisions, tanks, ships, bombers and all the materiel of the two greatest war machines in the world. Behind the statistics lies the central question: Are the Russians planning not just to equal American military might, but to surpass it and perhaps thrust themselves into a position from which they could launch a devastating surprise attack on the United States?

Shom of all the complex statistical comparisons, the debate really boils down to this: The essence of the modem balance of power between the United States and the Soviet Union is tiat both sides understand that neither could ever hope to launch a first strike without immediately incurring devastating retaliation. On this assumption have been based tentative moves toward disarmament, or at least restraint in further military buildup. But recently some prominent American defense experts have begun to question the balance of power. They say the Russians are pulling ahead and unless prompt steps are taken to bolster American forces, the security of the U.S. is in jeopardy.

Maj. Gen. George Keegan, a retired Air Force intelligence chief, says flatly, "In my judgment, we have already lost the military balance." In the Senate Sam Nunn (D., Ga.) has argued that "the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies are rapidly moving toward a decisive conventional military superiority over NATO." And former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Nitze and former State Department official Eugene Rostow have added their weight to those arguing that the U.S. is falling behind.

Soviets spending more

Such critics say that it has become clear in the last year that the Soviets are spending far more on their military effort than had previously been believed: As evidence they cite recent revisions of Soviet expenditure by the Central Intelligence Agency, Second, they insist that Soviet intercontinental missiles are both more numerous and more powerful than those in the American arsenal, giving them an edge in any first strike threat. Thirdly, the critics point to the growth of the Soviet navy, which they say now challenges America's long-held hegemony of the seas. Finally they point to Soviet strength on the ground, especially in Central Europe. Here, in the view of such people as Senator Nunn, the Soviets and their Eastern European allies could launch a surprise blitzkrieg assault on NATO forces in West Germany and rapidly master Western Europe,

What worries all these critics, such as Sen. Henry Jackson (D., Wash.), retired head of naval operations Adm. Elmo Zumwalt and others, is that U.S. disarmament negotiators, eager to slow down the arms race, will ignore such alarming trends and strike too soft a bargain with the Russians.

But the critics have not had things all their own way, Many in Congress and in the defense establishment strongly oppose such alarmist talk. "At the present time," says Sen. William Proximire (D., Wis.), "the United States and the. Soviet Union both have enough strategic power to obliterate the other under any condition. In that sense we are equal." And Rep. Les Aspin (D., Wis.). a longtime critic of the Pentagon, comments that "as a nation we are fascinated by numbers and statistics. You can prove many things by numbers, but you can't fight a war by the numbers any more than you can sculpt a statue by the numbers . . . If wars were won by the numbers, Israel would have been whipped four years ago and North Vietnam would have folded up shop in 1965. An analysis that relies solely on numbers will always show the United States trailing, for the very obvious reason that we have relied on superior quality, superior logistics and other superiorities that don't show up in the numbers."

And those arguing that the United States is not now in great peril take on the critics point by point. So far as increased estimates of Soviet military expenditures are concerned, they concede

Finally, there is the question of NATO vulnerability to a surprise attack in Europe, Parlicularly menacing here, according to the critics, is the huge Soviet superiority in tanks and conventional artillery. But many modern military experts question the usefulness of these tanks in the face of enormous strides in anti-tank missilery. NATO forces are now equipped with highly sophisticated anti-tank weapons that make rapid tank assaults a dangerous proposition. As for manpower, Congressman Aspin says, "The Russians do indeed have 170 divisions to our 19, but if you look at the loint Chiefs' wish list you'll find that even in their wildest dreams they only want 33 divisions. They know that the Russian divisions are smaller than ours and that most of their divisions are mere shells," Furthermore, some NATO generals scoff at the idea of a Russian blitzkrieg, requiring an advance of up to 72 miles a day. Such speed, across modern industrial terrain in West Germany, would demand an advance many times more rapid than General Patton was able to achieve in the Secand World War. And those confident of NATO's strength point to the 7000 tactical nuclear weapons that the U.S. maintains in Western Europe.

Underlying these concerns are other factors. The Soviet Union has to face not only NATO forces but also the People's Republic of China, now capable of hitting Russian cities with nuclear missiles. Many U.S. experts feel that current Soviet efforts in the area of civil defense have more to do with the Chinese threat than anything else. Furthermore, the Soviet Union faces NATO with Warsaw Pact allies—Czechs and Hungarians, for example—who would not necessarily be reliable in time of war. Senator Prox-

Both Zumwalt and Jackson fear SALT negotiators will ignore evidence of Soviet arms buildup, strike soft bargain.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON

CEN. CEDECE BROWN

Brown, Joint Chiefs head, downgrades Soviet submarine fleet. Proxmire says each nation can "obliterate the other."

SEN, WILLIAM PROXMIRE

mire concludes, "If you consider the conventional military and economic power of the U.S. and our NATO allies, there is a rough standoff militarily, while our side retains a significant lead economically." To this estimate others add that the United States is at least 25 years ahead of the Soviet Union in computer technology, so crucial in modern warfare.

'Rough equivalence'

Behind all such estimates lies the basic enigma: Are the Soviets really planning to launch a first strike, or are they merely trying to reach what the defense experts call "rough equivalence" with U.S. military might. Critics such as Paul Nitze fear the worst. But many others -such as Averell Hamman, who first visited the Soviet Union in the 1920'sfind it simply inconceivable that the Russians would ever wish to risk the assured nuclear devastation of their cities and industry which would follow on any surprise attack on the United States. Visitors to Secretary Brezhnev report his emphatic denunciations of the notion that anyone could win a nuclear exchange. The Russians, they point out, suffered 20 million dead in the Second World War. They fear invasion and, like the United States, they know that no one could ever "win" a third world war.

So, against the fears of the critics, the new Administration under President Carter feels it is time once again to curb the arms race and to prevent yet another generation of weapons and new arms technology from adding new darms the balance of terror. President Carter himself has stated that the United States and the Soviet Union are now "roughly equivalent" in strength and that in this situation what should be talked about are not more weapons but

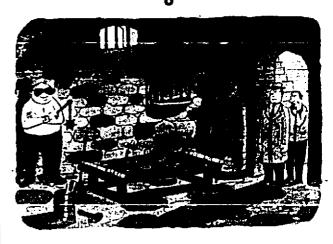

A tip of the hat to Charles Slayman, a senior attorney in the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection." As part of his agency's quiet and heroic war against government verbiage, he devotes his days to recommending elimination of inactive and repetitious guidelines from two volumes of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Of the 152 rules on the books, the FTC, with Slayman's help, has weeded out more than 80 so far. Eliminated were guidelines for the manufacturing and distributing of such wares as corsets, steel bobby pins, and mix-bottle caps. The size of the rule books is being reduced by hundreds of pages, saving the taxpayer money. How much? "It's got to be a lot," says Slayman. "When you look around the government, those books are all over the place."

Here's help if you're planning to buy a 1977-model car or truck. The Federal Energy Administration's 1977 Gas Mileage Guide lists the estimated miles per gallon, average annual fuel cost, and other key data on 594 new models. There's a separate pamphlet for California covering 408 models, because that state has the most stringent auto exhaust standards in the nation. The wealth of the nation. The Conference Board, an independent business research organization, has determined the national wealth of the U.S.—everyone's cash, gold, land, goods, structures, and equipment—totals an estimated $5.7 trilion. That's an average $26,511 for every man, woman, and chipton the U.S. Even allowing for inflation, it's 17 times the typical American's wealth when the U.S. became a nation. The upshot is that America, for all its economic problems, is at least making progress through a rising standard of living.

If your child is a poor reader

Try it at our risk for two weeks!

See how your child can learn to read better and spell better in just a few weeks with records that teach him by phonics, at home! Mail Free Trial Coupon below.

Would you like to see-your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in as little as six weeks' time? These are results parents have seen again and again with this simple home-tutoring course in reading.

Mrs. J. J. Webb. Naps. Cal. writes: "After sending my 10 year old son to Special Reading School at $12.50 per hour, spending $700 on this tutoring. I saw your ad and sent for The Sound Way to Basy Reading. In only 8 weeks he learned more from your course than from his Special Reading School. I am thrilled to see how well he reads."

Mrs. J. J. Webb is only one of over 200,000 parents who have turned to The Sound Way of Easy Reading for help in the frustrating problem of a child who can't read. And more than 26,000 schools use it.

Teaches with records

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp the "look-and-say" method taught in most schools today. Yet, many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics-that they will never master reading without it!

That is why so many poor readers show remarkable progress with The Sound Way to Easy Reading. It teaches reading by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago). Its phonograph records and charts show your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters in the alphabet and their blends. Once he learns the 123 basic phonics sounds in this course he can read up to 85% of the words

Tested and proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in 4 Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Help your child now

By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of sucess. Try it free for two weeks. You send no moneyjust mail this coupon now!

EDITOR'S NOTE: Larry Storch's talent as an impressionist led to a lucky event when he was in the Navy and met his idol, the late Billy De Wolfe: "I told him I, too, was an impressionist and did my impression of him. He said, 'Can you play a musical instrument?' I said, 'No.' He said, 'Dor't worry, you can always learn to slam cymbals.' He took me to the commander's office and told him, 'This man is invaluable. When not performing he can drive trucks, lift planos—you do lift planos, don't you?' Being in Special Services, going from island to island in the Pacific was the most valuable experience in my life."

And the way Storch landed the role of Corporal Agam in TV's "F-Troop" was itself a comic event. "I was right out of the East," he says, "and they asked me what I knew about horses. I said, 'The only thing I know about horses is they give milk and bite.' They said, 'That's close enough,' put me on a horse and let me ride around. They didn't find me for hours, and by then I was miles away. They asked what happened and I said, 'Well, he shook his head and I let go of the leash."

Storch has appeared on TV's "Gomer Pyle" and other series and on talk shows. His films include "Captain Newman, M.D.," "Bus Riley's Back in Town," and "Airport '75." He entertains in clubs around the country and often in Las Vegas, where he recently performed at the Frontier Hotel.

A guy came into this town and he was singing the blues at the bar, He said, "I've lost everything—the money, the house, the car, it's all gone. The only thing I've got left is my good luck charm."

Aunt Ida was in the hospital, and the head nurse got a call. The voice at the other end said, "I'd like to inquire how Ida May MacHurdie's doing." The nurse said, "Oh, yes, I have her chart in front of me. Pulse is fine, temperature's normal, the Incision is healed. If she minds her p's and q's, she'll be home Thursday, May I ask who's calling?" The caller said, "This is Ida May MacHurdie, Nobody tells me a damn thing!"

A circus comes to a small town. In one of the tents a fellow's got a large boa constrictor in his arms, and he says to the audience, "Who wants to come up here and handle this snake? There's a $50 prize in it." A woman jumps up and says, "I'd like a crack at it." She walks up onstage, grabs the snake by the back of the head nat tail, and ties it in knots. He gets the $50 and goes back to her seat. Her husband says, "Why, Effie, you're a snake chamer! I never knew that—why didn't you tell me?" And she says, "You never asked."

A Texan lands in Karachi, Pakistan, and gets off the plane followed by several men carrying skis and snowshoes. A guide meets him and says, "Sorry, sir, but you must really be in the wrong part of the world. There is no snow in Karachi." And the Texan says, "Don't worry about that—the snow is coming in on the next plane."

Timmy Dougherty worked at the brewery and drowned in a 1000-gallon vat of beer. So the foreman made it his business to come to the house that night and break the news to the widow. He said, "Steady, girl. Your man Tim drowned this afternoon in a 1000-gallon vat of beer." She said, "Dear me, the poor boy, he never had a chance." The foreman said, "Well, not exactly. He had two chances. Twice he climbed out to go to the bathroom."

Muhammad Ali came to town to do a movie, and he's liable to be the world's worst actor—but who's going to tell him?

A company soldier was wounded in France, and a nurse came by and said, "Give me your name so I can tell your mother." He lifted his head and said, "My mother knows my name."

A certain actor I know had trouble remembering his lines, and the stage manager said to him, "Harry, that line—'the father of five sons'—is giving you trouble. Why don't you just hold up your fingers so you'll remember the count?" The curtain went up, the big scene came around, and the actor—sure of himself—said, "How dare you talk to me like that! Me, the father of five fingers!"

A gunman rushed into a bank and said, "Give me all the money you've got!" The bank teller said, "Here, take the books, too. I'm $10,000 short."
